You might be sold new aluminum siding by a "suede-shoe sharpie" at double its worth.

You might contract for enlargement or remodeling of the house, only to have the contractor fold up part-way through the for the job over again as well as find some means to get your home put back together.

This last actually happened to scores of home-owners in the Long Beach area in recent months, when a company col-lapsed. Two of its officers are being tried on fraud charges.

Scores of families were stuck for sums ranging from small amounts to thousands of dollars and avoid this kind of grief? Well, beware of gypsies, suede - shoe sharpies and signing up too fast with any contractor.

Also, if you're getting a rush offer that sounds like a special bargain, take time out to do a little checking with some authoritative sources like the California State Contractors License Board. the Builders' Exchange,

$20 Million

5 P-F Sacramento Bureau SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown Saturday proposed that Long Beach, Cerrilos, Compton, El Camino, Fullerton, Orange Coast and Santa Ana junior colleges share in a $20-million construction

The proposal, involving 63 colleges, will be introduced this week as an amendment to a Senate bill,

Sen. Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield, the author, said purpose of the program is to provide for junior col-lege growth over the next two years. It envisions an $80-million junior college expansion program — $20 million from state bond funds and $60 million to be supplied on a matching hasis by junior college districts.

THE PROPOSED allocations, based on recent and anticipated growth, include:

Cerritos, $860,160; Compton, $179,005; El Camino, $650,095; Long Beach, $368.-690: Fullerton, $710,825: Orange Coast, $1,098.175 and Santa Ana $226,560

Orange Coast's distribution figure is the secondhighest in the state, outranked only by the $1,247,-735 recommended for Los Angeles City College, Thirdranking college, based on growth potential, is Cerritos-in line for $860 160

To qualify for state construction aid, a college must have building plans aimed at enlarging capacity. Matching funds also are a

Stiern said the plan inseried the growth factor into the distribution formula adopted in 1961, which he said was based on the number of students in a junior college and the assessed value of the junior college district,

Honolulu Gives Coop Wild, Record Greeting

HONOLULU (A) - Astronaut Gordon Cooper and his family took off for Cane Canaveral, Fla., where his historic space flight started last Wednesday. The Air Force Jet Transport carrying Cooper was due at Patrick AFB near Cape Canaveral at 9:50 a.m. EST today.

HONOLULU (#1 — Normaily placid Honolulu excitedly hailed astronaut Gordon Cooper as a hometown hero Saturday,

The man who orbited the earth 22 times spent a bectic $7\frac{1}{2}$ hours in the state which has adopted him as its own.

From the moment he set foot on dry land at Hickam Air Force Base - for the first time since he blasted off from Florida Wednesday - Cooper was draped with leis, pelted with orchids and heaped with praise, ranging from the ordinary man in the street to the highest civiland military officials,

COOPER, the 36-year-old Air Force major responded with obvious pleasure. He spoke briefly but with feeting at a series of civic receptions. He waved, grinned and yelled back to crowds which twice delayed his parade through downtown Honolulu and Waikiki,

For Cooper it was a sort of dress rehearsal for the honors still to come in Florida Sunday in Washington Tuesday and in New York Wednesday

The crowd was tremen dous, estimated at 'wellover 100,000" by police Lt. William Jones, in charge of the parade detail.

Mayor Neal S. Blaisdell declared "It's the greatest demonstration of admiration The ever seen for anyone." Police said it was the biggest turnout in Honglulu's history—greater than Gen, Douglas MacArthur got on his return from Japan in 1951, and well ahead of President Eisenhower's greeting in 1960,

Fifteen struggled to safefrom Florida's worst traffic accident in the memory of police officers, Divers worked under lights Saturday night probing the Hillsboro Canal's murky waters for possible additional victims. The bus driver, who escaped, said he believed 20 to 25 persons were trapped in the vehicle but officials said the toll could not be fixed until the canal bed was thoroughly searched.

THE DEAD, mostly Negro bean pickers, were men, women and children ranging in age from about 6 to 65 years,

Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Glenn Blocker said a light truck, passing the bus on State Road 827, cut back in on the bus and the two vehicles' bumpers hooked. The bus plunged into the 50-foot wide canal that parallels the road,

Space-Age Security Big Job

ANAHEIM - Several years ago, executives at North American Aviation's Autonetics Division became alarmed over a continuing series of thefts of transistors and diodes from a building where the items were stored.

They called in the plant's industrial security force to investigate.

After a thorough search had failed to yield a clue, one of the men happened to notice several blackbirds flying around in the huge building,

In a few more minutes, he had solved the mystery.

The birds had taken the tiny pieces of electronic equipment and had built themselves a $12,000 nest, high in the building's rafters

Only a generation or two ago, safeguarding a plant was a relatively uncomplicated matter of installing a burglar alarm and a fire-control system. Perhaps there was a fence and a few guard posts, visited occasionally by an elderly watchman.

Today, however, the concept of industrial security involves not only plant protection but also screening of employes and others for access to classified information, continuing education of personnel in security matters and safeguarding an enormous body of secret material without hampering its utilization in the practical work of the plant.

Autonetics' industrial security department maintains a protective services force of more than 450 persons, equivalent to the combined police and fire departments of a fair-sized city.

The department includes an identification bureau, an investigative staff of experienced former Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, a lock and key shop, select groups of lobby receptionists and security specialists and a division-wide emergency and disaster organization.

Last year, the department gave protective servicing to almost 35,000 Autonetics employes, received about 250,000 military and civilian visitors, vendors and suppliers, screened nearly 16,000 employment applications and performed more than 100,000 badging, photographic and fingerprinting operations. The organization also obtained approximately 14,000 personnel-security clearances, conducted almost 500 security-indoctrination briefings for groups of newly bired employes, performed more than 70,000 lock and key installations and changes and kept fire losses to the millions of dollars worth of buildings, material and equipment at less than $2,500.

Industrial Security Director is Harry C. Van Pelt, a former FBI inspector and aide to J. Edgar Hoover. His assistant is John W. Sundquist, also a former FBI agent and Marine Corps veteran.

THOUSANDS of locks guard vital information, and in keeping with basic security techniques, combinations are changed at intervals. The plant's own locksmith shop handles the changes. Lead locksmith William K. Witherell is changing the combination on wall-safe lock.

THE WASTEPAPER barrels at North American Aviation's Autonetics Division are under lock and key. In the firm's top-secret opperation, strict security applies to destruction of discarded written material. Genice A. Staton, documents-control girl at the plant, rips classified papers and carbons for deposit in barrel.

Now, Halloran says, it is "almost safe to say" there are no crooks in that field, but Jack Horner, manager of Builders' Exchange of Long Beach, and E. W. Cummings. president and manager of the Better Business Bureau, can cite local instances in the past few months in which salesmen untroubled by scruples have tried to bilk homeowners on renovations.

Both the exchange and the bureau will gladly give you copies of checklists and other free information dealing with the busily growing field of home improvement, which takes 40 percent of all money spent on home construction and in 1960 totaled $13 billion investment, according to the U. S. census.

Halleran recommends that an architect be retained for all but the simplest jobs, to insure that the specifications are clear. Similarly, he suggests the legal safeguard of having an attorney examine the whole contract for loopholes,

"MANY PEOPLE don't realize," he says, "that every job has extras. But it's a nearly invariable rule, whether they come from something uncovered in the old structure as the job goes on or from a housewife's wish to have something added to the original plan."

Also important is the scheduling of progress payments and clear statements as to starting and completion dates of the

If the customer has done thorough checking and consulted the right experts before signing a contract, he probably will have no lien troubles, but they can arise on any job between the most reasonable of parties.

France's Tax Hassle With Monaco Ends

PARIS (UPI)-France and the tiny principality of Monaco ended their tax war Saturday with a set of compromise agreements,

Citizens of Monaco, Frenchmen who have lived there more than five years and other foreign residents still will be allowed tax-free personal incomes But French industries that set up shop in Monaco to escape taxes now will have to pay at the same rate as they would in France-about 50 percent of profits. Other foreign industries will pay at the rate of about 40 percent.

France, annoyed at the flight of industry to the principality, abrogated the previous agreement with the principal ity last year.

It slapped customs controls on Monaco, raised its postal charges and imposed other controls on industries exporting from Monaco to France.

Prince Rainier and Princes Grace were not on hand for the signing of the agreement They are in the United States on a visit.

BLUSH-ON' by Revlow

'Blush-On' is not a powder or a rouge... It's a new invention in makeup called a 'blusher'...gives your whole face a "come-alive" glow!

Blush-On is the sheerest cloud of color you fluff on over your whole face (right over your make-up) -- with its own soft-as-sable brush. It gives you a new kind of radiance. (Some call it "instant health!") Takes the place of rouge. Sometimes takes the place of sleep! Never has so little done so much for your looks~except, perhaps, falling in love.

Racial Pot Simmers in North, South

state troopers, special deputies, city and county policemen were on patrol duty. Rumors, anonymous bomb threats and speculation ran rampant.

Still on standby at two Alabama bases were about 3,000 federal troops ordered into the state by President Kennedy for possible use in riot control.

Wallace petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court for injunctions against use of federal troops in the Alabama city. He asked the court to rule that Kennedy violated the Constitution by ordering in the troops.

THE COURT move came a few hours before the time set for Kennedy and Wallace to meet in Tennessee Valley Authority ceremonies at Muscle Shoals.

The dramatic meeting came amid these developments:

-Kennedy said in Nashville, Tenn., scene of resporadic racial violence, that Americans must reject temptations of prejudice and violence. He emphasized respect for law.

—The President told Ala bamians at Muscle Shoals, "the people of this area know that the Federal government is not a stranger or an enemy . . . for with out the national govern-ment, there could be no 'TVA."

-Most of 412 Negro demonstrators arrested Friday night in Greensboro, N.C., chose to stay in jail. They marched in protest to downtown segregation

-A federal judge ordered desegregation next fall of the first and second grades of New Orleans public schools. -Integration groups set a huge rally in Englewood, N.J., in a campaign to end racial imbalance in schools there. –Racial imbalance in schools of Malverne, N.Y., was reported by the state education commissioner's special committee.

-A cross burned in Alexandria, La., at the home of relatives of David Dunbar Jr., a Negro on trial charged with raping a white woman.

-Fifty-six Negroes staged a march in Wilmington, N.C., in support of hetter job opportunities. They were not arrested.

Birmingham Judge William Conway convicted 70 Negroes for demunstrating in mass marches that landed more than 2,400 in jail before a bi-racial truce

Charges against 15 others were dropped for lack of

Kennedy's reference to this highest tradition, it nevertheless broke in vigorously with applause at various points.

And Kennedy got a big, rousing reception in the capital of Tennessee. Press Secretary Pierre Salinger was asked why Kennedy said nothing about racial matters at Muscle Shoals. He replied that was a different kind of occasion than Nashville and said the President had been asked to make a speech on TVA and that is what he did.

At Muscle Shoals, Wallace greeted Kennedy with a wave of his hand and later a handshake when the presidential helicopter whirled to earth behind the TVA administration build-

TOGETHER they walked the 100 yards to the crowded foyer of the building and on to an outdoor platform under a hot summer sun. A crowd officially estimated by TVA at 15,000 howled its approval.

Men cheered and women and children shricked with delight when the President waved to them. They velled, too, when Wallace raised both bands above his head in greeting.

But, mindful no doubt of tragic violence. his own repeated charges that federal authorities had deprived the states of their rights. Wallace listened grimly when the President declared, "the people of this area know that the federal government is not a stranger and not an enemy."

OTTAWA (A)-Agreement on an interallied nuclear

The move would combine existing national nuclear forces under a separate com mand, but it would be only a small step toward the U.S. goal of a multilateral force under joint ownership, joint staffing and joint command, The United States was understood to have made sub stantial progress on the multilateral force in private talks but is not expected to push it at the May 22-24 NATO meeting here. The mair problem is continued French opposition.

FRANCE was reported to have agreed to go along with the approval of an interallied force on the understanding that NATO will stress publicly that the new force is simply an extension of U.S.

and British nuclear power. Columbia Broadcasting Sys tem (CBS) corresponden Blaine Littel reported from Paris that agreement already has been reached on the final wording of the communique for the meeting here. He said: "French President Charles de Gaulle himself has ap proved the draft of the docu ment summing up the results of the conference which is still to take place. In effect, the NATO delegates meeting in Canada will agree to cer tain modifications, certain additions to NATO's nuclear striking power, a few revisions in the change of com mand, hut, bowing to French sensitivity, will not say this is anything new."

UNDER the expected agree ment, the NATO force will consist of units already possessing nuclear weapons or committed to accept them. These will include American Polaris missile submarines in the Mediterranean, the British bomber command, tactical air forces of Canada, West Ger many, Belgium, The Nether lands and two French squadrons based in Germany.

The Russians, meanwhile. charged that the United States plans to arm merchant ships with Polaris nuclear rockets. They threatened to attack and destroy any Polaris-armed merchant vessel -American or NATO. The charge came from Adm. Sergei Gorshkov, commander in chief of the Soviet navy, in an article in the Soviet government newspaper. Izvestia.

THE U.S. and Britain have denied they had any plans to arm merchantmen. The United States Saturday rejected as "preposterous" a Soviet protest against President Kennedy's plans to build a seaborne NATO nuclear force. In a note delivered to the Kremlin, the State Department said that European powers threatned by Moscow with nuclear annihilation had every right to take appropriate defense measures and intended to do so.

It said Russian allegations that the NATO force would be an agkressive instrument and might be used by West Germany to regain territory lost in World War II were "groundless charges."

This lovely valley lies at the base of Mt. Palomar, whose rugged battlements off striking contrast with the gentle undulations, green meadows and pastoral scenes of Pauma.

There are farms, and white fences, and horses and cows nibbling on pasture grass. The road winds through patches of oak and rolling meadowland and isn't built for motorists driving like mad to get somewhere, or nowhere, in a

This course is noted for its multiplicity of sand traps. Somebody said there are 164. And one of the fellows who played it said that it was just like being all afternoon on the beach with a golf club.

Richter's Homework On a Seismograph

By PAUL WALLACE

Like many busy professional men, Charles F. Richter takes his work home with him.

Unlike most, however, he doesn't do it in an attache case.

Dr. Richter is professor of seismology at Caltech in Pasadena-and one of the world's leading authorities on earthquakes.

And his homework is done on a full-fledged seismograph -- an earthquake measuring deviceinstalled in his living

THE PROFESSOR, developer of the Richter scale for measuring the intensity of quakes, obligingly makes expert information available to news media at the drop of an earth fault,

He reads the quake intensity in Pasadena, then calculates its center by triangulating readings from two other widely spaced seismographs.

Until recently, the professor had to hop out of bed, dress and drive the three miles to the palatial old Spanish-style mansion just west of the Arrovo Seco where the seismo lab is located,

Now, with a seismograph in his home, Dr. Richter not only is spared considerable inconvenience, but much quicker dissemination of information about the temblor can be made.

Time is important, too, not only to spread the news to the curious, but also in Dr. Richter's other duty as part of the federal

The seismograph in his living room is just like those at the lab.

It is built around a heavy pendulum, suspended springs. The pendulum records the slightest vertical earth movements. The motion is magnified electronically and recorded on a graph.

Besides being a functional addition to the furnishings of the seismologist's home, the impressive instrument has become quite a neighborhood conversation piece. Home seismographs may even become the latest status symbol. Imagine the impression such a ploy would create:

Let's Not Cloud Health Tax Issue

AS THEY CONSIDER what stand to take on a bill to end the double tax which certain cities pay for health services, some California legislators ask what these cities intend to do with the "savings" that would result.

We agree that this is an important questionbut one which the cities themseives should decide, and one which is entirely separate from the issue now before the Senate. Regardless of what the cities plan to do in the future, the double tax is wrong in principle and should be climinated.

LONG BEACH TAXPAYERS support a fine local Health Department, but also have to pay the county for health services that are not needed or used. A measure introduced by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas would exempt cities such as this from paying for duplicate county health services.

This merely means that the taxpayers of the cities involved would no longer pay the county tax exacted for the support of the county department. In this sense, there would be a true tax saving (about $350,000 for Long Beach taxpayers); there would not be that much more in the local treasury.

IF LONG BEACH citizens should obtain relief from $350,000 in county taxes, the city would no doubt hear at once from various local groups and individuals with plans for hiking city taxes to absorb the "saving." The temptation to look upon any such tax relief as extra spending money should be resisted. DAVID LAWRENCE We know of no official policy at this time to raise local taxes to the extent that the county health tax may be reduced. Certainly, the local Health Department, if in need, would have strong claim on such

BUT, WE REPEAT, that is a separate matter from the one which the legislators must decide. They are simply being asked to pass a bill which exempts the cities from paying for something they don't use. That simple issue should not be clouded by irrelevant arguments.

Customs Man Is Human Being Too

I. P-T WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON-Having over the past year done quite a bit of dashing across the Atlantic, I've had a number of contacts with the United States Customs Service-an outfit which has been damned, cursed, insulted, resented and denounced by myriads of irate travelers who, usually through their own fault, have created trouble for themselves when in the custom house.

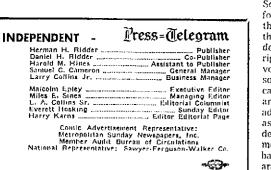

Our customs officials have at best a hapless job and it's about time someone spoke up on their behalf. Personally, our relations with customs officials have been good. We've found them pleasant, intelligent, helpful men who are doing their level hest to make workable the comblicated customs laws which have been thrust upon them. It might be well for some of our more ill-tempered travelers to remember that the men in uniform at the airport customs shed or at the dock didn't make the laws which they have sworn to uphold. Those laws come from Congress and the streams of sour words which are so often directed against the men in uniform ought in reality to be directed some other place. The poor official is merely trying to do

FROM LONG OBSERVATION, I have concluded that people are either at their best or at their worst when traveling. When all goes well they beam and smile and treat other people with consideration and respect. When things go wrong, however, they snarl and shout and take their frustrations out on their wives, children and whoever else happens to be handy which upon arrival in the United States is generally the customs officer. In the course of his long hours of duty the customs officer is subjected to an enormous amount of unjustified vitriol and abuse from the ill-mannered mouths of nerve-frazzled travelers. Under the circumstances, it is not surprising that the harrassed official, being after all human too, occasionally allows his nerves to show and shouts "you're one too" at his bonrish accuser.

OUR OWN EXPERIENCES with the gentlemen in the hlue uniforms have been happy. Last Labor Day, for instance, we landed at New York's idlewild airport well past midnight as a flood of planes from Europe inundated the customs shed. We were traveling with wife, four overtired children and mountains of baggage. On top of it all, we had a close connection with a plane for Washington. The customs inspector saw my plight and was not only polite, courteous and sympathetic but was downright helpful in organizing the expeditionary force necessary to move family, baggage, and assorted children's playtoys to another airline in another building.

IN THE COURSE OF ARRIVING in the U. S. I've seen customs inspectors struggle manfully to aid those who couldn't speak anything but Lithuanian; I've seen them expedite matters for mothers holding infants in their arms; I've seen them give comfort to the sick and a hand to the

To denounce a customs inspector is accepted by some nit-wits as the hallmark of the experienced traveler. As a matter of fact, the reverse is true. Treat the customs inspector with only a modicum of politeness and decency and you'd be surprised at the kindness he will show you. Try it some time; it works.

Many Southern Demos Would Back Goldwater Against JFK

WASHINGTON - Much has been written lately about the rise of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona as a possible Republican nominee, but the significance of his candidacy in relation to the Birmingham controversy has gone almost un-

For several months now, they too, present an artifireports from the South have cial image to the people. indicated that Sen. Goldwater stood a good chance of carrying the electoral many Southern states if he were n o m inated for the presidency in '64. But this is related to the dilemma of LAWRENCE the Democratic Party.

Thus, in almost every Southern state, the United States senators and representatives are dependent on the Democratic Party machinery. They must support the Democratic Party organization to be re-elected. Sen. Olin D. Johnston, Democrat of South Carolina, made reference to the problem at a recent meeting of the Ala-bama Democratic Party leaders in Birmingham, He

"As soon as you develop strong two-party system in the South you are going to get the same minorityvote baiting that you have in cities like New York, Chicago and Kansas City.
When we reach that point in Southern politics our DREW PEARSON states' rights will . . . go out the window. You will be turning over your senators and representatives like the rmer plows his field spring.

"The last strength of states' rights is vested in WASHINGTON the powers of your representatives in Washington whom you have elected and re-elected and re-elected Their seniority is the source of your strength and power Washington to preserve our states' rights. Once you start swapping your statesmen for Republicans, the battle of states' rights will be lost."

THIS IS A logical theory, but it may not necessarily convince the voters. They usually vote their resentments. That's why many incumbent Democrats in the South feel they have to express themselves vehemently in criticism of the Kennedy administration's tactics in Birmingham, especially in connection with the President's threat to use federal troops. The Republicans in the who are candidates for office usually soft-pedal the "civil rights" issue. But their brethren in the North do not. Sen. Johnston is right about the "minority-vote baiting." Some of the so-called "liberal" Republicans in the northern states are constantly prodding the administration to brush aside states rights. Their demand is for the use of more federal troops and program, hayonets. These Republicans

The crux of the problem is the lack of courage of many men in public life. They care more for re-election than they do for basic principles which are being trampled upon in the game

There is obviously a need for a two-party system everywhere in the country. The voter wants an alternative. Often he doesn't care if the other party's platform is no better than that of the incumbent's. The tendency is to defeat at the polls the party which caused the grievance and teach a lesson for the future to the elected nominees of the other party.

Negative voting is customary throughout the United States. Many Southern Democrats would vote for Sen. Goldwater as a means of expressing their disapproval of the Kennedy administration. The Arizona senator, incidentally, will argue for civil rights and equality but wants the goal to be achieved only through

"integration" and not be offensive to the South as long as he insists that it be achieved through legal and constitutional methods and not by usurpation or by methods which are coercive and unlawful,

Sen. Goldwater may or may not become the Republican nomince for President, but he is one of the few Republicans active in national politics who has the temerity to insist on constitutionalism, as he forgoes the opnortunities for demagoguery on the "civil rights" issue.

The Republicans in the South have been making gains in the last few years. But they have done so as an "opposition" party. They are often as "conservative," if not more so, than their Democratic opponents. The close race in Alabama last year for the U. S. Senate has encouraged the Republicans. The same trend has been noticeable in other states. Votes have been given to the Republicans by persons who are resentful of the policies of the Kennedy

Others capriciously want to test their drawing power at the polls or want to get free publicity which may help them in some personal venture.

Perhaps there should be some "earnest money" put on the line in the form of a filing fee (it's free now) for all candidates. It might discourage impulse shoppers for public office and would not be high enough to prohibit entry of any sincere candidate.

2-Nation Space Race Amuses British Paper

A British newspaper last week said if the United States beats the Soviet Union to the moon it will "only prove that capitalist society can waste its resources as effectively as a Communist one."

The Manchester Guardian said there was "little sign that enough people in Washington" have tried to balance the gains from this goal which "the Kennedy administration has apparently set its heart on.

"Soviet and American commentators are apt to discuss the astronautical efforts of their respective countrymen as symbols of the spirit of man, reaching out for new worlds to conquer," the newspaper's editorial said. * *

"IN FACT THE SPACE RACE does have a symbolic value-but that is not it. What it symbolizes is the essential irrationality of a society dedicated to technical progress for its own sake "

But other European newspapers praised the United States for astronaut L. Gordon Cooper's space flight.

Denmark's Ekstrabladet said; "After the astonishment over the precision of Cooper's space trip and pleasure over its success, we feel generally pleased—pleased with the frankness with which American space scientists and technicians place facts on the table. .

The Soviet Union has plenty to learn from the United States as regards frankness and communicativeness, as they have on many other fronts," the Danish newspaper commented.

IN AUSTRIA, the newspaper Die Presse said: "President Kennedy's decision to send federal troops to Birmingham marks the failure of attempts to settle differences by a compromise.

The claims of the Negro leaders were modest, and the reluctance of the white population to enter into economic competition with colored people is one of the main reasons for the conflict.

Arbeiterzeitung, another Austrian newspaper, commented: "America cannot expect peace in the coming years. The more rights the Negroes win at one place or in one field, the more they thrust forward into other areas where they are deprived of rights."

U.S. 22 'Steps' Closer to the Moon

By HARRY SHARPE By United Press International

Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper wrote race-to-themoon history last week by orbiting the earth 22 times at 17,544 miles an hour and making a bullseye landing in the Pacific.

American hearts swelled with pride and President Kennedy and Congress prepared a red carpet reception for the peppery little Oklahoma Air Force major and his family in Washington

But there were frightening moments when the 36year-old Cooper's automatic electric control system conked out near the end of his 20th lap, He had to steer his Faith 7 space capsule by hand, get his heat shield in proper position, then fire the retro rockets that slowed him down for safe reentry into the earth's atmusphere

A miscalculation at his terrific speed would have meant fiery death.

COOPER WAS rocketed into orbit from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Wednesday morning and was fished from the ocean 80 miles from Midway Island by the aircraft carrier Kearsarge late Thursday. He had been aloft 34 hours and 20.5 minutes—an American record —and had traveled 575,000 miles. This was more than enough for a round trip to the moon but far short of Russian cosmonaut successes

The astronaut lost seven pounds and was tired and dizzy when helped from his vehicle. But doctors and space technicians were pleased because he suffered no apparent ill effects from weightlessness,

"Faith 7 did well," Cooper said happily aboard the Kearsarge. He added mod-estly that "I had a few little jor." and "wow" was the way he described his journey over 100 nations, islands and possessions, including Red China.

Veteran astronaut John Glenn, the first American to go into orbit, directed from aboard a ship off Japan the firing of the rockets that kept Faith 7 from burning up when it streaked into the atmosphere.

The President telephoned congratulations to Cooper aboard the Kearsarge, He anxiously had followed the pilot's re-entry through its crucial stage. Then he went on television and told the nation that "this was one of the victories of the human

MUCH OF THE world, including some Iron Curtain countries, but not Russia, saw the blastoff through saw the blastoff through TV relayed by communications satellites. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev nevertheless congratulated Kennedy and Cooper.

At Cape Canaveral, Walter Williams, director of Mercury Project operations, said that in his control trouble "Cooper was very much on top of the situation . . . this guy shined." Dr. D. Brainerd Holmes, director of manned space flight for the space administration, said Cooper's success was "another step toward going to the moon and making America first in space flight."

Williams was asked what would have happened had Cooper been unconscious when his control system failed. "He would still be up there," he replied. "He would not have been able to re-enter." A short-circuit was blamed for the malfunction. This may call for another Mercury flight before the two-man Gemini

Racial tensions in Birmingham, Ala., cased somewhat after the President ordered 3,000 federal troops into jump-off bivouacs near the industrial city.

The President resorted to drastic action after Negrowhite rioting jeopardized an agreement between businessmen and Negro leaders to desegregate downtown stores,

Segregationist Mayor Art Hanes called on all citizens to repudiate the agreement as the spawn of "fuzzy minded liberals." Gov. George C. Wallace challenged Kennedy's authority as "dictatorship," but the President said the troops would stay until the citizens themselves make federal intervention unnecessary. He appealed to whites and Negroes alike to "realize that violence only breeds violence."

THE U.S. Civil Rights Commission began investigating alleged police brutality in Birmingham in the arrest of Negro demonstra-

Newton N. Minow who had termed television "a vast wasteland," resigned as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, effective June 1, Minow was noted for his twofisted administration. He will be succeeded in the chairmanship by an equally tough director, 34-year-old Commissioner E. William Henry. The President also announced he would name Justice Department trustbuster Lee Lnevinger to the commission. Minow will take a $100,000-a-ayear job

A PRESIDENTIAL emergency board called on the railroads and rail unions to avert a nationwide strike by starting talks at once on ways to settle their dispute over work rules outlawed by the Supreme Court. These include socalled featherbedding-jobs which the carriers say can be abolished as surplus. The President urged both sides to give "most serious consideration to the board's recommendations. He said the future of collective bargaining may denend upon the outcome. Negotiations will resume Monday.

The Supreme Court ruled that any union member's dues cannot be used for political purposes without his consent. It suggested strongly that such money must be refunded to the member unless it is used for collective bargaining pur-

Lipscomb Malinged Wrongly

During the past week certain commentators have been wondering aloud if the recently deceased Big Daddy Lipscomb (1) was connected with gamblers and (2) if he had been on the dope habit for

I have no reason for defending the All-Pro Pittsburgh Steeler lineman, but neither do I think it's proper to

> From autopsy reports, Lipscomb succumbed from an overdose of narcotics. There is no defense of this action. Big Daddy was very wrong. On the other hand, just because his demise was linked with narcotics is no reason for some gabby announcer to throw Lipscomb's name into the gambling scandals which recently rocked pro foot-

Another broadcaster claimed that "it is now apparent Lipscomb had been on dope a long time because main-lining (a direct injection into the blood stream and the way Big Daddy was killed) is developed over a period of

That statement is not necessarily correct. Because Lipscomb may have just started the heroin habit (and wasn't used to mainlining) is a very possible reason why he died so suddenly. If he had been a longtime narcotics user, Big Daddy probably would have survived the strong dosage which resulted in his death.

Another thing, commentators. There's no way you can tell me that any athlete with a narcotics habit can go undetected by his teammates. They shave, shower and stand unclothed together virtually every day for six months. A narcotic would be spotted in this company quicker than a Nazi with a swastika.

From what information I can gather, Lipscomb got "hooked" after the past football scason. He remained in Los Angeles some weeks after the January Pro Bowl and, sadly, acquired the habit that killed him right here in Southern California.

1 RECALL VIVIDLY my last encounter with Lipscomb—after the final football game he ever would play,

Ordinarily, Big Daddy was somewhat on the grouchy side to newsmen because he didn't like to undergo interrogation. On this occasion, however, he was extremely pleasant-and for an excellent reason: He had just been voted "lineman of the game" by the folks in the press box.

I recall writing that Big Daddy was particularly happy on the afternoon of Jan. 13 because the suspicion had lurked that the brute from Detroit's Miller High School was nearing the end of his career-and Big Daddy was aware of the whispers and stories.

"Guess I showed those folks today," thundered a

Phil Crosby has two dates in Long Beach this week and neither includes a female.

Tonight he plays softball with the Hollywood Entertainers against the Long Beach Nitehawks at Park Ave Field. Saturday and Sunday he golfs in the World En-tertainment Championship at Recreation

An affable, blond 28-year-old singer, Phil is considered the athlete of the renowned Crosby family

He was a four-sport performer in high school, and played two years of varsity football at Washington State, where he was a teammate of Ram coach Harland Svare and the roominate of former Long Beach City College star, Chuck Morrell.

Would you rather make a base hit or a birdie here this week, Phil?

"The base hit, if you will make it an extra-base hit. There's no thrill like that. But that pitcher the Nitehawks had last year (Jack Randall) really burns them in. got a bunt single off of him, and I considered it my outstanding hit of the year."

Can the Entertainers give the Nitehawks a good game?

'Yes, this is an all-star team chosen from a league of show business people. Johnny Berardino plays for us, and he used to be a major leaguer. John Casavetes and Mike Dante are other good players. Bobby Darin might play if he's in town. I'm the left fielder."

Is Lolita (Sue Lyon) a good batgirl? "She's a real cute little girl. John Harris, who produced Lolita, plays center field for us, and he brings her to the games,"

What is your handicap in golf? 'An 11. I've played some real good golf, but I'm not consistent. I guess I don't practice enough. My best round was a 69 at Bel Air, and I bogied the last two holes." Who would you rate as the top golfers in show business? "The best is Bob Sterling, If he plays in the fournament here, he should be the winner. There are several other good ones like Bob Wilke, Pat Harrington, John Agar very well. And don't forget Dean Martin. He told me he would try to play in the tournament.

How good is your father?

"Dad used to be the best I ever saw. He played to a 3 or 4 handicap. But he doesn't play much any more. He had a great short game and a real smooth swing and always shot from 72 to 74.

Did he influence you to become a golf-

"Yes, dad got us all started. My brother Lindsey is a real fine player, and he will be playing in the tournament. Dad always encouraged us, and gave us tips. He sure loves that game."

You have played in pro-amateurs with the tops pros. Who is your favorite?

"Gary Player is the best partner I've ever had. We played in the Seattle World's Fair tournament last year. He shot 64 and I had 75, and we were 18 under as a team. He's a great little guy. Some of the pros don't like to bother with amateurs, but he clubbed me on every hole. I also played with Palmer once at Las Vegas. He's a wonderful guy."

As a former business partner of Harland Svare, do you think he will be suc-cessful as coach of the Rams?

"Yes, I think he will do very well. I'd say he can't miss. The organization problems of the Rams have been cleared up, and Harland will be a strong leader. The Rams have good players, and I'll be surprised if they don't win half of their games next season."

If you could change places today with any athlete, who would you choose?

This may sound controversial, but there is one athlete who is both my buddy and my idol, Paul Hornung, It really made me sad to read some of the things they wrote about him. He's really a fine person, and throwing a game would be the last thing in the world he would do. I think he's the finest athlete today. I'd love to step

How to Fish in Famous Eagle Lake

Since returning from the Northern California trip, I have received a half-dozen telephone calls about Eagle Lake, and other inquires about the entire northern area which I have visited many times.

One caller mentioned the fact that I had said nothing about baits or lures in Eagle Lake, that mile-high resort 16 miles from Susanville. It is there that the large salmo acquilarum—honest, folks, that's what they call that big trout-resides.

As I mentioned before, three trout comprise a limit there. Anglers try everything, Some succeed with wobbling spoons, others use great gobs of night crawlers wrapped around hooks. Our young boatman, who caught a 4½-pounder, got his fish on a fly, called a squirrel tail

But the classic bait of all time was a big worm on a hook with marshmallows tied above it. This strange creation interested me more than any one thing on the

Then old man Salmo comes along, grabs worm, marshmallows and all and takes off for deeper water.

FEW BOATS ARE available at Eagle Lake, but the operators there plan to add to the fleet as soon as possible. It is easy, however, to trailer a boat to the lake. It can be launched at the Eagle Lake Marina, or there are several places along the shore where light boats may be launched without getting into difficulty.

Most of the fishing is done from shore, which slopes gently and where anglers may build camp fires. Such fires feel good when the 12-to-2 wind starts, particularly if there is snow on the ground as there was when we were there. By 12 to 2, I mean noon to 2 p.m., but often the wind lasts longer than just 2 p.m.

Later in the season, deep trolling from boats becomes extremely popular because old Salmo goes down to cooler | Reavis. water. Right now, it's cold enough on top, and he's hungry.

Our boatman and other natives of the area have a trick method of using that squirrel-tail fly. They tie the monofilament line to a light plastic float, then use a six-foot leader below the float. In that way one may use regular casting equipment or a spinning outfit and get the fly far away from shore or the boat.

There is plenty of wide-open space around Eagle for camping, but there is need for more sanitary facilities. Self-contained campers are ideal and we saw a dozen such vehicles along the shore.

SPEAKING OF SANITARY facilities, Gov. Brown's temper outburst really got some action at Frenchman Reservoir in Plumas County after the first weekend of fishing when 3,600 anglers went there for one of the greatest trout openings in the state's history.

They caught lish-lots of fish-but they found no foilets, no garbage cans and no places to camp. Brown, when informed of the fact, said that $200,000 had been appropriated for such facilities. He called the situation one "absolute neglect" and said, "I'm going to do something about it immediately even if I have to fire somebody to see it's done."

Hugh Fisher, administrator of the State Resources Agency, discovered that there had been a mixup between the federal government, the state (which built the reservoir) and the county. Twenty chemical toilets and plenty of garbage cans were sent there immediately.

This week they are busy cleaning up the entire area and construction of permanent sanitary facilities has

Strangely enough, hundreds of limits of rainbow trout, 12 to 14 inches and better, were taken from Frenchman on the opening weekend. And just as strange-Nevada, produced only a few fish. The DFG had thought it would be one of the hottest spots in the state. The fish indogras Go went into hiding.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS-Bill Doctor, 5200 Sandwood, Long Beach, is listed as the third prize winner in wood, Long Beach, is listed as the third prize winner in the sixth week of the San Diego Yellowtail Derby. His on May 30 fish weighed 24-15.

C. W. Teed, manager of Sears, Roebuck and Co. here, calls to advise us that Sears has issued two outdoor movies in color and sound. Each is available on a freeloan basis through Association Films, Inc., or Modern Talking Picture Service, Inc.

One picture deals with the theme, "Tarpon Fishing With Ted Williams," and shows the former Red Sox slugger in action against the big silvery fish in Florida. The other picture concerns Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest and his family on a camping trip through Alaska's spectacular mountain country.

That picture is entitled "Come Camping in Alaska,"

and shows the entire Hillary family, Lady Hillary and their children, Peter, 7, Sarah, 5, and Lindy, 3, going from Haines Alaska, to Mt. McKinley National Park.

Multiple Listing Has Steady Growth in L.B.

As Realtor Week drew to its conclusion today, it was noted by Joe Hodge, chairman of the Multiple Listing Department of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, that there had been steady growth in multiple listing. There now are about 900 local subscribers to the system.

The multiple listing service is a voluntary organization of real estate brokers who pool the listings of their clients. The very nature of this trading makes necessary a high standard of honesty in their mutual dealings,

"When you 'multilist' your property you are taking advantage of a tested sales organization—the Long Beach Multiple Listing Service is the largest sales organization in the country. The Long Beach listing service is not a new, untried plan. Since 1923 it has demonstrated its service to both sellers and buyers of real estate, as shown in the following comparison:

Upon his return he borrowed the latter amount from his bank for deposit in his checking account so that his wife would not learn about his gambling losses.

Some loans result in surprises as one bank officer learned when he granted a loan to a man for a trip to Mexico—and he stayed there. Another bank discovered it had indirectly and unknow ingly financed an illegal operation when a young lady re quested a loan to "cover hospital expenses."

EVEN THOUGH some re quests for loans are unusual, bankers do not feel that instalment loans are especially hazardous. "Actually, making such loans is very similar to what a retail business does when it opens charge ac-counts for its customers," one loan officer put it. Bankers feel the borrower is frequently his own best judge of his ability to pay, "but just as some people cat, smoke or drink too much, so

She Sets the Style in Service to Others

ORDAINED MINISTER Bette Stillwell often fills in for husband, Capt. Bob Stillwell, during Sunday services at Salvation Army Citadel. During Sunday school she may give special presentation during preliminaries, substitute at piano or for absent teacher. Often in attendance are busloads of children from low-income housing areas who would not otherwise have church home.

... income is meager, rewards are great

By MARY ELLIS

Bette Stillwell is a pert lass who ignores the quirks of fame and fashion. She'll never have a change of hats. And her simple, understated suit will always be the same.

But she couldn't care less.

She's one of a hardy breed who can't be bothered with feminine frivolities. Instead, she's devoted her life to Christian with the country of t

Her blue serge suit, a Salvation Army original, has been copied by thousands of other gentle warriors in 86 countries.

And her traditional bonnet, first designed to ward off brickbats, bottles and other missiles flung by unfriendly crowds, is a badge of courage and devotion.

CAPTS. BETTE and Bob Stillwell, commanding officers of the local Salvation Army corps, donned their uniforms five years ago after completing officers training in San Francisco.

But these victories did not hold sufficient rewards for Bette and Bob Stillwell. They gave up their comfortable way of life to win followers for Christian

"THE REWARDS have been more gratifying than we ever dreamed possible," says the attractive brunette lass.

But the demands are great.
Like all Salvation officers, both are ordained ministers. They live in an Army-owned house (3745 Gaviota) with furnishings chosen by someone else.

Regardless of rank, together they can earn no more than $75 a week, out of which they tithe back to the church and support their family of four boys. (Officers can marry only within the service.)

In Army tradition, their children will grow up working for the cause and, as in any army, one or more probably will follow the family calling (as Bette and Rob did).

THE ARMY still preaches old-time religion. All officers must be ordained ministers, abstain from liquor and tobacco; most of them play one or more musical instruments. They are enormously cheerful

"Why should a Christian be gloomy?" asks Bette.

Bonnet Party Is May 29

To benefit the Salvation Army's building fund, the Women's Auxiliary will hold its second annual Bonnet Tea on May 29, 12:30 p.m., at the Elk's Club, 4101 E. Willow St.

A preview showing of fall fashions by California couturiers will be presented by Wilma Hastings in the club's main dining room. Special Hollywood guest will be Verna Felton, Hilda of TV's "December Bride." Hats will be by California milliner Buddy Hirsch, who will help commentate the show.

Tickets are available through the Citadel, 329 Locust Ave., and Mrs. Frank Salter, 3989 Lewis Avc., ticket chairman.

This is the Way I Heard It

By Iola Masterson I, P-T Women's Editor

FUNNY happenings of years ago-with some sentimental overtones, you can be sure—were part and par-cel of a party at Peg and Dr. "Lee" Leatart's last weekend. It brought together the old crowd of their Quarternion bridge group, which emerged from a Poly High sorority of the late '20s. What triggered the gettogether-two members, who have been away for 17 years, were in town.

On sentimental journey-via conversation

Also present to share pictures of children and grandchildren were Lois Vaughan and Ray Farrell, Dorothy Judy Klein and Ray Hazlet, Virginia and Luther Benedict, Hazel and Weldon Dalley, Mabel and Wilhur Stanley and Opal and Jack West. The gang wrote a round robin letter to another couple of "their own"— Katy and Adm. Charles Palmer, commanding officer of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Navy Yard currently. Bet that was some note!

EVERYTHING will be up for merry travel grabs this summer for Sue and Dr. Art Buell and Marian and "Dr. Tom Hardesty. The Buell's daughter, Sue, an Oxy student, is going on a collegian tour of Europe. Son, Ellet, has made up his head bone that he wants to go to a boy's summer camp in Arizona, Sooo, Mom and Pop decided this would be a grand time to fly off to Hawaii. The Hardestys are going with them-are husy making myriad plans for summer hither and thithers for their five children whilst gone.

WON'T BE too long before Marie and Dr. Edward Platz join the Messrs and Mmes. Jettison set, too. They will jet to Hawaii with children, Peggy, and Jim, on a first trip to Polynesia land for a two weeks but wot's he defending?

THE LOYAL PULLEY Invitational golf tourney for attorneys of town and their wives (it got its name by some inadvertent stunt pulled by Loyal when it was organized about four years ago, like failing to show up or forgetting to bring his clubs or somesuch) is going strong this weekend down there at Gilman Hot "Springs. Defending champion this year is Jack Grisham. Trouble is, I don't know what he's defending-a 92 or a 74. Probably the latter.

Woman's defending champ is Penny (Mrs. Henry)
Shriver and I assume Hank is doing some sort of defensive links logistics of his own.

👺 Ed Condon, chairman, is one of the few stray bachelors in the crowd. Others who head homeward this afternoon are the Sterling Claytons, Howard Sheltons, Bill Begans, Don Grishams, Blaine Simons and Bob Wenkes.

ADMITTING that they miss the old University Club crowd but also that things are looking very rosy, indeed, in their new Leisure World home are Irene and Everett Sawyer, Many advantages, Ev says about their 1571 Golden Rain Road address.

PUSSY-FOOTING over to Mildred Wing's (as her perky invitations suggested) netted a lot of women a purrfectly divine party morning Wednesday when she and daughter-in-law, Bev Wing, entertained at springtime brunch. They gambled on the weather, because it was indoor-outdoor, and the old sun came through like a public spirited slot machine.

Assisting during the sunny hours were Doris Wood, Artie Stevenson, Bee Hancock, Dorothy Dunlap, Helen Jones, Ethel Severson, Mary Lintz, Carleen Jaques and Betty Anne Kirkpatrick.

GOOD, OLD FRIENDS-meaning like really good long time buddies-Bea and "Monk" Dixon and 'Georgie" and Charlie Finnerty, now of Pasadena, are going to share their first trip to Hawaii late this month. In fact, in all their years of paldom, this will be the first major trip they've ever taken together.

ON HIGH, regularly, and loving it these days is Olivia Fettin, daughter of Monica Fettin, 3247 Lees Ave. She has completed Unit> a full-fledged airlines stewardess. Monica and Olivia's sister, Beverly, also an airlines stewardess, flew back to Chicago to see her graduation; then flew on for a European vacation, the house here being tended to, hand and foot, by relatives while gone. Monica will be home in a day or two. Beverly had to come back early to re-get-busy with her long jet hauls. She and her mother toured a lot of Europe before she had to come home, in a car they hired.

For the record, Olivia is serving aboard Mainliners, flying out of Detroit; is a grad of St. Anthony's and attended Long Beach City.

AN HONOR she wouldn't trade for a pocketful of rainbows came to Marie (Mrs. Chris) Graves, 3251 San Anseline, on Thursday. She was chosen as one of four Mothers of the Year by Immaculate Heart College, where her daughter, "Genie," is a senior (will graduate at age 20! and is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and universities.) One of the other mothers of the year is Mrs. Bob Hope.

Marie (she and Chris have seven children) was nominated by Genie's roommates. She is pictured with still-at-home tots, Glenda, 5, Margaret, 21/2.

A role she loves the very best.

UNDERSTATEMENT of the month was Borgny Baird's when queried about vacation plans. She said she was "having an interesting time," preparing for summer long travel in Europe. Interesting? Hah! Fadabulous, Wilson will join Borgny and the two children later in Copenhagen.

But Mrs. B. and the youngsters will travel with Betty and Carl Wulfberg and their four children (leaving the day school is out) by station wagon to New York. They sail June 19 on a Norwegian ship, Wilson and Borgny will visit relatives in Norway, after which the two families will tour (count it-10 in all) by Volkswagen bus which they'll buy over there.

Caroline and Bob Fox and Barbara and Phil Ver Planck are having a bon voyage for them and Nell Lees is planning a luncheon for Borgny.

Says Mrs. Dean Gilmore, president of the Auxiliary: "We started our auxiliary with the idea of telling the real story—which is a far cry from the preconceived idea of a handful of believers in serge uniforms blowing horns and beating drums on a street corner.

We have seen our own lives enriched as we grow to realize the all encompassing scope of the Army's deeds and help in carrying out its program of selfless service."

FOR THE Salvation Army, they have learned, is more than black kettles at Christmas time and red-piped uniforms, more than the cornet, the euphonium and tambourines.

This formidable Army is more than a religion. It's a service to mankind.

The religion is an offshot of John Wesley's evangelical Methodist movement, which swept England in the grimy days of the industrial revolution. It was in a bare Weslevan chapel in Nottingham in 1844 that an impoverished pawnbroker's apprentice knelt down at the age of 15 and promised that God should have "all there is of William Booth." The founder became a Methodist minister, then a free-lance evangelist in London's East End.

He set up headquarters in tents, a woodshed, a saloon.

He was a compelling preacher. His army of followers—often derelicts, dance hall girls, station-house tramps—grew by leaps and bounds. When editing a report, Booth wrote in the phrase, "a salvation army." The name stuck; the uniforms and Army title followed.

From his work in the slums, Booth had formed clear ideas. One, that the poor and the downtrodden could not feel at home in a regular church-hence the open-air meetings, the cheerful brass

Another, that preaching the gospel to a starving man is foolish. He took any man who came to him. If the man was hungry, Booth gave him food; if he was homeless, Booth provided shelter.

HENCE, the present - day, two - fold program of social service and religion. Bette, who takes her ministerial duties seriously, often delivers the sermon during Sunday morning services at the Citadel, 329 Locust Ave.

Old men shuffle in as the music starts , eager army singers exhort strayed sheep to return to the fold. Many in the congregation are regular members who were rehabilitated through the Army program, some are well-dressed board members and church workers, others are so poorly clothed they would not feel at home in other churches.

Sunday evening still finds the Salvation Army hand on the corner of Fourth and Pine, conducting open-air services for those who would otherwise hear nothing of the gospel on the Sabbath,

"And when you see the looks on the faces of lost souls who come for help who needs a new hat," says Bette.

Command as Chef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

The fact that Chef of the Weck, Capt, William F. Tanner Jr., did take a couple of gasps for a second wind, following graduation and before becoming airborne, is immaterial.

That he headed in the right direction is evidenced by the fact that he has two Distinguished Flying Medals and a Purple Heart to show for his decision.

Also, he now commands the largest of 18 U.S. Naval Air Stations in the United States, assigned to reserve training. Located in Los Alamitos, the base numbers 1,000 permanent members and 3,500 reservists.

Tanner was born in Chicago, but didn't tarry long. After a slight detour through Cleveland, his parents, he, and his three brothers arrived in San Pedro when he was only four. Grammar, junior and senior high schools all were mastered in San Pedro before he enrolled at USC. He graduated with a BS degree in business administration,

WHILE IN high school, he "captained" the football team and presided over the student body. Tanner played varsity baseball for three years, and then signed with the old St. Louis Browns. A shoulder injury terminated his batting prowess.

Upon graduation, Tanner, joined the Naval Air Corps and was sent to Pensacola, Fla., as an aviation cadet. His first honor came in the form of a gold star for heroism as pilot of an aircraft prior to Pearl Harbor. In 1942 he was sent with a squadron to England.

While Tanner saw action in both the Atlantic and Pacific Theaters during World War II, his Purple Heart was earned during a flying mission out of England Attacked by 12 German advance planes, he was shot down. He spent the next 24 hours in a rubber life raft, before being picked up by a British destroyer.

Returning to the States at the close of the war, Tanner was sent to Industrial College of Armed Forces, a canny feel for sports (just senior officers training any sport); and with the school, in Washington, D.C. Since then, he has served as assistant to Chief of Staff of Logistics, and was second in command to Chief of the Pacific Fleet in Honolulu, Prior to his present assignment, Tanner was in command of two patrol squadrons of 250

Q. Is it true that Federico Fellini will divorce his wife to marry Anita Ekberg?—Lois Haldemann, Cleveland, Ohio.

A. Anita Ekberg was recently married in Switzerland to an American film bit-player, Rick Van Nutter, from Pomona, Calif.

Q. Why aren't the American people told the truth about President Kennedy's illness? Isn't it a fact that his aching back has practically crippled him? —P. L., Coronado, Calif.

A. He is not crippled. Extraordinary precautions are constantly taken to protect his weak back. Frequently, for example, he wears a small corset or girdle. When he travels, a special horsehair mattress is sent along so that he can have a night of comfortable sleep. He also has a specially built leather seat which lends support to his lower spine. The truth is that the President must baby his back, keep his muscles strong and supple, which is why he tries to get in a few minutes of swimming each day in the White House pool, which is heated to about 90 degrees. Two years ago in Ottawa, when he bent down to shovel some dirt, he hurt his back, had to go around on crutches, submit to the moist pack treatment.

Q. Who is the richest woman in Great Britain after the Queen? — Leona Richardson, Fairfield, Conn.

A. Probably the Countess of Scafield, who owns 800 square miles of Scotland, including 10 towns, 3 castles.

Q. Recently I saw the movie, Nine Hours to Rama, about the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi. In the movie Gandhi blesses Naturam Godse, the man who shot him. Is this true or fictional?—Al Weisler, Chicago, Ill.

A. It is fictional. When Gandhi was shot, he died almost instantly. He muttered only two words, "He, Ram!" (Oh, God!) The film is a distortion of history.

Q. What's happened to writer Dorothy Parker, and how old is she? — Nord Brecklin, Miami, Fla.

A. Dorothy Parker, 69, teaches literature at Los Angeles State College.

Q. Why has former Vice-President Richard Nixon signed to write a series of articles for The Saturday Evening Post?—G. Y., Whittier, Calif. A. One reason: money.

Q. What is the true scan on the Vince Edwards Juliet Prowse romance?—Adrian Bronston, Jean, Nev.

A. They started dating when both were working in Las Vegas.

Q. Would you kindly tell me the names of the wices of the late Tyrone Power? Where are they now, and what are they doing? — Alice Richmond, Denver, Colo. A. Annabella resides in Paris, Linda Christian is playing the field in Hallywood. Debbie Minardos is also playing the field.

Q. What I cannot understand is how someone like singer Dorothy Dandridge, who earns more than $100,000 a year, can now be bankrupt. Will you please explain?—Kenneth Yorkes, Toronto.

A. Miss Dandridge has spent more than she earned.

Q. Jane Powell and her husband Pat Nerney have separated, which is par for Hollywood marriages. How many children are involved?—L. T., Phoenix, Ariz.

A. The Nerneys have a daughter, Lindsey, 7. Miss

Powell has 2 children by a previous marriage to Geary Steffen. Nerney has a daughter by a previous marriage to actress Mona Freeman.

Q. Is it true that a liquor license is impossible to obtain in New York State without a pay-off to the "right" politicians?—M. P., Buffalo, N. Y.

A. There have been irregularities in the issuance of such licenses, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller has undertaken to investigate and correct the scandalous conditions pertaining thereto.

Q. Who is the Israeli secret service chief who engineered the capture of Adolf Eichmann and recently tried to have killed the German scientists working in Egypt?—F. L., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A. Iser Helperin was in charge of the Israeli secret service when Eichmann was captured. He was also in charge when attempts were made via explosives on the lives of German scientists working for the Egyptian government. He recently resigned.

Q. How good are the chances of Vice-President Lyndon Johnson running for the Presidency in 1968? — George Hunt, Dallas, Tex.
A. Pretty good.

Startling view of Moscow on fire created for TV by smoke bombs and smudge pots autside Kremlin.

Moscow burns again

M OSCOW WENT UP IN FLAMES for three hours in the middle of the night—or so thousands of Russians thought recently.

The fire, which started at 3 a.m., was set on purpose—and by Russians—with the full permission of a dozen Soviet committees, right outside the Kremlin wall. The pyrotechnists were simulating the view that confronted Napoleon when he entered Moscow on September 14, 1812, during the French invasion of Russia.

The scene is part of the history of the Kremlin which NBC filmed in Moscow. The hour-long spectacular will be seen from coast to coast this Tuesday, May 21, at 9:30 p.m. on both East and West coasts and at 8:30 p.m. in Central states, local time.

This particular aspect of Russian history was most difficult to film. It required months of negotiations with Soviet officials, technical preparation and clearance before anybody could light a match. Lucy Jarvis, co-producer of the show, explained that on the day it was shot, NBC warned everybody about the fire.

"We told the fire chief, the police chief and everybody we could that we were going to fire Moscow. Nevertheless, when we started the fires and smudge pots and turned on the colored lights, everybody who should have been sleeping was up calling the fire departments and the police. Fire trucks screamed into the Kremlin area and we had to argue with them not to put out the flames."

The hour-long spectacular traces the history of the Kremlin from the time it was built as a protective wall around the small community of Moscow in 1156 to the present.

The NBC group is the first foreign film company to do a comprehensive tour of the Kremlin. Viewers who have color television sets can see in full color the throne room of Ivan the Terrible, the interior of Uspensky Cathedral, the costumes, crests, crowns of Russian Tzars—and actual furniture used during their reigns. The film also shows for the first time Lenin's living quarters, the Hall of the Supreme Soviet, the Council of Ministers and all the interiors of private chapels belonging to the Russian royalty.

Federal agents prepare to

WASHINGTON, D.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

NOT SINCE THE BREAKUP of Murder, Inc., have gangland killings been so rampant in our big cities. Federal agents, teamed up in Attorney General Robert Kennedy's war on organized crime, have uncovered evidence that will soon burst into the headlines and appall the nation.

It is a rare month that some notorious underworld figure doesn't turn up mysteriously murdered in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh or Los Angeles.

These unsolved slayings are almost entirely the work of underworld executioners, men so skilled in their grisly profession they rarely ever make a police

To the proliferation of corpses must be added an even greater number of underworld "disappearances." Typical is the case of New York's Anthony Strollo, identified in federal files as "one of the most powerful racketeers in the U.S.," who vanished a year ago. Agents have little reason to doubt the underworld whispers that he was killed and dumped into the Hackensack River in New Jersey.

In gang slayings, arrests are rare; even rarer are convictions. Yet the amazing fact is that most of the murderers are known; a federal agent confided to PARADE that he knows one man, still walking free, who has been responsible for 32 "hits" (the underworld euphemism for killings). The agent has heard of others, longer in the trade of death, who have notched up as many as 50 murders. "These men kill," he says, "as casually as you would swat a fly."

They are not casual, however, in their methods. They may study a victim for weeks before they "hit" him with gun, knife or bomb. Though some are more skilled than others, they seldom leave any clues at the scenes of their gruesome work.

Faces on File

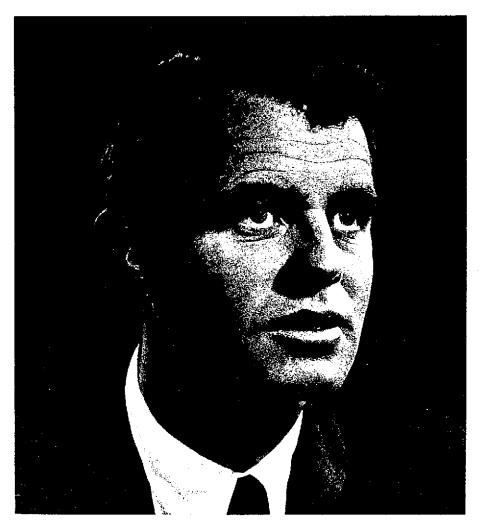

PARADE has leafed through the confidential mug files of men who literally have been getting away with murder. For lack of evidence that would convict them in court, they can be classified only as "suspects." Therefore their full names cannot be given.

But a few nicknames and brief descriptions will serve to draw a composite of the men who live by murder. It is an extraordinary fact that most are over middle age, some in their 60's. In the main, they are auict-mannered, soft-spoken, well-dressed. Some are alumni of Murder, Inc., who escaped prosecution and eventually resumed their chosen profession.

Typical are "Dandy Jack," at 64 a dean of death dealers, who left Murder, Inc., in Brooklyn to become a labor racketeer around Hazleton, Pa.; "Blah Blah," 53, stocky and balding, a much-feared New York strong-arm man; "Willie Potatoes," 50, a Chicago free-lance killer, with a reputation as a torturer; "Cockeyed Phil," 55, pint-sized, sallow-faced, with a crossed left eye, who is known in the New York underworld for his violence.

The younger killers, in the new style of gangland, favor by League style and deportment. Among them are the brothers "Cirino," natty, coldly suave, and "Benny the Cringe," his face marked with acne, who are partners in murder for the New York mob; "Joe the Blond," 34, slim, neat, ruggedly handsome, with cold blue eyes, known as a ruthless enforcer in the Flatbush area of Brooklyn.

Leading the crackdown is Bill Hundley (above), bass of Justice Department's organized-crime section. His task: Find witnesses brave enough to talk about the killers-for-hire.

Mobsters' biggest foe (left) is Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who has sworn vengeance on organized crime. His men are now ready to move against gangland's executioners.

smash a new murder ring

Vic.—"A rapidly rising young hoodlum who has gained a reputation as a triggerman for the underworld in New York City. Though it is known that he has been involved in gangland killings, he has avoided prosecution largely through the standard expedient of removing witnesess by one method or another."

Tony—"Noted more for brawn than brains and is called on to carry out strong-arm assignments in Cleveland area."

Swimmy—"Known strong-arm man and enforcer for the Mafia in the Pittston area."

Nuncio—"Acts as muscle for the Mafia in the Los Angeles area. In 1950, was arrested for narcotics violation but was not prosecuted due to the murder of chief government witness."

Lenny—"A professional killer. Is believed to have been the finger man in the assassination of Mike deJohn at San Francisco in 1948."

Blackie—"Known as the enforcer for the Smaldone Brothers. Has a tough reputation among the Italian element in Colorado."

Today's gang killings are not so raw as they were when Al Capone's reign of terror in Chicago was climaxed by the notorious St. Valentine's Day Massacre in 1929. The age of the "pineapple" tossed into a speak-easy, of the speeding black car and blasting tommy gun is over. The underworld has learned to shun the headlines; a professional killing today is accomplished quietly and expertly.

Chicago, for example, has a murder council of four leading mobsters who are responsible for pronouncing death sentences. They have a staff of 13 executioners, all well known to the Chicago police. When an underworld character gets out of line—welching, cheating, squealing, having ambitions beyond his station—the council meets like a Supreme Court to decide his fate.

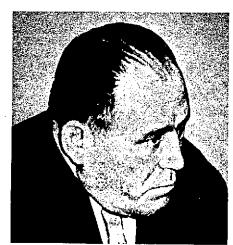

Once the verdict to "hit him" has been handed down, only in exceptional cases have there been reprieves. It is a Mafia tradition that a man marked for death should receive a gift of white roses as a warning of his fate. These may be sent to him, or he may receive the gift symbolically in the form of a whispered message mentioning white roses.

One man who got a white rose warning went to his friends and pleaded with them in tears, and on his knees, that he had been wrongfully accused. The friends succeeded at the last minute in persuading the council to reverse its decision.

The white rose gesture, though it may seem flamboyant, serves a highly practical purpose. It usually isolates a man from any help he may hope to get. Eyes go blank, ears deaf, faces stony, hideouts closed. He becomes a man alone, scurrying down one dark alley after another with killers stalking him.

Sometimes the killers with grisly goodwill may invite the victim for a night on the town. If he is lucky, he will get a quick ride to some remote spot and a clean, swift bullet or knife thrust. If he is to be made an example, he may be slowly tortured to death. The word of his fate will get around. Men have been dumped into tubs of cement, given drinks and cigarettes while it hardened, then dropped into a river or lake still alive.

Contrary to general belief, the cost of underworld murder does not come high. Sometimes it is done free, as a favor for a friend, us a gesture by a young man eager to get ahead in the rackets, or by a man on the run to pay for his hideout. The fee most often heard is $100. But the execution of an important hoodlum, one who has his own bodyguards, might cost as high as $10,000.

Gangland victim, "Cadillac Charlie" Cavaloro, was murdered by hired thugs who placed bomb in his car. Bomb also killed one son, 11, and crippled another.

Strange disappearance of rackeleer Anthony Strollo a year ago still baffles authorities. They assume he was "hit" by gangland killers, dumped in New Jersey river.

But when the time comes, he will be "hit." Nothing will stand in the way of the sentence, not even the lives of innocent people.

Take the case of Charles Cavalaro, a Youngstown, Ohio, racketeer, who was known as "Cadillac Charlie" because of his taste for expensive cars. He was blown to eternity outside his home when he switched on the ignition of his automobile. Along with him died his son Tommy, 11. An older son, Chuckie, 12, had his left hip torn off and was crippled for life. Ironically, Cavalaro did not die in the car that gave him his nickname. He was blown up in a 1956 Ford. The murder remains a mystery. Even Mrs. Cavalaro, in her grief, would not talk.

Summit Conference

The underworld bosses are worried, almost as much as the police chiefs, by the new rise in gang murders. It signifies a collapse in their authority, dating back to the 1957 "summit conference" at Apalachin, N. Y., when the nation's top mobsters got together to plan policy. They rolled up in big luxury ears, flashed huge rolls of greenbacks, and otherwise made themselves conspicuous in this out-of-the-way spot. Later they were rounded up pretty much by one lone state trooper. Some tried to flee through the woods but were picked up, their expensively tailored suits snagged by brambles and burrs.

This display of panic and folly made a bad impression on the rank-and-file gang members. One small-time mobster told a federal agent: "If we had done that. . . ." Then, expressively, he drew his fingers across his throat. The young racketeer made it clear that he had less confidence in a high command he no longer respected.

To add to the breakdown in underworld discipline, Bob Kennedy's racketbusters have kept the top gangsters under such close surveillance that they haven't been able to hold any more Apalachin-style meetings. They have gathered a few times at Hot Springs, Miami, and, most recently, Acapulco, Mexico. But they were so nervous about the federal watchdogs that the best they could manage was a few fleeting exchanges on the golf course or on a veranda over drinks.

Result: Underworld disputes are no longer being settled around a conference table. Ambitious young men, coming up in the rackets, are grabbing new territory. In this clash of ambitions, the enforcers or "hit men," the specialists in assassination, are getting more "contracts" to kill.

The Justice Department's organized crime section, headed by young, clean-cut Bill Hundley, has been putting together the story of muscle and murder from the reports of 24 federal enforcement agencies. It adds up to a picture of underworld savagery that makes the wildest TV blood chiller seem fare for tiny tots: the truth is more terrifying than any fiction.

Some killers-for-hire have been jailed on other charges. A few have been persuaded to defy the Matia code of omerta—silence or death—and talk to Hundley's men. In exchange for their information, they have been guaranteed protection. Two or three have been given whole new identities, so they may escape the implacable vengeance of the gangs. Planted informants are also passing out information from inside the murder rings.

Hundley is preparing his case against the murder profession. His biggest problem: Finding witnesses who will dare to testify in court. Yet a crackdown is coming; it is only a matter of time.

variable has also talked to police chiefs in major crime areas across the country. Their answer is always the same. They need more money, more honest men. With its billions from crime, the underworld is often better financed and equipped than local police forces. It can afford smart lawyers, and to buy the latest weapons. It even has its own electronics experts.

Murder, Inc., was bad enough. But Murder 1963 is big business indeed.

THE BIG SLEEVE

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

THE ROMANTIC VISION of lovely girls in summer frocks will be enhanced this season with the return of the sleeved dress.

There's nothing that makes a woman feel more feminine than a loosely draped sleeve softly caressing her arm. This year women can count on fashion to make them feel more romantic.

Summer styles will feature a wide range of sleeves from the cuffed shirtwaist type to the ballooning puff. Fashions shown are a happy change from the stark sleeveless look we have had in the past few seasons.

Designer Anne Klein, the favorite of young sophisticates, does a variation on the long sleeve. She finishes it at the wrist with a ruffle to match the one draped around the neckline of a daring white crepe skimmer. John Weitz, on the other hand, designs a full draped sleeve that flutters in the breeze. While New York designers are making pretty, soft additions to the simmer wardrobe, Paris creators are extending shoulders and widening tops of sleeves. It's all a pretty plot.

For further information on these fashions, write to Virginia Pope, Fashion Editor, Parade, 733 Third Ave., New York 17. N.Y. Please name this newspaper and be sure to enclose a self-addressed envelope.

Puffed sleeves on a simple red and white striped dress give the wearer a charming youthful appearance. Puffs balloon out from a deep cuff just below the elbow. Made in a silk and cotton blend, the dress features a waistline raised at the front and accented by a tailored bow belt in red. Red buttons decorate bodice, cuffs. By N S Petites. $40.

Ruffles at the wrist give this slinky crepe sleeve the witchery it deserves. The dress, a willowy number in snowy white crepe, is designed so the lines follow the curves of the body in the new skimmer manner. Anne Klein, the creator, who concentrates on young fashions, adds a cascade of ruffles descending from throat to waistline. The result is a new slender sheath that's full of glamour and enchantment. Jr. Sophisticates. About $50.

Push up sleeves to flowing fullness on this romantic dress (l.) and you're sure to make someone's heart beat faster. The dress is in striking white and black polka-dotted rayon crepe. Cut on soft lines it falls from the shoulders and is cinched at the waist by a patent leather helt. Sleeves can be worn halfway above the wrist or pushed up to create a popower effect. Designed by John Weitz for Andrea A, the dress is for young sophisticates. $40.

PARADE OF PROGRESS

by PETER DRYDEN

Movies in your pocket: You can carry a new 8-mm camera in purse or pocket—and take movies without worrying about focusing, adjusting lens opening or winding the motor. About the size of a paperback book, the battery-operated camera has universal focus, an electric-eye control to adjust lens opening auto-tomatically without need for a light meter, an electric motor to eliminate manual rewinding. Reflex viewing (directly through lens) shows you a subject exactly as the lens will photograph it. Details: Revere Camera, Dept. PP, 2501 Hudson Road, St. Paul 19, Minn.

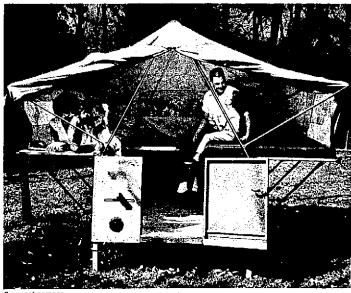

Spray your oven clean: A new acrosol preparation produces a white foam that allows you to clean an oven in 10 minutes — and without need for rubber gloves. It's said to be almost as bland as water so it can't burn skin, injure fabries, metals or floor coverings. 16 oz.: $1.50. Oven-loy, Dept. PP, 14934 Telegraph Rd., Detroit 39, Mich.

Compact camper: Here's a camper (helow) that measures 6 feet 8 inches in length and only 5 feet in width when closed—yet opens to 10-foot width to provide sleeping space for a family of 4 or 5. It also has a built-in kitchen that includes 35-lb. capacity iccbox, water pump, 5-gal. water tank, steel sink, space for camp stove. Camper weighs 705 lb., can be towed by small car. Details: Right Products, Dept. PP, 213 Dunn St., Cincinnati 15, O.

Outboard jet: Now comes an outboard motor that propels your boat without a propeller—by means of a jet stream shot out behind. You can turn full speed in the boat's own length by swinging the tiller without need for using rudder or baffle—and back up by reversing the jet spout 180 degrees. The unit does not prutrude below the hull, will not snag or hit underwater obstructions. It also reduces draft so the boat can travel in very shallow water. 5½ bp; 57 lb. Details: Outboard Jet, Dept. PP, 226 N. Pine, Indianapolis 2, Ind.

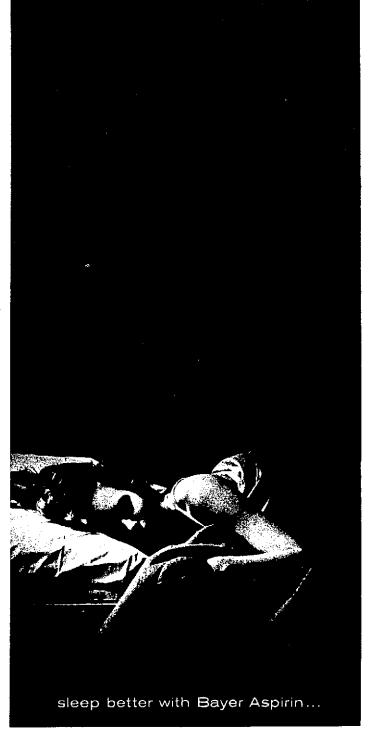

Snap-fold rain cape: A new light-weight, transparent plastic cape for both men and women fits in a carrying pouch small enough to go in handbag, briefcase, coat pocket, fishing tackle box or car glove compartment. It opens to 5' x 5' and snaps right back into permanent folds when you give it a gentle pull after you've finished wearing it. $1. Instant-Fold Products, Dept. PP, I Park Ave., New York 16, N. Y.

Versatile marker: New idea in felt-tip marking pens is one that is bex-shaped like a pencil for better grip. The six sides provide six different line widths so you can make anything from a fine to broad line by turning from one side to another. Ink is instant-drying, waterproof. In 8 colors. 59¢. HATS FULL OF HOPE

HOLLYWOOD.

BOB HOPE, who will be 60 on May 29, is one of the most successful, wealthiest, best-loved comedians in the history of show business.

There are several reasons for this:

- 1 The fifth of seven sons of an unemployed stonemason, Hope was born poor outside London and raised in poverty inside Cleveland. As with many poor boys, the poverty inspired in him ambition, industry, indefatigable energy.
- 2 Hope is shrewd and possesses a fine financial brain. When he first came to Hollywood more than 25 years ago, he began buying up real estate. Today he is recognized as one of the major landholders in California with property minimally valued at $25,000,000.
- 3 Over the years Bob has developed into the sharpest judge of comedy material in the business. As soon as he could afford them, he hired a battery of comedy writers. From time to time he employs from 4 to 12 scribes, selects their jokes with taste and discrimination.
- 4 Unlike many comies, he hates no one, so antagonism has never embittered his keen sense of humor, his friendly personality.
- 5 There is no angle of comedy he is not conversant with, no trick, device or gimmick he has not tried. He knows, for example, that a funny hat on a familiar face will practically always arouse much audience laughter That's why in the past two seasons of Bob Hope TV specials he has worn such surefire, smile-provoking hats as illustrated here.

SOMETHING NEW IN SOUTH AMERICA

by ED KIESTER

SANTIAGO, CHILE.

ATEST EXPORT of the U.S. to this Latin-American republic are nine men with business suits, pleasant manners and sharp, unyielding minds.

They are tax collectors. These boys from the United States Internal Revenue Service have been operating here for the last two years. Their mission: to teach their Chilean counterparts the secret of how to part a taxpayer from his money. And so far, to the despair of shocked and reluctant Chileans, they have been wildly successful.

Since the Americans came, tax collections here have increased between $30 and $50 million a year. They are expected to jump twice that next year. But increased revenue is only part of the story. The Americans have helped close loopholes, modernize procedures and crack down on chiselers. And, to the wonder of all Chile, they have taken 2 persons to court, have 2 others awaiting trial and are investigating an additional 50.

The Good Old Days

All this is a far cry from the way things used to be here. In the entire country—in fact, in all Latin America—no one, but no one, had ever heen tried for tax fraud. In whole regions of Chile, not a single person ever had filed an income tax return.

In a classic case, a man purchased a valuable business property in Santiago, the capital, for $300,000 in cash. The transaction brought him to the attention of authorities, who found he never had paid taxes. Asked about it, the man protested, "Why, I've never earned crough money to pay taxes."

Furthermore, those who dodged the tax collectors usually managed to avoid paying a penalty. The law assessed penalties, fines and interest for overdue taxes—but every two years Chile's congress passed a law "forgiving" them.

To us, revolutionizing this taxless paradise may not sound very neighborly, but it is actually (according to the

were being properly enforced. The income tax schedule is not really so much below ours. But collections have not been made, good administration has not been followed. It may be that sound administration is as important as new law."

When Nowak first came here in 1961—at the personal request of Eduardo Urzua Merino, the Chilean director of internal revenue, whom he had once shepherded around the Manhattan IRS office—administration of the tax laws was anything but good.

Taxes were being withheld from the wages of factory workers; other Chileans were filing regular returns, but few of the returns were being audited. Collectors, inspectors and clerks were untrained.

Underpaid agents held second jobs—sometimes for the very persons whose taxes they were supposed to check during the day. Most complicated of all, no one had ever written down all the Chilean tax rules, procedures and regulations in one place. Most agents carried them around in their heads.

Nowak started off with a drastic program. Aided by a revolving staff of American specialists plus 85 full-time Chilean instructors, he set up a training program, wangled a 50 per cent pay boost, had the offices redecorated and refurbished, put a crash crew to work drawing up a Chilean tax code.

More important, he showed the average Chilean taxpayer that the agents meant business. He hand-picked 50 men form intelligence division, trained them in such things as how to eavesdrop, shadow a suspect, use a hidden mike. Then—after passing the word that informers would be rewarded—he turned them loose on tax frauds.

Bathing Suit Fraud

Result: the golden age of Chilean tax-dodging came to an abrupt halt. The fraud team suddenly pounced on the office of a bathing suit manufacturer and confiscated its records. Then they charged that the firm had falsified invoices, made up phony purchase orders and doctored accounts to make their profits look small. They also made certain that the case—first of its kind on the continent—got wide publicity when it went to court.

The chief of the division, Jorge Varela, then let the word out that his office was investigating 40 or 50 more cases. He also said auditing would be increased fivefold—and that, in the U.S. tradition, the agents would concentrate on returns from the higher income brackets.

As a result of all this, there is today a new attitude about taxpaying in Chile—and it's one that most Americans would recognize. Reluctantly, many taxpayers are beginning to file returns for the first time—and honest ones at that. Among the 2,800 agents, there is a new zeal and a new esprit de corps. Nowak's job isn't over, but he is looking forward to going home.

"All we wanted to do was make them independent," he says—"set up a professional service and enable them to get the absolute most they were entitled to. That's what we're getting in Chile. Soon it'll be just as tough on tax cheats as the States."

tax men) being done for our benefit. Under President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program for Latin America, the U.S. agrees to give aid to those countries which show willingness to help themselves.

But Uncle Sam sees no reason to shell out U.S. taxpayers' money when Latin-America's home-grown taxpayers go scot-free. Accordingly, to qualify for funds, a nation must first institute tax reforms. Chile is the first to do so.

Actually, Uncle Sam would like to see the Chileans go even further. Eighty per cent of tax money here comes from sales taxes and import duties—levies which fall hardest on people least able to pay. The U.S. would like in see income tax rates changed to squeeze more out of upper-bracket incomes. Chile's congress is now debating such a step. Meanwhile, the problem is to collect the maximum under existing laws.

Says Norman D. Nowak, the thickset, energetic New Yorker who heads the nine-man advisory group in Santiago: "The present system would not seem so inequitable if it

by ALLAN SHERMAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Allan Sherman, short, stubby, talented Chicagoan in his early 40s, is the star of two hest-selling record albums, My Son, the Folk Singer and My Son, the Celebrity. Originally Sherman was a writer who studied his craft at the University of Illinois journalism school. His ability with words and gags got him jobs writing skits for Jackie Gleason, Joe E. Lewis and other comics. In 1951 he helped dream up a TV quiz show, I've Got a Secret, and was hired as its producer at $150 a week. To calm his aggravation and frustration at being underpaid, he began to entertain at parties, singing parodies of popular sougs. At several such gatherings he was heard by Harpo Marx, Jack Benny and George Burns, all of whom thought him riotously funny. Whereupon Allan cut a record of his paradies, and presto-he became a show husiness sensation overnight.

My brother-in-law is a hypochondriae. He said he felt so weak one day that he couldn't fight his way out of a paper bag. I told him not to worry—after all, how many people get caught in a paper bag?

I told my boy I hoped he would get out of the 8th grade this year—but he says he's being held over again by popular demand.

My three little nephews were sitting on the curb, each with a picture in his hand. So I asked the first little boy, who was holding a picture of John Glenn, what he would like to be. "An astronaut," was the reply. Then I asked the second boy, who was holding a picture of Roy Rogers, what he wanted to be, and he answered: "A cowboy." The third little boy was holding a picture of Jane Russell, and this puzzled me. I said, "And what would you like to be?" He looked at me solemnly and said, "Your age."

I knew a girl once who reminded me of Venus de Milo—very beautiful, but not all there.

Anxious to Cash in on his video fame, the star of a medical TV series recently opened in Las Vegas in a night-club act. There isn't too much this fellow can do on stage—his singing voice is just fair—but the opening-night audience was pleasant and gave him a polite hand. As his act ended, however, two men in the audience jumped to their fect, started cheering and applauding wildly. First-nighters looked at each other in surprise. The act just wasn't that good. The pause that refreshes: Taking a breather as well as taking in a sweeping view of the Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor basin, highway division engineers Bob Bateman and John Poppe pause during an inspection tour of the Vincent Thomas Bridge, Iron workers and engineers busy on the huge project were wearing self - satisfied smirks when the New Frontier hiking fad was at its zenith, for they were making the climb up and down the 330-foot-high tower several times daily, either on the undulating catwalk or afoot on the suspension bridge. (Photographer Roger Coar used the climb as a warm-up for an insurance physical later in the day.) More about the big bridge on Page 7.

Coffee grinder, "sadiron," heavy iron kettle and an assortment of kitchen "labor savers" are shown here.

By Helen L. Gillum

A LONG BEACH housewife recently complained that her three-year-old electric can-opener was already "oldfashioned," because it lacked the knife-sharpener found on many of the newer models!

She and many other persons might enjoy a visit into "kitchens of the past" by way of Rancho Los Cerritos, the former home of the pioneer Bixby family at 4600 Virginia Road, now Long Beach's Historical Museum, Here, on a display table in the dining room of the old adobe structure, is a comprehensive collection of iron kitchen gadgets, great gran ma style. They tell a sto / of times when a housewile not only would have shud ered at the thought of preparing a meal from a tin can or two hut she and her family considered "home - canned" fruits and vegetables to be the rule of the day--along with home-cured meat and break baked in the big kitchen range. In fact, the young bride who started housekeeping with "modern appliances" that ground coffee, peeled and sliced apples, and pitted cherries, probably counted herself lucky. Nor did she ever dream of flushing the parings down the drain through an electric disposal

ALTHOUGH most of the cast-iron objects on display here were not originally used by the Bixby family, they are, according to Bill Evans Jr., curator at the Rancho, representative of that era of the 1860s and '70s, when the Rancho was occupied by the Bixbys. There are three apple peelers equipped with small, razor-sharp knives and sharp prongs for impaling the apples. Two cherry pitters, an apple slicer, and gear-driven beater work almost as smoothly as when they were made 100 years ago. A coffee mill, sausage grinder and an old "sadiron"—the kind that was heated on the wood-burning cookstove - might bring reminiscent groams from Grandmother, and amused chuckles from Mrs. Modern Housewife

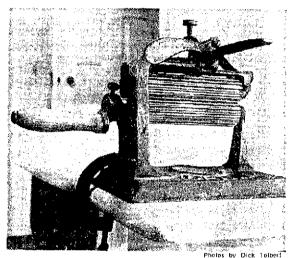

One dandy little contrap-tion — "The Original Knox Fluter," patented Nov. 20, 1866, is enough to make a homemaker today throw up her hands in horror. This elegant thingamabob, designed for pressing ruffles and frills, a six-inch ribbed roller, and the base of the machine was clamped to the table to insure stability as the operator wielded a hefty crank. A smaller "Geneva Handy Fluter" has a crescent-shaped ridged bottom that rolls over a grooved base to flute the material into ruffles. This may have been used on baby clothes or, perhaps, as a "practice iron" for little

TWO HEAVY, cast iron muffin "tins" are known to have come from the Bixby family. Two heavy black gridules may not be so oldfashioned as they seem since many such griddles, handed down through families, are still used today because of the excellent pancakes they bake. But the cumbersome iron teakettle, two-gallon capacity, 10 inches in diameter and 8 inches high, is best left sitting on its trivet!

In addition to the iron gadgetry, Rancho Los Cerritos features many other interesting old-time furnishings. It open from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays. Evans, or a friendly docent (voluntary guide), will take visitors, free of charge, back across the years to when men were men, and strong-armed housewives powered the kitchen appliances with a song on their lips-and perhaps a liniment bottle within easy reach on a nearby shelf!

Designed to press ruffles and frills, this "Original Knox Fluter" survivas an early era of home devices.

He Carves Dream Castles

By Betty Hardesty and rock stand seven feet bigh.

WILDING dream castle after dream castle is a way of life for Louis Lagler of 925 Locust Ave. His castles are his own personal designs which often change with his fancy as they are constructed of plaster of Paris, brick, wood and even bone.

The castle of which Lagler is most proud awaits admirers at his hobby-shop, 763 Loma Vista Dr. Its shining gold paint sets off the medieval beauty of its towers and spires, carved windows and turrets. Standing on a 21/2 foot table, the four-foot castle the hill to the main entrance flanked by corner towers. One taller tower adds accent to the massive structure of plaster of Paris. Molded over shaped tin, the towers may be dismantled into three sections held in place by wooden pegs, Langler found this method convenient for making small parts such as dormer windows as well as for moving the 400pound castle. It costs him $20 each time he takes it anywhere, he says,

The surprising part of the method is that each decoration, window and stone has been carved by hand from a smooth mold of the desired form and size

Vincent Thomas bridge, Southland's greatest . . .

'The Angel's Gate'

By Lou Jobst

SAN FRANCISCO'S world-famed bay bridges will soon have a Southern California rival, a modern green giant straddling the main enchannel of booming Los Angeles Harbor.

Named the Vincent Thomas Bridge for the waterfront lawmaker who made it a reality and built at a cost of $24 million, the Southland span will connect the heart of the nation's third largest port complex, Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbors, with any point in the megalopolis.

The bridge will be dedicated Saturday, Sept. 28, during the annual Los Angeles Harbor Fisherman's Fiesta.

The four-lane roadway will rise 185 feet above the water surface from San Pedro, dropping at a 6 per cent grade to Terminal Island.

Aithough smaller than her sisters in the north, the monumental Oakland Bay Bridge and the majestic Golden Gate, the 6,060-foot Thomas Bridge is more modern in many ways and will write a number of new pages in the record books.

ALREADY nicknamed the "Green Gate" for the iridescent green coat of paint it will wear when completed, the Thomas Bridge will be the greatest bridge in Southern California history and the first in the world built entirely on piling, an engineering feat many experts called "impossible."

H is also the first suspension span ever to be erected in the Southland and the first bridge ever built anywhere entirely without rivets.

The Thomas Bridge has gone up faster, nearly four months ahead of the anticipated building schedule, and with a better safety record than ei-ther the Golden Gate or Oakland

Eleven men died alone during the construction of the Golden Gate and another 19 miraculously survived plunges from the 200-foot-high struc-

One man has been killed on the Thomas Bridge project.

J. M. CURRAN of Long Beach, senior bridge engineer on the project and veteran of the building of the Oakland span, credits experience learned on the Northern California jobs as one of the factors in making the Southland project "to this point, such a successful undertaking."

Curran says he expects the bridge will be opened to traffic in October. It was originally scheduled for completion in January or February, 1964.

The engineer also credits the fact the bridge was pre-assembled at the steel plants and then trucked to the harbor and put into place by following the biueprints as partly responsible for the speedy erection.

The logistics of the enterprise, begun in late 1961, are overwhelming.
To build the massive footings 228

prestressed concrete piles were sunk into the earth, using 100,000 lineal feet of steel piling and 46,000 cubic yards of concrete.

THE MAIN anchor footings, located both on the mainland and Terminal Island, reach nearly 50 feet under-

To build the steel frame and the 365-foot-high twin towers, 6.2 million pounds of reinforcing steel and 22 million pounds of structural steel, all pre-welded, were hauled in, lifted up and bolted into place.

Each tower contains seven sections, varying in length from 20 to 60 feet, and weighing in the neighborhood of 1,500 tons.

Presently the roadway framework, 80 sections of 80 tons each, are being put into place. This job will be com-pleted by the end of May when the laying of the concrete roadway, a two-month project, will begin.

TO FORM the roadway slab nearly 9,000 cubic yards of cement will be mixed and poured.

One of the last jobs will be to paint the bridge a deep green, a brush and spray gun job which will take at least a month.

To provide more than adequate clearance for the biggest ships in the world and to negotiate the sudden lift-up and set-down needed to cross the relatively narrow channel from the mainland to the island, the bridge was engineered to the maximum grade of 6 per cent. This grade is steeper than either the Gate or San Francisco-Oakland span and gives the Thomas Bridge a unique silhouette.

Another "big-big" job was the spin-ning of the 14-inch diameter suspencables. This 5,000-mile-long knitting job involved the intertwining of 4,028 galvanized wires in 19 strands of 212 wires each.

THE CABLES are built to hold the bridge sieady in 90-mile-per-hour winds. The highest on local record

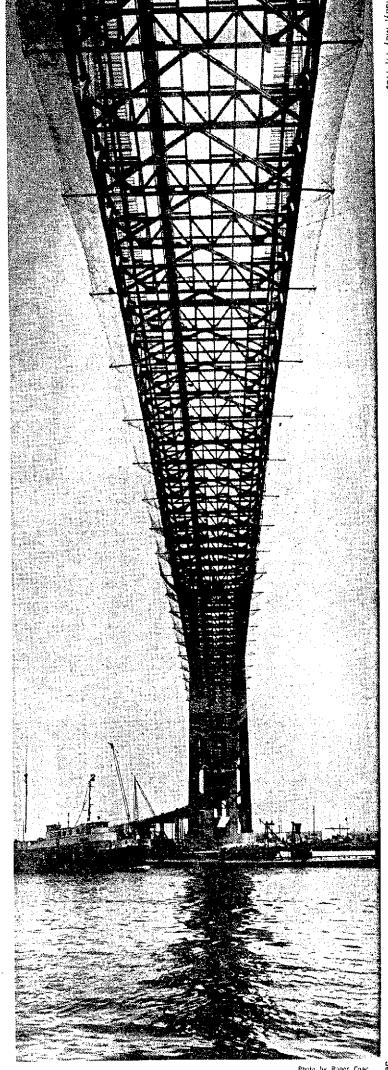

To supervise the work crew-which has ranged from a handful of workers to a full crew of 155 men, Curran has a stuff of 35 state engineers, whose task it is to climb the bridge daily and inspect literally every gird-er, beam, lock nut and bolt put into place.

On the ground other specialists daily run alignment checks which will detect deviations down to a fracdonina la roit

Oddly enough the bridge towers do move, swaying outward in a "slow-motion" 360-degree arc that follows the path of the sun across the skies. The bridge towers are constructed with this natural phenomenom in

THE BRIDGE will be directly connected to the Harbor Freeway and estimates are that 2.5 million vehicles will use it during the first year. The tolls are expected to pay the cost of construction and annual maintenance.

Legendary Aunt Arcadia

By Hortense Hoffman

unt arcapial was stepping out of the governor's carriage just when a gust of wind and rain soaked her new white costume and the red, green and white rebozo which she wore around her head. Gov. Emanuel Micheltorena ordered his cholos (convict soldiers) to pull his carriage, the only one in California in 1843, back to her home so that she could make another toilette of white with a scarf of patriotic Mexican colors. Dona Maria Francisca Paula Arcadia Bandini de Stearns was at that time 17 and had been married three years to an influential merchant, Don Abel Stearns, who was in the carriage. There were also her sister, Ysidora, and U. S. Commodore Thomas Cateshy Jones, whose mistake was the reason for the ball and a dinner at El Palacio two nights before in honor of the Mexican governor, so that the commodore could apologize for his diplomatic blunder. He had sailed into the harbor of the capital, Mon-

He had sailed into the harbor of the capital, Monterey, and taken it without a shot from acting governor Alvarado, on Oct. 19, 1842. He gave it back when he was told there was no war and the British had not seized California as rumored. Commodore John D. Sloat repeated his act on July 2, 1846, and California was the 31st state admitted to the Union Sept. 9, 1850.

DAILY ACTIVITY began early in the Bandini house in Old Town, San Diego, built 1827-30. Don Juan would raise his window and sing a morning hymn and the household would join the song of devotion around the patio. Even dances opened and closed with a prayer. Everyone was Don or Dona and spoke in Spanish or sometimes French or English, and said "Go with God" (adios) at parting.

One time, Don Antonio Coronel broke a cascarone filled with $100 of gold dust over Aunt Arcadia's long black hair at a carnival dance before Lent. Cascarones were blown-out eggs filled with cologne and sealed with wax, or colored paper filled with confetti, and broken over a friend's head while dancing. They would dance La Jota, a lively minuel; La Bamba, the girl keeping a glass of water on her head without spilling; El Jarabo, the girl dancing around a man's sombrero, and the waltz, said to have been introduced by Don Juan Bandini, Arcadia's father.

Don Abel built their home, El Palacio, at Main and Arcadia Streets in Los Angeles, soon after they were married in 1840. For more than 30 years they were famous in their hospitality to many distinguished visitors. The walls of the U-shaped, one-story adobe were three feet thick and were whitewashed semi-annually. Ccdar and pine rafters had been hauled from San Bernardino by Indians. Long wings extended to Los Angeles Street, around a paved patio, with fountains, flowers and trees. Most people were content with homemade furniture but Aunt. Arcadia had dragon-carved chairs, e b o ny chests and tables from China, and a 100-foot ball-room.

EL PALACIO was torn down in 1877 by Aunt Arcadia's second husband, Cul. Robert Symington Baker, who erected the Baker Block on that site. They occupied an elegant third-floor apartment and would hold open house with the other families living there each New Year's Day.

Another favorite home owned by Aunt Arcadia and Don Abel Stearns was Los Alamitos Rancho, now within the city limits of Seal Beach and Long Beach. It was the beginning of a 200,000-acre empire by 1862. When Gov. Jose Figueroa died he left many debts which his brother settled with the $6,000 Don Abel paid July 1842 for the six square leagues of land, a small house and sundry articles, 900 cattle, 240 horses and nearly 1,000 sheep. In 1854, the United States Land Commission confirmed his title. Insistent San Francisco Jawyers claimed that Figueroa had left three legitimate sons in Mexico who were the rightful owners. Don Abel compromised with them for $10,000 after Don Juan Temple acted for him in Mexico.

Temple acted for him in Mexico.
In 1861, he mortgaged the "Little Cottonwoods to Michael Reese of San Francisco for $20,000 to complete the Arcadia building in Los Angeles, During six years of drought he lost 50,000 head of cattle, and creditors attached all of his assets. This was the only ranch lost when he had to default on the 1½ per cent interest. He might have been completely ruined had not an old friend and partner in their ship "Arcadia," Alfred Robinson, interested San Francisco investors. The Robinson Trust began to advertise and subdivide Don Abel's fertile Southern California acres. In a new era of settlement and diversified agriculture, they sold more than 20,000 acres before Aug. 23, 1871.

Dancing and music were as integral with living as breathing with the early days Californias. Don Coronel strikes a dancing pose with two Spanish belles of the day while a third gives out with music on the guitar.

THAT DAY, news of his unexpected death at the age of 73 flashed over the wires from San Francisco. His body was brought to Los Angeles for interment in October and many mourners long remembered Dona Arcadia's unearthly shrick when the ropes snapped on the 800-pound coffin, pitching it into his grave.

Abel Stearns was born in Lunenberg, Mass, on Feb. 9, 1798, and went to sea at 12, a penniless orphan. He established a store in Los Angeles in 1829, being then a naturalized Mexican citizen. In 1835, William Day quarreled with him over a cask of wine turned vinegar and slashed Don Abel's mouth, shoulder and hand as Stearns tried to push him out of the store. The presence of Dr. William Keith saved him from bleeding to death but he became disfigured and had a speech impairment thereafter, so was called Cara de Cabalo, or Horseface.

Both of Aunt Arcadia's husbands were wealthy Yankees, builders and civic lenders. Col. Baker was of her own age, tall, spare, well-dressed, with a circler of white whiskers. When he came to San Francisco from Rhode Island in 1849 he brought a building in knockdown form aboard a sailing vessel. He had paid $25,000 for it in the East and after it was re-erected it brought him a rental of $36,000 a year. When he first bought the kind around Santa Monica he considered sheep ranching. Sen. John P. Jones frem Nevada, Comstock millionaire, bought a three fourth interest. They filed a map with the county recorder at Los Angeles on July 10, 1875, and planned a wharf, a railroad and the town of Santa Monica. When he married Aunt Arcadia on April 28, 1875, Col. Baker deeded her his entire interest in this property. In 1888, she and Sen. Jones gave 300 acres to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Sawtelle. Barracks and hospital for 1,000 men brought prosperity to Santa Monica.

After Col. Baker died in 1891. Aunt Arcadie lived in her home in Santa Monica at 1247 Ocean Ave, for the last 17 years of her life. Although she had no children she became a legend to descendants of her large family. Two of her fifth generation meces. Carmelita Rodd, 177 Corona Ave., and Stella Sabot. 175 Corona, have heard about Aunt Arcadia all of their lives. Their mother was Amanda Keliher Burney, granddaughter of Aunt Arcadia's sister, Josepha Bandini de Carrillo. After a stroke which paralyzed her for two weeks, in her 88th year, on Sept. 16, 1912, Aunt Arcadia died. She left the most valuable estate in Los Angeles County up to that time. $8.000,000. A greater inheritance is the story of Mexican and California influence in the life of a charming child wife, a society leader in a new society, and finally a frail dignified old matriarch personifying the culture of a past generation.

HUNDREDS of centuries later, in 1901, automobiles did not yet crowd the streets and unpaved roads of Los Angeles County, but parts of the area did bristle with odd looking drilling equipment. On many a farm and lot, oil was being found in small quantities. No one had yet tapped the great pools of petroleum that were to make the area such a prolific producer.

One day, a young man named William W. Orcutt rode out to old Rancho La Brea. He was a petroleum geologist, the first man to be so designated by Union Oil Company of California, and -probably the first with such a job title in the entire oil industry. Orcutt was interested in the ranch's old tar seeps and the possibility that they might contain oil.

Probing the seeps, he found many pieces of bones stuck in the tar-soaked ground. Orcuit had some knowledge of paleontology and realized that they weren't just ordinary bones. A little digging and inspection convinced the young geologist that here in the tar pits might be bones of prehistoric animals.

THE EXISTENCE of bones in the pits had been known for years. In 1769, Gaspar de Portola wrote of "the extensive swamps of bitumen and animal

In the 1870s, Maj. Hancock, owner of Rancho La Brea, commercialized the tar, digging and selling it for fuel and as a roofing and paving material. He shipped it as far away as San Francisco and received up to $20 a ton for it. Hancock's Chinese diggers uncovered so many bones they were faced with a disposal problem.

But when William Orcutt saw the bones, he assembled some and sent them to Dr. John C. Merriam at the University of California. Dr. Merriam took one look and rushed to Los Angeles for a first-hand inspection of the tar pits. He discovered that here was a treasure far greater than any scientist could have imagined existed. The fossil remains in all of the world's museums at that time were nothing compared with the rich deposits apparently buried here.

In 1906, Dr. Merriam began excavating and his hopes were realized. The Rancho La Brea bones were not only numerous, but they were in an excellent state of preservation and represented a wide variety of prehistoric animals.

ALTOGETHER, the fossils of more than 4,000 animals and 4,000 birds have been recovered from the pits. Many are on display in Hancock Hall in (Continued on Page 34)

The Men Who Pick the Ponies

By Jerome Hall

MONG the major influences on American life are the men of the cloth, the men of the law and the men who pick the ponies for the newspapers,

There are times when the handicapper could use some divine guidance and there are times when he might feel he could use some police protection

But when he sees his longshot of the day gallop home for $48.80 payoff, the world belongs to the horse race handicapper-at least in the opinion of the bettors who backed his tip.

"It's the opinion of the people who back my bad picks that bothers me," says Roy Betz, possessor of the most improbable (but most appropriate) name in the business. Belz guides the bets of readers of The Long Beach Independent, Regularly one of the leading handicappers at three major Southern California tracks, he's often a source of embarrassment for the Los Angeles newspapers.

WHEN BETZ finishes a meeting with more winners than their handicappers, the Los Angeles newspapers are forced to claim their man "finished higher than any other metropolitan handicap-per." Since that narrows the race down to a two-entry field, it isn't much of a claim.

Another who causes the Los Angeles papers much embarrassment is Ernie Ma-son, the Long Beach Press-Telegram handicapper.

Ten days ago, the two began dueling for the Holly-wood Park handicapping crown. Hollywood Park is the heavily-attended race most track in America and horse racing is our number one spectator sport, with some 37 million turning out in 1962 to try to unscramble the decimal points that make horse racing such a mystery.

A most misunderstood man is the professional handicapper.

SOME HAVE likened him to the brokerage counsellor, but the handicapper would blush at the comparison. Some have likened him to the common tout-and this too makes his face turn red, but for another reason.

His is an honorable profession. "I never encourage anyone to bet," says Mason. "I tell them 'Save your money and buy a farm'." But to Mason and to all professionals, the handicapping is as much a sport as the competition between thoroughbred horses is —and that's known the world over as the sport of kings,

"I think people can bet $2 a race and have a barrel of fun." says Mason, a portly fellow who in the past 18 years has built up the reputation as the best in the business. Though Mason has won more "picking" champion-ships than any other newspaper handicapper in Southern California (He was the leader at Del Mar and Pomona, second at Hollywood Park and Santa Anita in the past 12 months, for instance) his record is all the more impressive because he is a 'price" man,

MASON GOES for the long-shot, "People don't need me to tell them who the favorite is,' "People want to savs. know what 'price' horse has the best chance to win." So Mason spends his day building the background knowledge that will uncover the price horse,

He heads for the barns.

Mason is the only handicapper who makes the tour of the backstretch, Everyone from groom to owner and trainer knows him. He learns here what colts to watch for next season and he gets the trainer's version of why the favorite finished third.

"Racing is not just com-paring stop watches," says Mason, "You can't handicap a race just by weighing the times of the entries. Class is more important than straight time. Give me the class horse against speed. The class horse will overcome trouble. He has gameness and ability to carry weight. He has beart.

"THE HORSE without class will give up when he gets into trouble. Some horses are just plain cowards," says Mason. 'And some are just plain lazy.

By Mason's standards. some handicappers are just plain lazy, too. Ernie's day begins before dawn when he sets out from his Long Beach suburb home for the track. By 6:30 he's making the rounds of the stable area ("This is the middle of the day back

High-powered binoculars, teletype machines and detailed records are standard items for handicapper Roy Betz.

A 'Doll' of a House That's Right for Two

By Stella George

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bartlett is a small two-bedroom house located at 5765 Lanai St. With their children grown, the little two adults find the little home is more than adequate, yet there is plenty of room for grandchitdren or other visitors

There are many distinctive features in the decorating theme. For example each chair in the house is covered with needlepoint made by some member of the Bartlett family. All of the paneling, the shutters, landscaping, rail fencing, and planters were do-it yourself projects.

THE FRONT DOOR leads directly into a living room carpeted in a warm floral design with rose colored hues predominating. Each piece of furniture was carefully selected. A needlepoint rocker has a matching hassock and occasional chairs are upholstered with needlework. Small tables are marble-topped, as is the coffee table. The custom couch is done in old rose. The wall decoration behind the couch is a threetiered shelf which holds a choice collection of Hummel figurines. The far wall of the room is glass which overlooks the garden, lending the overall effect of a huge living picture and doubling the apparent size of the room. The wall around the glass is paneled, and soft rose curtains can be drawn when desired. Windows on the other side of the room are shuttered.

The long rectangular kitchen has a dining alcove at one end. Tile on the work areas is copper colored, matching the appliances. A plate rail holds family heirloom antique dishes. The dinette set is of maple.

IN BOTH the bedrooms there are mahogany four-poster beds with matching mahogany pieces. The crocheted bedspread in the master bedroom is a handsome piece which was done by Mrs. Bartlett.

The garden, both front and back, is neatly landscaped. The Bartletts used a garden hose to lay out the planter designs, and together they mixed the coment and laid the bricks. A new project which is now underway is the building of a patio off the garage. Grown children and grandchildren agree with friends of the Bartletts that this is, indeed, a "doll" of a house for two. One grandson even contributed to the interior decorating when he made colorful pillows which add greatly to the cheerful surroundings.

Shade for Sorrel

One vegetable that should be grown in shade is garden sorrel.

Delicious as a green vegetable; the foundation for a gournet soup; the acidity in the leaves increases when the plants are grown in hot sun. This is the reason for giving it a shaded location.

Charm of New England: Inviting farm style exterior covers the modern architec-ural ingenuity of this unusual, five-level split home with a total of nine rooms.

Bonus Space in a Five-Way Split

By David L. Bowen

T COMES in an attractively simple package, but this home has an interior structural design that will take a little extra study.

Before you try to figure out the particulars, here are a few basic generalities about resourceful plan B-60, created by architect Rudolph Matern for the House of the Week

1. It's a split level with five different levels (four is usually the maximum)

2. It has a total of nine rooms, not counting mudroom laundry, two large foyers, and 21/2 baths.

3. The area enclosed by the perimeter walls is only 1,162

square feet.
4. No section of the house is more than $1\frac{1}{2}$ stories above ground.

Now some specifies on those five levels, one by one:

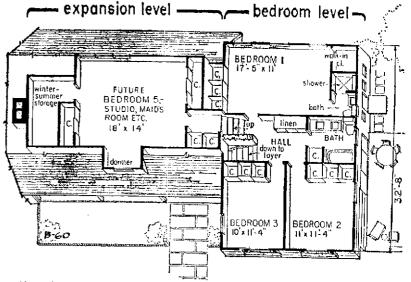

BASEMENT LEVEL: This includes only the area under living room and foyer, provides room for furnace and storage. Easily accessible from kitchen.

GRADE LEVEL: Routine daylight activities handled on this service level, which includes kitchen, dining room, family room, study (or fourth bedroom) bath and mudroom laundry.

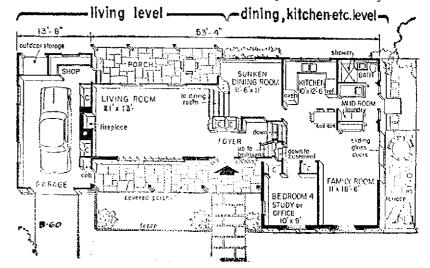

MAIN ENTRANCE LEVEL: This is reserved for living room only, thus setting it totally apart from family activity areas and increasing its formality

BEDROOM LEVEL: Accessible directly up from entrance foyer, this level above kitchen-family room section has two junior bedrooms, main bath and private bath in the luxurious master bed-

EXPANSION ATTIC LEVEL: Here is the bonus space of this unusual design, 18x14-foot future fifth bedroom or studio room above the living room with windows

Floor Plans: Entire living space is designed for economy and convenience, with added interest of raised and sunken effects. Note good traffic flow throughout.

ADDRESS

to the front and back. This space, comparable to the second floor in a 1½ story home, could easily be left unfinished during original construction.

The kitchen-family section plus living room contain 1,162 square feet of living area. Bedroom level has 743, with another 377 in the expansion attic. Width of house plus garage is 67 feet and depth is 31 feet.

Despite the engineering complexity, interior traffic flows smoothly throughout the house. A series of short stairs connecting foyers pro-vides a central hub for the whole house. The location of dining room gives it a sunken appearance from the ceiling slants shed-fashion down to the efficient U-shaped kitchen directly behind it.

A LONG porch behind the living room provides graceful opportunity for outdoor enjoyment just off the dining

Breakfast and snack space is conveniently located in large open area between kitchen and the 17-foot long family room. Both rooms have direct access to service entrance, mudroom laundry and bath at the rear, A sunk-en terrace for the family room is hidden from the street by a retaining wall projecting from the front of the house to the right.

In every detail, the exterior appearance is that of a charming New England farm house, Placing the garage at the left adds to the home's impressive length,

Ready for instant service is this silent valet that is an easy home workshop project, using detailed plan.

By Bill Meyerriecks

NOW THAT'S samething I've always wanted" is what most men say when they see a silent valet. They know how handy it is for a quick, neat start in the morning. But they also know that a good one can be expensive.

A practical, inexpensive solution to having one in your bedroom is to build the handsome, well-balanced "Silent Valet-Seat" shown in this week's Sketchbook series. A few evenings spent in following the step by-step instructions of the plans and this efficient "servant" is ready to serve you.

is ideal for fast and easy dressing. Its backrest holds your day's attire, Directly under the seat cover is a shoe rest, which when flipped up is convenient and easily reached for a fine shine. The two storage units in the seat are roomy and you'll never have to hunt for that clusive brush and polish if one of the units is set aside for just the shoe shining equipment. The other storage unit can serve to hold your shoes or a supply of socks or other small clothing accessories.

The upper portion, or back rest, of the valet-seat has special holders for your trousers and tie. At the back, gracefully angling out, is a shaped hanger for your shirt and suitcoat. The top is an accessory tray for your wallet, watch, coin change and other daily pocket items.

Why Not an Hawaiian Luau?

Shrimp pastries in coconut pastry shells would be an interesting and delicious menu item for your own Hawaiian luau.

THERE'S nothing like an honest - to - goodness Hawaiian Luau for good eating and good fun, but not all of us can get to that enchanted island to enjoy such a feast. So--why not have a luau (of sort) right in your own back yard? Yours may not be as claborate as the authentic luan, but it is easy to include many of the authentic foods even though they are used in a different way.

First, you may like to try a luau luncheon. An interesting luncheon would be Shrimp Pastries (there's package grated coconut in the pastry!) and pineapple salad with a sprinkling of macadamia nuts and a swirl of whipped topping. Toasted sesame seed crackers make a pleasant accompaniment for inis course.

FOR DESSERT, a coconut layer cake is usually a "must" but for this small group perhaps you would orefer making your favorite cupcakes make them as cound as possible . . . covering them with packaged moist foasted coconut. These tre "fork food"-and dee-licious!

As in Hawaii, do try to barbecue something, even if it's just those savory little cocktail frankfurters for dipping into a bottled barbecue . . the guests will love making their swn over an hibachi. One of the simplest dishes to serve is a chicken curry . . . surround it with dishes of canned peanuts, flaked coconut or the packaged moist toasted coconut, and serve with a big green salad and a spicy dressing.

GARLIC BREAD, served hot, is delicious with this menn . . , and for the final item on the meau, bring forth a huge coconit layer cake, cream-filled and frosted and completely covered

Mary Brandenburg takes her daily swim, come rain or shine or cold, in Alamitos Bay (above) or in the sea.

By Vera Williams

POR THE title of most enthusiastic "Polar Bear" on the Pacific Coast, a good nominee is Mary Branden-burg, 82, now well into her 35th year of swimming every day, winter and summer. spring and fall. Whether it rains, snows, sleets, hails or turns on its finest California weather matters not at all to Mary. She goes swimming just the same.

She prefers to swim he-tween 6 and 7 a.m. because then there usually is no wind. She swims in the ocean, a stone's throw from her house. 5361 E. Ocean Blvd, or in Alamitos Bay. She uses the Australian crawl exclusively, and she wears flowers, either fresh or artificial, in her hair.

Her longest swim one and one-eighth miles. The length of her swim in the ocean depends on the tides. Sometimes she swims across Alamitos Bay, occasionally she turns back at the ropes, 50

"ONE MORNING it was so foggy I couldn't tell where I was or what direction I was going," she says, "I kept hitting the piling under the E. Second Street bridge.

She has gone swimming in snow and hail, and when it was so cold she could pick up sheets of ice.

Mary has a Los Angeles Polar Bear membership and button for a quarter-mile swim on New Year's Day 1961. In April 1962, she received a Red Cross badge and button for completing 50 miles of swimming (one-fourth or one-half mile daily) in President Kennedy's "Swim for Health" campaign.

HOW MUCH longer will she swim daily?

"Until either the ocean or I dry up!" says this energetic woman who was 82 on Christmas Day.

Mary, a widow for more than 40 years, began her daily swims on April 1, 1929. She is a vegetarian: she believes in positive thinking. She doesn't go to doctors, she doesn't take medicine, she doesn't take vitamins. She never has had a headache, she doesn't get colds,

SHE TAUGHT school for 35 years-19 of those years in the Long Beach system, divided between the Avalon schools and Long Beach City College. She has coached more than 1,000 persons for their citizenship papers. Because she speaks six lan-guages, it is easy for her to teach foreign-born.

She has appeared with 126 persons to obtain their citizeuship.

"So far as I know," she says, "not one of my pupils has failed to become an American citizen — a good American citizen,"

TASMANIA is a curious, half-time little island set like a pendant earring tear-dropped off the southeast coast of Australia and offering such off-season attractions for Northern Hemisphere dwellers such as picnic drives on uncluttered roads to a quiet river bank or cove. Sheep graze in pastoral scenes on broad valley floors and lightly sloping hills where poplars, hawthorne and apples grow.

Tasmania's city of Hobart once was a boistering port, known to whalers out of New Bedford and Valparaiso as the Barbary Coast of the South Seas. But the brothels and taverns of Salamanca Place now are warehouses, and retired military men putter in the gardens of the pastel stone captains' houses on Arthur Circus.

Still Hobart retains a maritime charm. It is a bright, lively and busy city feasting on sharp southern light on view-fraught hillside settings. Here California-style homes perch on redwood stilts for sight of the harbor.

THE HARBOR that incurs deep into the mouth of the Derwent River is much like a fiord, regular and long, surrounded by sharply rising hills and dominated by the height of Mt. Wellington,

Tasmania has the same kind of appeal for Australians as Nantucket or Catalina has for Americans, and is one of the country's major tourist magnets. Remote of feeling and slow of pace, its lush mountain greenery contrasts sharply with the flat wastelands that mark most of Australia. Visitors come mainly to wander among its flowering hills, stark headlands and sea-scapes, secluded coves and quiet old stone villages.

Eaglehawk Neck in the southeast on the Tasman Peninsula is a pleasant resort area with a cottage colony cutely named Don-Town, But once dogs were chained across the narrow strip of land, effectively preventing prison escapes.

THE NARROW strip of land also has been a favorite playground of nature. There is a Two Indian girls, members of one of host tribes, will be present at the Indian Festival of Arts in Oregon. Vacation or Business Trip blow-hole where the pounding sea has cut a 200-foot flat arch through the stone, marking its path with layer upon layer of striated rock. From some of the crevices spiny-leaved box trees grow.

Tasmania's greatest geological curiosity also is near here. It is the Tesselated Pavement, a vast platform of ridged squares like an inlaid patio. It was formed by the sea from sand and mud deposited horizontally by the tides. When it hardened, it cracked in parallel lines at right angles, and looks for all the world like the work of some ancient stone mason rather than the caprice of nature.

Beyond these vistas of the sea, 1,500 miles to the south, lies Antarctica, In this wild setting it is easy to understand how Tasmania has become synonymous with the end of the world. That's just what it is.

Coming Up: A Fair in Hawaii!

By Fred Taylor Kraft

FOR THE KIDS there'll be poi, popcorn and a fabu-lous beach. The women will love the big-name entertainnative handicrafts and orchids. And the men-hats off, please-will be hypnotized by some of the most beautiful wahines in this chain of islands noted for beautiful women as the gorgeous ones strut before them for the title of Miss Hawaii!

It'll all take place at the 50th State Fair, always one of Hawaii's most popular events for Southern California visitors, on Honolulu's Walkiki Beach, June 28 through July 7.

Well it should, for all the attractions you'd expect at a tremendous carnival at home are here, in a luscious tropical setting where soft tradewinds caress your very soul.

A coconut's toss away are surfers and skindivers frolicking in the sun-warmed waves, the beautiful Queen's Surf restaurant and night club, clean apartment-hotels and apartment buildings towering near the base of Diamond Head.

Close by, too, is the zoo in Kapiolani Park, with its renowned collection of birds of paradise; and Honolulu Aquarium, with its jewel-like Indian reef fish where skindivers seek in the coral caves along Hawaii's coast.

Have you counted yourself

A NEW JAPANESE twoclass liner, the M.S. Sakura Maru, will make her maiden westbound transpacific sailing from Los Angeles Harbor June 19.

Largest passenger liner built in postwar Japan, the 12,200-gross-ton vessel offers accommodations for nearly 1000 passengers—152 in her handsomely appointed Cabin Class section and 800 Third Class in dormitory accommodations. The entire vessel is air conditioned.

Europe Bound?

Always one of the most down-to-earth and informa-tive books of its kind, especialty so this year, is the new Temple Fielding's "Travel Guide to Europe, 1963-64" (William Sloane Associates, 425 Park Ave., New York 16; $6.95).

The good things about Fielding's "Guide," which he compiles with the help of his traveling companion, Mrs. Fielding, are the thousands of suggestions for every eco-nomic level of traveler—es-pecially for budgeteers. Another laudable feature is the ruthless coverage of clip joints, tourist traps, taxicabdriver and other rackets aimed at Europe's visitors. He tells how to get ready to go, going by plane, going by ship, and how to be an "European" in Europe. There are also chapters on 23 European countries.

Sixteen years of work has gone into Fielding's book. Massive revisions for the new edition make it completely up-to-date when it went to press recently.

Class passengers will pay $285 for the two-week vovage.

TAKAHIKO MIKAMI, long associated with Oriental art education in the United States, will lead a tour to his native Japan this fall aboard American President Lines' flagship President Cleveland. Sailing is Sept. 21 from San Francisco.

During the cruise, Mikami will conduct a daily program of brush painting instructions and cultural courses for all interested passengers. Mrs. Mikami, an accomplished decorator, will accompany her husband to demonstrate methods of floral arranging.

ALL PASSENGERS aboard Trans World Airline's transatlantic flights now may view first-run movies. Previously, they were offered only in the first-class section.

All of TWA's jets, including the StarStreams assigned to international service, are now being equipped with projectors. The film is projected on a specially designed screen in the forward part of each cabin. Each passenger may control the sound through earsets. Thus, the films do not disturb those engaged in other activities.

BEGINNING June 15. Canadian National Railways will make your automobile a "passenger" along with other members of the family, combining for the first time in Canada the speed, comfort and relaxation of train travel with the availability of your car at destination.

"Is it true that we can no longer send home gifts under $10 from overseas without paying duty?"

NO. U. S. Customs was going to cut this to gifts under $1. Sorry to say, I jumped the gun on this last month and said it was defnite. Customs now has decided to postpone this cut until October anyway.

The current rule for travelers abroad: You can bring back (or have sent as unaccompanied baggage) $100 worth of things you buy without paying duty.

You can also send gifts of value under $10 every day, as many as you like, so long as you don't send more than one each day to the same person.

Now if you run over the $100—(those under-$10-gifts are not charged to your $100 exemption; just what you bring or have sent as unaccompanied haggage)—you may wonder what to pay on. What has the lowest duty.

This is NOT your responsibility. You declare everything—say $150 worth. U. S. Customs inspectors give you free entry on the $100 that pays the highest duty. They choose the $50 worth that pays the lowest duty. You pay that,

"Can you recommend guide books for a Irip, part train, part rented car, in Europe this summer?"

THERE ARE SO MANY guides coming out I just haven't had time to read them all. I have found that our guide books are sold in all big cities of Europe. Since most of them are weighty, I buy what I want overseas. Any big book store.

Scandinavia Story

Land of fjords and the midnight sun—the image of Scan-dinavia created by travel agencies -– is no myth. The fjords and glaciers combine to make the coastline one of the most scenic in the world. Here is a fairy-tale world of sea and rock and forest, of mountains capped with eter-nal snows. It is the land of Norway, Sweden and Denmark which contain less than 1 per cent of the world's people yet own more than 10 per cent of the world's shipping, almost 5 per cent of international trade.

The complete, absorbing story of these three northern bastions of the free world is told in "Scandinavia," the 15th volume in the Life World Library Series by Hammond Innes and the Editors of Life, (Time Inc. Book Division, 540 N. Michigan Ace., Chicago 11, Ill., $2.95.) The volume is liberally illustrated, with many of the pictures in full color.

The Michelin guides for France, Italy and Spain are really a "must" for anyone driving. Give you hotels, restaurants, specialties in very usable form.

Pan American World Airways "New Horizons" is excellent and easy to use.

Reminiscent of another era is this scene on the Vail Ranch, a 90,000-acre spread southeast of Riverside.

but in the spring the cattle are driven up to the Santa Rosa, or "High Ranch."

Now is a good time for a jaunt to this area. Turn off Hwy, 395 and drive through the historic town of Murrieta, 37 miles southeast of Riverside. Backtrack the length of the dozing village until you come to a sign announcing the way to the Tenaja Guest Ranch. The sight of the wind-ing dirt road leading up to the mesa is intriguing. The road is sleep with many twists and turns, but traffic is practically nil.

AT THE TOP of the grade lies a lush plateau, Cowboys may gaze inquiringly at the traveler, for few come this way. Cattle graze on the succulent grass, interspersed with flowers of every shape and hue. Large live oaks, the "encinos" of the Spaniards, Small lakes are spotted here and there, and creeks go purring on to find the sea.

There are signs along the way directing the traveler to the Tenaja Guest Ranch. It is a pleasant place in which to spend idle days, old but well cared for,

The Tenaja Guard Station and public camp is an inviting place, In season, flowers wander over the meadows, penetemons, pink mallows, scarlet buglers, wall flowers, lupines, fremontia, Indian paint brush, and in low places yellow violets and buttercups, Acres of wild lilac bloom in the spring, their soft fragrance filling the air.

ALONG THE CREEK the cottonwoods are leafed out with chipmunk cars of green. The larger trees are gaily decorated with western lanagers, orioles and cardinals, jaunty in brilliant coats. California mountain quail scoot out of the way, their mingled voices sounding like the gurgle of a tiny mountain brook.

The campground provides water, wood stoves, tables and benches for the travelers' comfort. Chipmunks scold, and bluejays shrill. In the live oaks you may hear the tapping of a woodpecker. El car-pintero, the carpenter, the Mexicans call him.

Tenaja is an Indian word meaning "many pools of water." The creek tumbles in clear pools and swirls around smooth gray boulders before winding down through the wooded hills.

Under the sheltering oaks are "gussip rocks," where the Indian women once sat and discussed the world of their times, while grinding acorns.

you are tired of whirl of the complex civilization in which we live today, take this trip into the beauty and quiet of yesterday.

California's Bilateral Complex

By Jan Hemingway

Cries of incompatibility are heard through the population explosion in California. But the compulsion has woven through our history from adolescence.

In infancy, we dwarfed Texas, stretching from the tip of the Baja California to Alaska and from the coast to the Rocky Mountains, During Latin America's struggle for During independence, Spain gave up her claim north of the 42nd parallel, establishing the Oregon line, and the Mexican border was fixed by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. In their petition for statehood the delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1849 decided on the eastern limits. The pastoral South pleaded then for separation. It was thwarted, California's boundaries were formed but didn't crystallize. They never had. Hot jealousies drew shimmering lines between North and Jose Echcandia, that "tall. thin juiceless man" sent as governor in 1825, was the first of the Great Cleavers. Most of his library consisted of books on how to avoid illness and he started the climate cult in the Southland, making sunny San Diego his capital instead of windy Monterey, On meeting a certain senorita, he deserted his potions and powders long enough to read up on how to win a woman. Alas, she married a juicier man, Eventually, his malingering endangered his authority, so he went to Montercy and, when his suc-cessor disembarked at San Diego, refused to return to surrender the keys to the archives. Instead, the new governor met him in Monterey and restored it as capital. He was soon deposed. By then, Echeandia had read a book on how to divide and conquer half, so he ruled the South and nursed his health from San Diego while Agustin Zamorano presided over the North from Monterey.

GOV. FIGUEROA arrived from Mexico a year and a half later. He mended the breach and gave the immature province a sense of security. But his death was a traumatic experience and a behavior pattern was established. First, a northerner found the scep-ter too hot to handle. Then, a southerner waved it over Los Angeles and designated in capital. Next, a governor came from Mexico but made himself so unpopular that North and South united in ousting him. The Los Angeles contender tried again but abdicated hastily when Juan Bautista Alvarado and his three musketeers sent a cannonball crashing into the governor's mansion. Alvarado took control and declared (Continued on Page 30)

ponents and Carrillo abandoned his pretenses. The South submitted reluctantly. The chase over, Alvarado lost interest in affairs of state,

Manuel Micheltorena was the last Mexican to wear the title. He spent his first year in the south and his second in the north but was unable please either. When he sailed for home. Pio Pico became jefe politico with his capital in Los Angeles, and Jose Castro was jefe militar with his headquarters at Monterey, along with the customhouse officials and the provincial treasurer. Pico commanded legislation, but Castro and company were in control of troops and funds. Another revolt was shaping up when war broke out with the United States.

IN AMERICAN hands, California was still far from the seat of national government and directed by local political winds. Marshall's discovery brought gold seekers and a boom in trade to the North. Overnight, the sleepy pueblo of Yerba Buena became the cosmopolitan city of San Francisco, with ships bringing travelers and cargo from all over the world. Los Angeles was her country cousin, furnishing her with beef but not asked in to tea.

At the Constitutional Convention of 1849, the southern delegates had urged that the North request statehood only for itself while the South retained a territorial government, They were out-voted. The next year, they sent a to be organized separately as "Central Californio" petition to Congress asking failed again, All through the '50s, the thinly populated "cow counties" were heavily taxed for the benefit of the North. Escape became an obsession. By the end of the decade, Sacramento finally approved a plan for detaching the area below the 36th par-allel. The Civil War broke out before Congress acted on it, and California's hostilities were repressed.

Both North and South have shown symptoms of overcompensation ever since. While San Francisco works mightily at being "The City," the Southland adaps to a casual culture reminiscent of our more tranquil past, Newcomers seem to prefer our way, for we've grown until the census in Los Angeles County alone is exceeded by only eight states in the Union. Were we to vote for secession again, a Space-Age Congress would understand the psychological harm in further frustration,

Now that we find silver threads among the gold and our children number more than 17 million, we may try to reconcile our differences. Together, we have everything, including Disneyland and Feather River.

And the dominant figure on our state seal is Minerva, the goddess of wisdord.

Postpile of Stone

Devil's Postpile, a national monument, presents weird evidence of forces of nature shaping ancient world.

By Frank L. Remington

TRIKINGLY situated amid some of the most spectacular mountains of the High Sierra lies one of America's most unusual National Monuments-Devil's Postpile. The symmetrical basaltic columns of the Postpile, one of the finest examples of its kind to be found anywhere in the world, stand about 60 feet high and extend for nearly 900 feet in a variety of formations. Most of the columns are vertical, but others are slanting or curved, and some radiate amazingly from a common center.

Even without its remarkable Postpile, the establishment of a National Monument in this area could have been justified easily. The sparkling waters of the middle fork of the San Joaquin River tumble past the base of the Postpile to Rainbow Falls, where a sheer drop of 140 feet creates beautiful rainbows above a crystalline trout pool. The jagged Minarets form a backdrop of towering peaks that remain decorated with snow most of the year, and hidden beneath their shadows are some of the West's finest fishing lakes. Although it is still comparatively unknown, this scenic mountain region lies only 29 miles east of the world-renowned Yosemite Valley,

INITIALLY, at least, it is sometimes difficult for many persons to believe fully the written accounts of the tremendous natural forces which created this most unusual formation. Yet its violent history can be readily understood once the physical evidence at the site is closely examined. Authorities believe that Devil's Postpile had its origin more than 100,000 years ago, when a fissure opened in the earth's crust at Mammoth Pass and molten lava spewed forth to cascade downward into the valley. Pools of liquid rock, varying from 100 to 700 feet deep, formed so quickly that for a while the lava was molten throughout most of its depth.

Can Ocean Floor Be Colonized?

By Vera Williams Southland Magazine Book Editor

VILL IT someday be possible to colonize the bottom of the sea, with men living in pressurized houses lowered to the ocean floor? And if so, will there be created a new form of man, free to roam below the surface as we do above?

Capt. J. Y. Cousteau, leading explorer of the world beneath the sea, who with Emile-Gagnon invented the aqua lung, proposes both questions and makes it plain that his answer is "Yes" in "THE LIVING SEA," written with James Dugan (Harper & Row, $6.50).

In a sense, "The Living Sea" is an extension of Cousteau's first book, "The Silent World" in which he told of the aqua lung, which freed divers from hoses, helmets and heavy weights, and his subsequent exploration of

But Consteau was frus-trated by being limited to depths of several hundred feet. Now he has a fantastic diving saucer for exploring the continental shelf at depths of 1,000 feet.

There's enough adventure to satisfy anyone, illustrated with a map of the route of his oceanographic ship Calypso, plus 24 pages of color and 64 pages of black and white photos.

"The Living Sea" is a reading MUST.

A GREAT ARCHITECT must respond aesthetically to his physical surroundings and then dedicate his skill and will to extending and improving the beauties of nature.

This, in essence, is the philosophy and technical purpose of Richard Neutra, master architect, as expounded in his chatty autohiography, "LIFE AND SHAPE" (Appleton - Century - Crofts,

From his happy boyhood in Vienna, through his service in the Austro-Hungarian army in World War I and his migration to New York, life groomed Neutra for international renown in construction

Unlike many of his distinguished colleagues, Deutra loves California and, operating in Los Angeles, pioneered open-air-and-glass styling. The Lovell Health House and Van der Leeuw home in Los Angeles are monuments to his genius and warmth.

He tells how these and the Lincoln Memorial Museum at Gettysburg were created and you meet his contemporaries, including Louis Sullivan,

Frank Lloyd Wright, Walter Gropius, Mies van der Rohe and Le Corbusier,

What shapes a man, a man of the intellect of Neutra? "The extraordinary experi-ence, the sudden sight of an individual in action, or his work, may be one guiding impact. ... But small, continuous drops can erode even a rock, ... Congenital makeup and deficiencles are inextricably mixed into the phenomenon of becoming conditioned.... The final human personality is very naturally a fusion and outcome of all these circumstances,

A LOT OF US get exasperated because the countries don't automatically fall into our arms and embrace us. A little understanding can save us much aggravation. More than a little understanding of what Mario Rossi calls "THE THIRD WORLD" is given us in his book of that name (Funk and Wagnalls, $4). He deals with unaligned nations, their problems, and their needs.

"As the developing continents proceed along the road to viability, they will move gradually away from the type of ties established by colo-nialism," he concludes. But this by no means need bring them toward the East. "A new relationship will then have to be negotiated among equals," he points out.

THE BEST WAY to understand Khrushchev's Russia is to get to know the Russia of the past.

series of Collier books on the older Russia (95 cents and $1.50) gives insights into many aspects of pre-revolutionary Russia, Sir John Maynard's "THE RUSSIAN PEASANT" helps one understand why the Russian countryside is the Kremlin's No. 1 headache; Maynard's "RUS-SIA IN FLUX BEFORE OCTOBER" is a complete picture of Russia between the revolutions of 1905 and 1917.

JOHN THOMAS DYE III spent a brief span on this earth. He was born in Akron, Ohio, in 1923, came with his parents to Southern California (they founded the Brent-Town and Country School). At Pomona College he excelled in basketball and tennis, was an excellent student, thought a great deal about life but did not let it spoil his fun.

"GOLDEN LEAVES" (Ward Richie Press, Los Angeles, $5) is a kind of autobiography, you might say --- made up of letters written to his family and friends when he was training as a B-17 navigator and when he was in action over Italy. They tell a lot about boyhood dreams and what had become of them; they wonder why men must kill each other, but, as young Dye says in one letter, he is no pacifist, he is no socialist, he just wonders why killing must be,

"It has been proven down through history," he writes, "that to fight is to kill or be killed. Perhaps I sound like a conscientious objector. But I am not, I will fight, I will kill if I can. I will die if I must.

One day in February 1944 he did die, in a bombing raid on a railway yard in Austria.

palm trees planted in what is now the city of Beach were these, set out by Mrs. C. T. Healey.

Palm Tree 'First'

By Maymie R. Krythe

SOUTHERN California's palm trees were the early day marvels of easterners who came west and many were the pioneers who promoted tree planting. Long Beach, founded in 1882, gives the honor of planting the original palm trees in this community to Mrs. Charles T. Healey, wife of Capt. Healey who surveyed Willmore City, forerunner of Long Beach.

Orlena Medora Swett was born in Maine, came to San Francisco by way of the Isthmus of Panama with her family when she was a small child. She married Capt. Healey in the Bay City and came south to Rancho Los Cerritos when Jotham Bixby called upon her husband to survey a townsite on his ranch near

Capt. Healey built a home for his family in 1884 at 227 E. Ocean Blvd., and it was here that Mrs. Healey set out three palms, two of the fan variety and one date palm, the first in Long Beach.

THROUGH the years, Mrs. Healey took great pride in the trees and, after her husband's death, she decided to sell her property only to someone who would assure her that the palms would not be destroyed. Once in an interview she

"These palms are very pre-cious to me. They are a sort of monument to my husband's memory, and as I have watched them grow, through these 40 years, I have come to regard them as a heritage to the City of Long Beach from the pioneer who surveyed the original townsitea heritage deserving of preservation.

In 1928 the Daughters of the American Revolution marked the first tree planted by Mrs. Healey, with a plaque, bearing this inscription:

"Planted in 1884 by Mrs. O. M. Healey, early resident, a tribute by her chapter, Gaviota D.A.R., for her unselfish devotion to the best interests of Long Beach."

At the ceremonies, Mrs. O. J. Hanna related the events leading up to the founding of Long Beach, and told of the planting of this palm tree.

MRS. HEALEY took part in many local activities. There-fore, in addition to her pioneer tree-planting, she de-serves to be remembered, not only on Arbor Day, but always for her excellent work in helping build a young com-munity. In 1928, this out-standing woman paid tribute to her contemporaries:

"Often, as I look back upon the first struggling days of hardships here, the time seems almost like a dream. Tents, cabins, and other crude dwellings have given way to towering structures of steel and concrete; a forest of oil shafts rises from the old grazing lands; wandering, rough roads are now busy thoroughfares, and where sheep meadows stretched are crowded city streets, apartment houses churches, of all creeds, and costly hotels.

"With a heart full of gratitude and treasured personal recollections, I am minded of the traits of fearlessness, cheerful optimism in the face of reverses and determined perseverance which characterized the pioneers who blazed the paths for this great City of Long Beach.'

Little Charmer

When you stop for bedding plants for summer bloom, don't overlook the new All-America zinnia Thumbelina. This little charmer is a true miniature, growing only six inches high. The flowers come in mixed colors only and are up to 1½ inches across.

Thumbelina starts to bloom early, when the plants are only three inches high, according to a C.A.N. nurseryman, and they keep blooming until frost cuts them short in

As a designer and creator of movie fashions and period dress in Hollywood, he developed an interest in antiques. In 1945, he retired from the studios to a mountain cabin in Washington to work out a formula for wax sculpture.

PORTRAIT dolls made with this perfected wax proved a great success—and the beginning of his life work.

Two floors of life-sized wax figures and settings recreate California's colorful past in Sorensen's House of Wax Historical Museum at Monterey. At Santa Cruz, his Hall of Memories was born.

A popular scene in this House of Wax is the old-fashioned one-room schoolhouse, complete with old ink well desks, a coal stove, a hand school bell, quill-point pens and slates. The schoolma'am and the children, dressed in high-button shoes and turn of the century dress, were modeled from real life. Tom Sawyer, with the realistic wax apple, is the image of Sorensen's nephew — now a six-footer!

Sorensen designed the new post office in Santa Claus, Ind.—a quaint little Hoosier town --- where he has gone every summer for the past 10

THE SCULPTOR'S philosophy is that many artists are ruined by too much study. They will never be able to go and be creative," he said.

Lewis has contributed his talent to the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park; while in his home-studio at 141 W. Brookdale Place, Fullerton, he restores wax character dolls such as Uncle Sam, the Ped-dler and the Gibson Girl.

He is now making plans for several branches of a children's museum with child-size wax storybook figures.

When American Boy

lf new movies coming from Metro-Galdwyn-Meyer for the spring and summer season are a criterion, girls from all over the world are falling in love with American guys: to wit, In the Arabian Nights fantasy, "Captain Sinbad," Germany's Hoidi Bruehl in scene above falls under spell of Guy Williams.

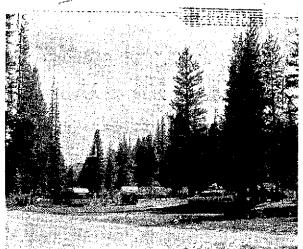

Meets Foreign Girl

"The Day and the Hour," French Simone Signoret finds man of the hour in handsome Stuart Whitman.

But the situation is reversed in the upcoming MGM "International Hotel," with Elizabeth Taylor as the magnet for an Englishman; yes, Richard Burton.

Many campgrounds are inviting but Postpile road makes care necessary in bringing a trailer into the locale.

another and created a variety of polygonal figures. And as the lava continued to cool and shrink downward, the columns were extended vertically until they had virtually penetrated the full depth of the lava mass. Since many of the columns are tipped or bent, it is believed that irregularities in the cooling surface may have caused these interesting variations.

ANOTHER spectacular force of nature was also involved in creating Devils Postpile as it is observed today. During the last of three glacial stages recorded in the Sierra Nevada, a slow-mov-ing glacier about 1,000 feet thick quarried away most of

the cracked basalt columns, The tops of the remaining columns were polished and scarred by the tremendous weight of the ice as it passed overhead. Pieces of stonegouged grooves in the ends of the columns that are still visible today—and yet that glacier retreated more than 20,000 years ago. Towering trees now stand along the path once scoured clean by the glacier.

Embracing a total area of a little more than a square mile, Devils Postpile appears only as a dot-if at all-on most travel maps. But this geological oddity is surround-ed by a magnificent wilderness area that is justly famous for its scenic beauty and excellent fishing. Short and easily traveled trails lead to the major points of interest, and this is also the starting place for exciting fishing and sightseeing trips. Trout may be taken from the sparkling San Joaquin River, of course, with the best fishing usually obtained in those areas which are some distance from the road. Many good fishing lakes and streams are within easy hiking distance, and trips on foot or horseback can be made to the remote areas where huge trout - and even the exotic

ated along the banks of the San Joaquin River, and a limited number of cabins are available at Reds Meadows Lodge. Until a few years ago, a dozen miles of torturous mountain road kept all but the most adventurous from visiting the Monument, Recent_improvements have made this portion passable for the most modern motor cars, but the section must still be traveled with care. Nestled beneath tall trees and rugged mountains, Devils Posipile National Monument offers a variety of attractions that urge visitors to return again and again.

Let Children Care for Pets

By Eleanor Avery Price

SUMMER is looming up just ahead, and if you have a school age child, you of course love him dearly but the thought of him being around at loose ends for three vacation months can be very earth shaking.

The solution? Give him definite, moderate things io do. There are dishes, dusting, pulling weeds, errands, the wash to take in or remove from the dryer. No, I'm not deviating from the subject of pets. I'm leading up to them. I'm going to suggest you also assign to your child most of the work in taking care of any pets.

I can just see some of you out there giving me cold stares and asking, "What sort of tricks and cajoleries are we to use to get a child to be responsible for the pets he begged to have and then appointed Mother as sole cus-Iodian?'

NO TRICKS, no cajoleries. Just start assigning simple tasks this very day. A child can give the pet fresh drinking water, learn to fix its food, groom it, do at least part of the cleaning up. Get him in the habit of doing these things. Don't be unpleasant about it, for you want your child to admire and respect you and to be happy around the house. But don't be wishy-washy. Insist he carry through until it becomes a habit of minding you, A youngster is miserable when useless and selfcentered. He is far happier when his parent wields some authority and lifts him out of his lonely anarchy.

You might not believe it, but a dog, too, is unhappy when he serves no purpose. If there is a dog in your household and he is lazy, disobedient, annoying, destruc-tive, he also needs things to If your child is old enough, send him and the dog to dog obedience school. The dog will lap up education and will shift gears into being a much more worthwhile dog.
At the same time, your child will learn even more tolerance, patience, and ability.

Select your obedience school with care. It won't be expensive. In fact, all during summer at Mayfair Park on Clark Ave., Lakewood, Joe DeBeck will conduct his free

However, some critics of the span believe it may lose money. They point out that surveys have shown motorists can reach Terminal Island from virtually any location in the Southland via either the Terminal Island or Long Beach Freeways and will not have to drive more than sixtenths of a mile further.

Once potential toll-payers learn this, they claim, they'll abandon the bridge route, pointing out that the islandto-mainland ferry which will be put out of service after the bridge opens is a paying enterprise, carrying 70 million 11 million passengers and autos in nearly 22 years of operation.

THE CONTINUED development of Terminal Island, now only about 50 per cent developed, will greatly increase the flow of traffic.

A single new facility such as the U. S. Customshouse with its fleet of 213 vehicles "would greatly increase the daily flow of traffic."

Controversy or no controversy, the bridge will become a familiar sight to seamen from all over the world who sail in and out of the West's largest single port.

Will they have a name for the bridge?

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, the San Pedro legislator who authored 16 pieces of legislation during an 11year fight to make the bridge a reality, had such name before it was named to honor

Plants for Tropical Effects

F ALL the philodendrons, including the newest introductions, the selluom variety merrily continues to grow along as the showiest shrub of them all for tropical effects.

Foliage of some specimens is very large, so give them lots of room to spread out. Leaves of this plant in partial shade are of a richer green than those in full sun, which

BIRD OF PARADISE

GORDON myr...

Perhaps the most exotic of all the tropical shrubs is the Bird of Paradise. They have large, gray-green leaves and flowers that resemble tropical birds. The unusual flowers consist of three boat shaped petals, two joined and longue shaped, usually blue, while the third petal is orange and stands erect. They bluom off and on all year but do their best blooming during the cool season,

They should be planted in full sun in a rich, well fertifized soil and need to be treated with Bandini Acid Food. Birds grow in clumps and should not be divided very often as the larger the clump, the more and better the blooms. These plants live to a ripe old age and are highly prized for their beau-tiful, exotic, long lasting flowers, either as cut flowers or in the garden.

Birds of Paradise are available for sale in one gallon and five gallon cans at the GARDEN SHOP NURSERY at 5431 E. Spring St. (at Bellflower Bivd.), Long Beach — phone 11A 5-1362.

Philodendron selluom, New Zealand flax, Fatsia, Tetrapanax, Mahonias, combine to create a striking, tropical-effect landscaping. Especially so, when a rich green lawn sweeps up to the front of the plantings.

ONE OF THE troubles gardeners have with older lawns is "thatch." This may be mat of dead grass that smothers the turf area soil and tends to prevent water from soaking into the ground. Gardeners who don't take off the grass clippings cause this thatch condition, too.

One of the ways to improve such condition is to scalp the grass lawn, matted devil grass or St. Augustine grass. Scalping means to adjust the power lawn mower to cut the lawn down to the soil surface area, practically cutting off all the lawn!

Another method is to aerate the soil by using a spiker. The small holes it makes are then filled with sand, compost soil, or a mixture of manure and soil, tend to break the tight com-paction. There are several liquid soil conditioners that work much faster than the granular form, because they go to work right away.

Whether the lawn is scalped or spiked, heavy clay or adobe-like soil may be improved right then by applying gypsum, or one of the soil conditioners that provide 75 percent trace minerals, which furnish needed minor elements yet at the same time

ONE APPLICATION of the material is not enough. There should be one or two later applications at intervals after the lawn has grown out.

New Use for Roses

By Walter Finch

OSES GENERALLY are not considered bedding plants but that's a throwback to the days when roses could only be planted early, bare root. Now that roses are in containers to brighten up the property they properly can be considered bedding plants whether set out in a bed, or distributed about the property in various types of containers.

Modern roses are ever-blooming and about as colorful as plants can get, especially the flame-colored or bright orange and pink shades so outstanding in the last couple of years. Tree roses are examples of "accent" plants to make the property more liveable and colorful.

A BIG PUSH for bright summer color desired by A BIG PUSH for bright summer color desired by all families, comes from annual plants, the zinnias, ageratum, heliotrope, petunias, geraniums, kuntana, candyluft, cosmos and a host of other plants. The colors of the blooms run from pure, dazzling white, to breath-taking scarlets, or yellows, blues, just about any color the home owner may wish. A "must" is the planting of some annuals of some annuals of some annuals of some annuals. planting of some annuals on every property. They are inexpensive, easy to maintain and they add a summer richness-of-living look.

the American Association of Nurserymen.

While we've never tried it we wonder if combinations like roses and gypsophilia might not be especially attractive combined. A great deal of pleasure can be obtained from color combinations you select your-self, perhaps to harmonize with your house colors or the furniture or umbrellas in your outdoor living room. Annual plants are available from most nurseries,

Lamb with Mint Jelly
Coriceture by Bob April

ONCE UPON a time (about 16 years ago) there was a good -looking restaurant at 3918 Long Beach Blvd. called Ken's Dinner Bell.

It was a popular place, with excellent food, but owner Ken McConnell felt that his customers deserved something nicer. So he tore it down and put up a beautiful new building.

A few years passed. Ken, a man with lots of imagination and creative judgment, decided his patrons deserved something even more beautiful. So a couple of months ago, he tore up the interior completely, redesigned it in a gorgeous modern Spanish motif and added an elegant cocktail lounge called the Kart Room.

He also hired a new manager, a very able man named Bill Snodgrass who has been in the restaurant business in Long Beach since 1946. As a result of these changes, Ken's Restaurant is now one of the finest in town, open daily and Sunday from 7 a.m. on, serving a diversified menu.

EVERY SUNDAY, starting at 2 p.m., Ken's restaurant serves three outstanding dinners. These are: roast leg of lamb with mint jelly ($2.65); baked Virginia ham with fruit sauce ($2.65) and Rock Cornish hen ($2.85). Accompanying each entree are chilled rellishes, superb tossed green salad, baked potato or French fries, vegetable, sourdough bread, beverage and dessert. Also featured are such daily specials as a delectable broiled 12 - ounce spencer steak ($3.25); a 14-ounce top sirloin ($3.65); five tremendous fried shrimp with red sauce ($2.85) and two superb broiled Australian Inbster tails ($3.65). Ken's also features other mouth-watering specials which are changed daily. The Kart Room, which serves unusual hors d'ocuvres, is closed Sundays.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

'The Cadillac' Pleasing TV Experiment

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

A series of still photos, snapshots, if you will, make up one of the most engrossing 21 minutes of television I have ever seen.

The program, entitled "The Cadillac," airs 8 p.m. Wednesday on KNXT's (channel 2) "Repertoire Workshop."

Don't let the word "snapshots" minimize for you the value of this experimental program as a TV production.

Watching it is not like turning the pages of an amateur's photo album.

FOR INSTANCE, to illustrate one segment, five prints—snapshots—were joined together and a 360-degree parson effect was used with as much success as a motion-picture scenery take.

In fact, each scene was posed as a director would set up a motion picture.

Watching this production, as I did last week, you are conscious that the pictures are still, but there is a decided feeling of mobility.

It is a motion-picture feeling of mobility that ties together with the continuity of the story.

THE STORY is about a Mexican potato picker and his family in the United States. He wins a Cadillac.

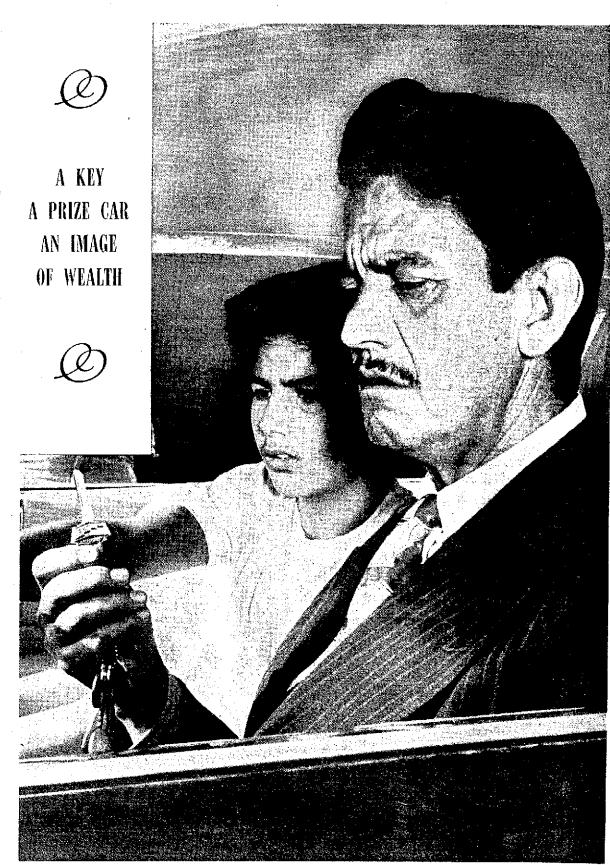

How this changes his status in the community in a twoday period is a touching and moralistic story.

The farmer is played by Alex Montoya and his TV son, Danny Bravo, serves as narrator.

The drama was shot on Dominguez Ranch, between Long Beach and Compton.

It won this year's Cinema Editors Award for the bestedited short and was nominated for an Academy Award.

PRODUCER MEETS 'LA LIZ'

Phil D'Antoni Lives 'Only Man' Moment

NEW YORK-(NEA)-Phil D'Antoni seems to be still in daze from the experience. He gives every indication of a man who is all shook up. You see, Phil has had some close contacts with Elizabeth Taylor recently. He's probably the only man this side of Pontrhydyfen, Wales, who is able to talk informatively about what La Liz is really

Phil D'Antoni_is a television producer. He and his partner, Norman Baer, had the bright idea that a television show starring Miss Tay-lor might go. Although their joint enterprise, Television Productions of America, was brand new, they sat down and put in a telephone call to Elizabeth Taylor, That's something like trying to call Jack Benny collect.

THEY outlined their idea and sent a long follow-up cable with more details, And suddenly Phil found himself in London, face to face with the face many consider the world's loveliest.

"When she talks to you," he says, and his face takes

The negotiations proceeded and the contract was signed. Next fall, you'il see Elizabeth Taylor's London, the program D'Antoni and Baer will produce later this spring with Miss Taylor and her home town as the costars.

"SHE HAD had many offers for television, of course," D'Antoni says. "Some were ridiculous in terms of the money they offered and the ideas themselves. Actually, money isn't too important to her thuse days. Her deal in 'Cleopatra' reportedly gives her $1 million plus 10 per cent of the gross — which should easily be another $5 million, Her next movie, 'The VIPs,' is a similar deal. So you couldn't lure her to television with money,"

Nevertheless, they didn't feed her peanuts. Baer says that she's getting the highest salary ever given one person for one television show. (Unconfirmed reports place the sum at $400,000.)

"She's worth it," said D'Antoni, still glowing around the edges.

They're not sure what it was about their idea that appealed to her. Probably it was the idea itself - Miss Taylor talking about the city where she was horn, and showing some of the non-touristy sights which interest her.

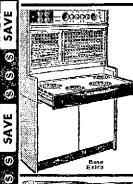

"SHE LOVES London."
D'Antoni says, "and knows it well. She sent me a book, "London Perceived," which she felt gave the flavor of the city she wanted to get across in the program.

D'Antoni thinks Miss Taylor's personality will surprise the audience, as it did him.

"She has a wonderful sense of humor," he says, the glow glowing brightly. "Her laugh is loud and quick and earthy."

Could you please tell me when or if the motion picture "High Noon" will come back on television?

It's my favorite and I watch it when I can.

Glen Matheny, Long Beach

I like it, too, even though Gary Cooper always wins the shoot out and won't change no matter how many times you watch it. I'm sure it will be back. Most of the good oldies do come back and back and back.

Recent testimony in Washington brought out the fact that one "survey" in a city the size of Long Beach was based on telephone calls to 128 TV viewers.

We've been watching TV ever since Korla Pandit was whamming the organ keyboard, but nobody ever called us to find out which program we were viewing-if any.

Most of our evening telephone calls result from wrong numbers, some dope wanting us to take dancing lessons, or a magazine salesman-but never from a TV rating serv-

Here are some of the more glaring examples of what could happen to

You might contract for enlargement or remodeling of the house, only to have the contractor fold up part-way through the lob, leaving you to pay well as find some means to get your home put back together.

This last actually happened to scores of homeowners in the Long Beach area in recent months. when a company collapsed. Two of its officers are being tried on

TOP SECRETS AT AUTONETICS GUARDER BY 450 pace-Age Security Big Job

ANAHEIM-Several years ago, executives at North American Aviation's Autonetics Division became alarmed over a continuing series of thefts of transistors and diodes from a building where the items were stored. They called in the plant's industrial security force to investigate.

After a thorough search had failed to yield a clue, one of the men happened to notice several blackbirds flying around in the huge building.

In a few more minutes, he had solved the mystery. The birds had taken the tiny pieces of electronic equipment and had built themselves a $12,000 nest, high in the build-ing's rafters.

Only a generation or two ago, safeguarding a plant was a relatively uncomplicated matter of installing a burglar alarm and a fire-control system. Perhaps there was a fence and a few guard posts, visited occasionally by an elderly watchman.

Today, however, the concept of industrial security involves not only plant protection but also screening of employes and others for access to classified information, continuing education of personnel in security matters and safeguarding an enormous body of secret material without hampering its utilization in the practical work of the plant.

Autonetics' industrial security department maintains a protective services force of more than 450 persons, equivalent to the combined police and fire departments of a fair-sized city.

The department includes an identification bureau, an investigative staff of experienced former Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, a lock and key shop, select groups of lobby receptionists and security spe-cialists and a division-

wide emergency and disaster organization.

Last year, the department gave protective servicing to almost 35,000 Autonetics employes, received about 250,000 militury and civilian visitors, vendors and suppliers. screened nearly 16,000 employment applications and performed more than 100,000 hadging, photo-graphic and fingerprinting operations. The organization also

o b tained approximately 14,000 personnel-security clearances, conducted almost 500 security-indoctrination briefings for groups of newly hired employes, performed more than 70,000 lock and key installations and changes and kept fire losses to the millions of dollars worth of buildings, material and equipment at less than $2,500.

Industrial Security Director is Harry C. Van Pelt, a former FBI inspector and aide to J. Edgar Hoover. His assistant is John W. Sundquist, also a former FBI agent and Marine Corps veteran.

THOUSANDS of locks guard vital information, and in keeping with basic security techniques, combinations are changed at intervals. The plant's own locksmith shop handles the changes. Lead locksmith William K. Witherell is changing the combination on wall-safe lock.

THE WASTEPAPER barrels at North American Aviation's Autonetics Division are under lock and key. In the firm's top-secret opperation, strict security applies to destruction of discarded written material. Genice A. Staton, documents-control girl at the plant, rips classified papers and carbons for deposit in barrel.

SECURITY MEANS strict policing at North . American's Autonetics division and the more than 450 members of the Security Department are equipped to handle any problem. Patrolman Wilburn A. Smith and Lt. Ralph L. Rardin are shown at the gun lockers.

major offenders. Now, Halloran says, it "almost safe to say there are no crooks in that field, but Jack Horner, manager of Builders' Exchange of Long Beach, president and manager of the Better Business Bureau, can cite local instances in the past few months in which salesmen untroubled by scruples have tried to bilk homeowners on renovations.

Both the exchange and the bureau will gladly give you copies of checklists and other free information dealing with the busily growing field of home improvement, which takes 40 percent of all money spent on home construction and in 1960 totaled $13 billion investment, according to the

U. S. census, "Remember, the contractor is the one who wants to do the job for you," Halloran advises the property owner, in recommending wary approach to the signing of a con-

Every detail of the work should be covered as spe-cifically as possible by written agreement, he says. Thirty percent of all complaints arise from misunderstandings of oral agreements. He gives the example of a contractor and a homeowner deciding verbally on floor tilewith the one thinking of the finest vinyl and the other of the cheapest kind of asphalt, tion of all work to be done and all materials to be used is one of the most important elements that must be set out in the contract. The standard practice is to attach the description in the form of plans and specifications.

Halleran recommends that an architect be retained for all but the simplest jobs, to insure that the specifications are clear, Similarly, he suggests the legal safeguard of having an attorney examine the whole contract for loopholes.

Another vital factor for the customer's protection is a clause requiring all extras added to the basic contract be agreed to in written, signed amend-ment, that include the prices,

"MANY PEOPLE don't realize," he says, "that eva nearly invariable rule, whether they come from something uncovered in the old structure as the job goes on or from a housewife's wish to have something added to the original plan."

Also important is the scheduling of progress payments and clear statements as to starting and completion dates of the work.

The down payment should be reasonable or even nominal in size," he The contractor just has to secure a building permit and have a plan check and five percent should be enough for that."

THE SIZE and timing of payments to be made as work progresses is up to the customer's judgment in negotiations with the contractor, but Halloran feels the property owner should seek a clause providing for a final payment of 10 to 15 percent to be withheld until the legal time for filing liens has passed.

The instrument known as the "mechanic's lien" can be used by contractors, suppliers and wage earners to make the property owner liable for payments. Lien laws are full of the kinds of complexities that furrow lawyers' brows, but basically they provide a certain period after completion of a job during which tradespeople can start court action for money they think is due HOMEOWNERS caught in the bankruptcy of a local concern faced many lien actions, both large and small, from many claimants.

For the homeowner who does get served with a notice that someone intends to file a lien, this is Halloran's advice:

"First contact an attomey. The cost is nominal just to go and discuss it and at least then you will know which way to

OK Sure in

The move would combine existing national nuclear forces under a separate com mand, but it would be only a small step toward the U.S. goal of a multilateral force under joint ownership, joint staffing and joint command.

The United States was understood to have made substantial progress on the multilateral force in private talks, but is not expected to push it at the May 22-24 NATO meeting here. The main problem is continued French opposition.

FRANCE was reported to have agreed to go along with the approval of an interallied force on the understanding that NATO will stress publicly that the new force is simply an extension of U.S. and British nuclear power.

Columbia Broadcasting Sys tem (CBS) correspondent Blaine Littel reported from Paris that agreement already has been reached on the final wording of the communique for the meeting here. He said:

"French President Charles de Gaulle himself has approved the draft of the document summing up the results of the conference which is still to take place. In effect, the NATO delegates meeting in Canada will agree to cer tain modifications, certain additions to NATO's nuclear striking power, a few revi sions in the change of command, but, bowing to French rensitivity, will not say this is anything new.

UNDER the expected agreement, the NATO force will consist of units already poskessing nuclear weapons or committed to accept them. These will include American Polaris missile submarines in the Mediterranean, the British bomber command, tactical air forces of Canada, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and two French squadrons based in Germany. The Russians, meanwhile charged that the United States plans to arm merchant ships with Polaris nuclear rockets. They threatened to attack and destroy any Polaris-armed merchant vessel -American or NATO. The charge came from Adm Sergel Gorshkov, commander in chief of the Soviet navv. in an article in the Soviet government newspaper. Izvestia.

THE U.S. and Britain have denied they had any plans to arm merchantmen.

The United States Saturday rejected as "preposterous" a Soviet protest against President Kennedy's plans to build a seaborne NATO nuclear force. In a note delivered to the

Kremlin, the State Department said that European powers threatned by Moscow with nuclear annihilation had every right to take appropriate defense measures and intended to do so. It said Russian allegations that the NATO force would the an agkressive instrument and might be used by West Germany to regain territory lost in World War II were "groundless charges."

HERE'S ONE that could become one of those anecdotal classics, many times with different participants and locale. But it comes here straight from one of my scouts who heard it related by a woman who had been to a beauty parlor while Astronaut Cooper was in flight,

She remarked to the beauty operator that she had a headache, and said it may have been due to suspense over the space venture.

"I'm not only concerned about the astronaut, but about his little family," she

THERE'S something about blank lines on a ballot that brings out the juvenile in some people who must be over 21.

And so we find, on the lines left for write-ins, a lot of sophomoric horseplay.

At last week's city election, the name of Khrush-chev, numerous baseball players, comic strip characters, etc., were written in for city attorney, city auditor, and other offices.

It isn't just that this is frivolous tinkering with a supposedly sacred democratic privilege, but it complicates and delays the work of election canvassers.

URBANITES with a yen to get into a countryside where there's still authentic rural atmosphere may be interested in an experience I had the other day when I accompanied some of my service club friends on a trip to the Pauma Valley Inn.

This lovely valley lies at the base of Mt. Palomar, whose rugged battlements off striking contrast with the gentle undulations, green meadows and pastoral scenes of Pauma.

There are farms, and and horses white fences, and cows nibbling on pasture grass. The road winds through patches of oak and rolling meadowland and isn't built for motorists driving like mad to get somewhere, or nowhere, in a hurry.

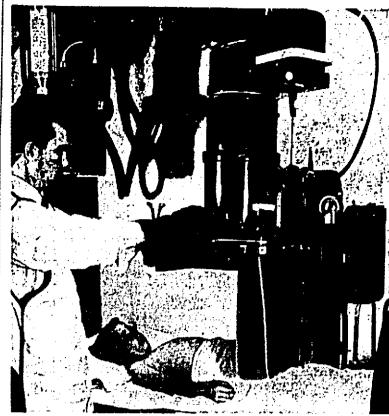

We went to Pauma Valley by driving down the coast to Oceanside (freeway all the way to Oceanside from (Westminster Seventeenth extension) and Santa Ana Fry. in Santa Ana) and then turning east and driving about 30 miles on State Highway 76. There are alternate routes to make a loop drive coming home that can be identified on any good map,

At Pauma Valley Inn there's a beautifully developed and maintained golf course with high rates and numerically limited play.

This course is noted for its multiplicity of sand traps. Somebody said there are 164. And one of the fellows who played it said that it was just like being all afternoon on the beach with a golf club.

DRIFTWOOD-Long Beach -Dr. Elmer Clark's crusade to get service organizations to sing the last verse of "America," rather than the first, has received notice in the Lions International Magazine for May. Richter's Homework On a Seismograph

Like many busy profes-Richter takes his work home with him.

Unlike most, however. he doesn't do it in an attache case.

Dr. Richter is professor of seismology at Caltech in Pasadena-and one of the world's leading authorities on earthquakes.

And his homework is done on a full-fledged seismograph — an earthquake measuring deviceinstalled in his living room.

THE PROFESSOR, developer of the Richter scale for measuring the intensity of quakes, obligingly makes expert information available to news media at the drop of an earth fault.

He reads the quake intensity in Pasadena, then calculates its center by triangulating readings from two other widely spaced seismographs,

Until recently, the professor had to hop out of bed, dress and drive the three miles to the palatial old Spanish-style mansion just west of the Arroyo Seco where the seismo lab is located.

Now, with a seismograph in his home, Dr. Richter not only is spared considerable inconvenience, but much quicker dissemination of information about the temblor can be made.

Time is important, too. not only to spread the news to the curious, but also in Dr. Richter's other duty as part of the federal government's warning

The seismograph in his living room is just like those at the lab.

It is built around a heavy pendulum, suspended by delicate springs. The pendulum records the slightest vertical earth movements. The motion is magnified electronically and recorded on a graph.

Besides being a functional addition to the furnishings of the seismologist's home, the impressive instrument has become quite a neighborhood conversation piece. Home seismographs may even become the latest status symbol. Imagine the impression such a ploy would create: I noticed on the seismograph last night , . .

AS THEY CONSIDER what stand to take on a bill to end the double tax which certain cities pay for health services, some California legislators ask what these cities intend to do with the "savings" that would result.

We agree that this is an important questionbut one which the cities themselves should decide, and one which is entirely separate from the issue now before the Senate. Regardless of what the cities plan to do in the future, the double tax is wrong in principle and should be eliminated.

LONG BEACH TAXPAYERS support a fine local Health Department, but also have to pay the county for health services that are not needed or used. A measure introduced by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas would exempt cities such as this from paying for duplicate county health services.

This merely means that the taxpayers of the cities involved would no longer pay the county tax exacted for the support of the county department. In this sense, there would be a true tax saving (about $350,000 for Long Beach taxpayers); there would not be that much more in the local treasury.

 \star IF LONG BEACH citizens should obtain relief from $350,000 in county taxes, the city would no doubt hear at once from various local groups and individuals with plans for hiking city taxes to absorb the "saving." The temptation to look upon any such tax relief as extra spending money should be resisted. DAVID LAWRENCE We know of no official policy at this time to raise local taxes to the extent that the county health tax may be reduced. Certainly, the local Health Department, if in need, would have strong claim on such revenues.

BUT, WE REPEAT, that is a separate matter from the one which the legislators must decide. They are simply being asked to pass a bill which exempts the cities from paying for something they don't use. noticed. That simple issue should not be clouded by irrelevant arguments.

Customs Man Is Human Being Too

I, P-T WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON-Having over the past year done quite a bit of dashing across the Atlantic, I've had a number of contacts with the United States Customs Service-an outfit which has been damned, cursed, insulted, resented and denounced by myriads of trate travelers who, usually through their own fault, have created trouble for themselves when in the custom house.

Our customs officials have at best a hapless job and it's about time someone spoke up on their behalf. Personally, our relations with customs officials have been good. We've found them pleasant, intelligent, helpful men who are doing their level best to make workable the complicated customs laws which have been thrust upon them. It might be well for some of our more ill-tempered travelers to remember that the men in uniform at the airport customs shed or at the dock dain't make the laws which they have sworn to uphold. Those laws come from Congress and the streams of sour words which are so often directed against the men in uniform ought in reality to be directed some other place. The poor official is merely trying to do

FROM LONG OBSERVATION, I have concluded that people are either at their best or at their worst when traveling. When all goes well they beam and smile and treat other people with consideration and respect. When things go wrong, however, they snatl and shout and take their frustrations out on their wives, children and whoever else happens to be handy which upon arrival in the United States is generally the customs officer. In the course of his long hours of duty the customs officer is subjected enormous amount of unjustified vitriol and abuse from the ill-mannered mouths of nerve-frazzled travelers. Under the circumstances, it is not surprising that the harrassed official, being after all human too, occasionally allows his nerves to show and shouts "you're one too" at his boorish accuser.

OUR OWN EXPERIENCES with the gentlemen in the hive uniforms have been happy, Last Labor Day, for instance, we landed at New York's Idlewild airport well past midnight as a flood of planes from Lurope inundated the sustoms shed. We were traveling with wife, four overtired children and mountains of haggage. On top of it all, we had a close connection with a plane for Washington. The customs inspector saw my plight and was not only polite, courteous and sympathetic but was downright helpful in organizing the expeditionary force necessary to move family, baggage, and assorted children's playtoys to enother airline in another building.

IN THE COURSE OF ARRIVING in the U.S. I've seen customs inspectors struggle manfully to aid those who couldn't speak anything but Lithuanian; I've seen them expedite matters for mothers holding infants in their arms; I've seen them give comfort to the sick and a hand to the

To denounce a customs inspector is accepted by some nit-was as the hallmark of the experienced traveler. As a matter of fact, the reverse is true. Treat the customs inspector with only a modicum of politeness and decency and you'd be surprised at the kindness he will show you. Iry it some time; it works.

Many Southern Demos Would Back Goldwater Against JFK

WASHINGTON - Much has been written lately about the rise of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona as a possible Republican nominee, but the significance of his candidacy in relation to the Birmingham controversy has gone almost unof carrying the electoral votes of many Southern states if he were n o m inated for the presidency in '64, But this is related to the dilemma of LAWRENCE the Democratic Party.

Thus, in almost every Southern state, the United States senators and representatives are dependent on the Democratic Party machinery. They must support the Democratic Party organization to be re-elected. Sen. Olin D. Johnston, Democrat of South Carolina, made reference to the problem at a recent meeting of the Ala-Democratic Party leaders in Birmingham. He

"As soon as you develop a strong two-party system in the South you are going to get the same minorityvote baiting that you have in cities like New York, Chicago and Kansas City. When we reach that point in Southern politics our DREW PEARSON states rights will . . . go out the window. You will be turning over your senators and representatives like the farmer plows his field every spring.

"The last strength of states' rights is vested in the powers of your representatives in Washington whom you have elected, and re-elected and re-elected Their seniority is the source of your strength and power in Washington to preserve our states' rights. Once you start swapping your statesmen for Republicans, the hattle of states' rights will

That's why many incumbent Democrats in the South feel they have to express themselves vehemently in criticism of the Kennedy administration's tacties in Birmingham, especially in connection with the President's threat to use

federal troops The Republicans in the who are candidates for office usually soft-pedal the "civil rights" issue. But their brethren in the North do not. Sen. Johnston is right about the "minorityvote baiting." Some of the so-called "liberal" Republicans in the northern states are constantly prodding the tion, many of the Texas oil administration to brush aside states rights. The crux of the problem is the lack of courage of many men in public life. They care more for re-election than they do for basic principles which are being trampled upon in the game of politics,

There is obviously a need for a two-party system everywhere in the country. The voter wants an alternative. Often he doesn't care if the other party's platform is no better than that of the incumbent's. The tendency is to defeat at the polls the party which caused the grievance and teach a lesson for the future to the elected nominees of the other party.

Negative voting is customary throughout the United States. Many Southern Democrats would vote for Sen. Goldwater as a means of expressing their disapproval of the Kennedy administration. The Arizona senator, incidentally, will argue for civil rights and equality but wants the goal to be achieved only through the proper legal processes.

Sen. Goldwater may or may not become the Republican nominee for President. but he is one of the few Republicans active in national politics who has the temerity to insist on constitutionalism, as he forgoes the opportunities for demagoguery on the "civil rights" issue. The Republicans in the South have been making gains in the last few years. But they have done so as an "opposition" party. They are often as "conservative," the buyer would I happier customer, LYNN if not more so, than their Democratic opponents. The close race in Alabama last year for the U.S. Senate has encouraged the Republicans. The same trend has been noticeable in other states. Votes have been given to the Republicans by persons who are resentful of the policies of the Kennedy administration.

Many have suggested that it may be just a little too easy to run for City Council, In the recent election, as well as in many past, there were entrants who were completely and obviously unqualified. A limish newspaper last week said if the United States beats the Soviet Union to the moon it will "only prove that capitalist society can waste its resources as effectively as a Communist one."

The Manchester Guardian said there was "little sign that enough people in Washington" have tried to balance the gains from this goal which "the Kennedy administration has apparently set its heart on.

U.S. 22 'Steps' Closer to the Moon

Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper wrote race-to-themoon history last week by orbiting the earth 22 times at 17,544 miles an hour and making a bullseye landing in the Pacific.

American hearts swelled with pride and President Kennedy and Congress prepared a red carpet reception for the peppery little Oklahoma Air Force major and his family in Washington

But there were frightening moments when the 36year-old Cooper's automatic electric control system conked out near the end of his 20th lap. He had to steer his Faith 7 space capsule by hand, get his heat shield in proper position, then fire the retro rockets that slowed him down for safe reentry into the earth's atmosphere,

A miscalculation at his terrific speed would have meant fiery death.

COOPER WAS rocketed into orbit from Cape Canaveral. Fla., Wednesday morning and was fished from the ocean 80 miles from Midway Island by the aircraft carrier Kearsarge late Thursday. He had been aloft 34 hours and 20.5 minutes-an American record -and had traveled 575 000 miles. This was more than enough for a round trip to the moon but far short of Russian cosmonaut successes.

The astronaut lost seven pounds and was tired and dizzy when helped from his vehicle, But doctors and space technicians were pleased because he suffered no apparent ill effects from weightlessness,

"Faith 7 did well." Cooper said happily aboard the Kearsarge, He added modestly that "I had a few little jor." and "wow" was the way he described his journey over 100 nations. islands and possessions, including Red China.

Veteran astronaut John Glenn, the first American to go into orbit, directed from abourd a ship off Japan the firing of the rockets that kept Faith 7 from hurning up when it streaked into the atmosphere.

The President telephoned congratulations to Cooper aboard the Kearsarge, He anxiously had followed the pilot's re-entry through its crucial stage. Then he went on television and told the nation that "this was one of the victories of the human spirit.

MUCH OF THE world, including some Iron Curtain countries, but not Russia. saw the blastoff through saw the blastoff through TV relayed by communica tions satellites. Soviet Pre-mier Nikita Khrushchev nevertheless congratulated Kennedy and Cooper.

At Cape Canaveral, Walter Williams, director of Mercury Project operations, said that in his control trouble "Cooper was very much on top of the situation . . . this guy shined."
Dr. D. Bramerd Holmes, director of manned space flight for the space administration, said Cooper's success was "another step toward going to the moon and making America first in space flight."

Williams was asked what would have happened had ic-Cooper been unconscious when his control system. failed, "He would still be up there," he replied, "He would not have been able to re-enter." A short-circuit was blamed for the malfunction. This may call for another Mercury Hight be-

Racial tensions in Birmingham, Ala., eased some-what after the President ordered 3,000 federal troops into jump-off bivouacs near the industrial city.

The President resorted to drastic action after Negrowhite rioting jeopardized an agreement between businessmen and Negro leaders to desegregate downtown

Segregationist Mayor Art Hanes called on all citizens to repudiate the agreement as the spawn of "fuzzy minded liberals." Gov. George C, Wallace challenged Kennedy's authority as "dictatorship," but the President said the troops would stay until the citizens themselves make federal intervention unnecessary. He appealed to whites and Negroes alike to "realize that violence only breeds volence."

Newton N. Minow who had termed television "a vast wasteland," resigned as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, effective June 1, Minow was noted for his twofisted administration. He will be succeeded in the chairmanship by an equally tough director, 34 year-old Commissioner E. William Henry. The President also announced he would name Justice Department trusthuster Lee Loevinger to the commission, Minow will take a $100,000-a-ayear job

A PRESIDENTIAL emergency board called on the railroads and rail unions to avert a nationwide strike by starting talks at once on ways to settle their dispute over work rules outlawed by the Supreme Court. These include socalled featherbedding-jobs which the carriers say can be abolished as surplus, The President urged both sides to give "most serious consideration to the board's recommendations, He said the future of collective bargaining may depend upon the outcome. Negotiations will resume Monday.

The Supreme Court ruled that any union member's dues cannot be used for political purposes without his consent. It suggested strongly that such money must be refunded to the member unless it is used for collective bargaining pur-DOSES.

Lipscomb Malinged Wrongly

During the past week certain commentators have been wondering aloud if the recently deceased Big Daddy Lipscomb (1) was connected with gamblers and (2) if he had been on the dope habit for several years.

I have no reason for defending the All-Pro Pittsburgh ... Steeler lineman, but neither misses.

From autopsy reports. Lipscomb succumbed from an overdose of narcotics. There is no defense of this action. Big Daddy was very wrong. On the other hand, just because his demise was did.

Another broadcaster claimed that "it is now apparent Lipscomb had been on dope a long time because main-lining (a direct injection into the blood stream and the way Big Daddy was killed) is developed over a period of

That statement is not necessarily correct. Because Digeo and Turner in the time zer of Valley. Both were Lipscomb may have just started the heroin habit (and of 9.6. wasn't used to mainlining) is a very possible reason why he died so suddenly. If he had been a longtime narcotics user, Big Daddy probably would have survived the strong dosage which resulted in his death.

Another thing, commentators. There's no way you can tell me that any athlete with a narcotics habit can go undetected by his teammates. They shave, shower and stand unclothed together virtually every day for six months. A narcotic would be spotted in this company quicker than a Nazi with a swastika.

From what information I can gather, Lipscomb got "hooked" after the past football season. He remained in Los Angeles some weeks after the January Pro Bowl and. sadly, acquired the habit that killed him right here in Southern California.

I RECALL VIVIDLY my last encounter with Lipsc hb-after the final football game he ever would play, the Pro Bowl affair Jan. 13.

Ordinarily, Big Daddy was somewhat on the grouchy side to newsmen because he didn't like to undergo interrogation. On this occasion, however, he was extremely pleasant—and for an excellent reason: He had just been voted "lineman of the game" by the folks in the press box.

I recall writing that Big Daddy was particularly happy on the afternoon of Jan. 13 because the suspicion had lurked that the brute from Detroit's Miller High School was nearing the end of his career—and Big Daddy was aware of the whispers and stories.

"Guess I showed those folks today," thundered a larger (and meaner looking) edition of Sonny Liston. "Man, I was mad when I went out to play today."

He was so frolicksome, he attempted to demonstrate to a newsman how he handled most of the losing West team's line by himself. The newsman almost set a record for the 10-yard dash out of the locker room.

LIPSCOMB ALSO WAS happier than a kid with a new toy when he explained the work cut out for him to gain "lineman of the game" laurels.

"That West team had three men on me all the time, Big Daddy chortled, "Jim Parker, Harley Sewell and Forrest Gregg. They all gave me hell. I always could handle two guys pretty easy, but when I get three all-pros-aiming at me all day, I get kinda tired.

On one play when Dick Bass came through the line, I was fighting Parker with my hands, Sewell with my feet and Gregg with my rear end. But, you know, I got that little Bass anyway."

If that sounds like a man on a dope habit, maybe some other players should take an extra cold shot now

Johnny Olszewski summed up the Lipscomb tragedy by declaring that "Big Daddy's death may have done one thing-proven a lesson to thousands of kids in the country that dope is a terrible thing. It may sink in to a lot of

Would you rather make a base hit or a birdie here this week, Phil?

"The hase hit, if you will make it an extra base hit. There's no thrill like that. But that pitcher the Nitehawks had last year (Jack Randall) really burns them in. I got a bunt single off of him, and I considered it my outstanding hit of the year." Can the Entertainers give the Nite-hawks a good game? "Yes, this is an all-star team chosen from a league of show business people. Johnny Berardino plays for us, and he used to be a major leaguer. John Casavetes and Mike Dante are other good players. Bobby Darin might play if he's in town. I'm the left fielder."

Is Lolita (Sue Lyon) a good batgirl? "She's a real cute little girl. John Harris, who produced Lolita, plays center field for us, and he brings her to the games."
What is your handleap in golf?

"An II, I've played some real good golf, but I'm not consistent. I guess I don't practice enough. My best round was a 69 at Bel Air, and I bogied the last two holes." Who would you rate as the top golfers in show business? The best is Bob Sterling. If he plays in the tournament here, he should be the winner. There are several other good ones like Bob Wilke, Pat Harrington, John Agar and watch out for Jack Ging. He's playing very well. And don't forget Dean Martin. He told me he would try to play in the tournament."

How good is your father?

"Dad used to be the best I ever saw. He played to a 3 or 4 handicap. But he doesn't play much any more. He had a great short game and a real smooth swing and always

Did he influence you to become a golf-

"Yes, dad got us all started. My brother Lindsey is a real fine player, and he will be playing in the tournament. Dad always encouraged us, and gave us tips. He sure loves that game."

You have played in pro-amateurs with the tops pros. Who is your favorite?

Gary Player is the best partner I've ever had. We played in the Seattle World's Fair tournament last year. He shot 64 and I had 75, and we were 18 under as a team. He's a great little guy. Some of the pros don't like to bother with amateurs, but he clubbed me on every hole. I also played with Palmer once at Las Vegas. He's a wonderful guy."

As a former business partner of Harland Svare, do you think he will be successful as coach of the Rams?

"Yes, I think he will do very well. I'd say he can't miss. The organization problems of the Rams have been cleared up, and Harland will be a strong leader. The Rams have good players, and I'll be surprised if they don't win half of their games next season.

If you could change places today with any athlete, who would you choose?

'This may sound controversial, but there is one athlete who is both my buddy and my idol, Paul Hornung. It really made me sad to read some of the things they wrote about him. He's really a fine person, and throwing a game would be the last thing in the world he would do. I think he's

How to Fish in Famous Eagle Lake

Since returning from the Northern California trip, I have received a half-dozen telephone calls about Eagle Lake, and other inquires about the entire northern area which I have visited many times.

One caller mentioned the fact that I had said nothing about baits or lures in Eagle Lake, that mile-high resort 16 miles from Susanville. It is there that the large salmo acquilarum-honest, folks, that's what they call that big

As I mentioned before, three trout comprise a limit there. Anglers try everything, Some succeed with wobbling spoons, others use great gobs of night crawlers wrapped around hooks. Our young boatman, who caught a 41/2-pounder, got his fish on a fly, called a squirrel tail and tied in Susanville.

But the classic bait of all time was a big worm on a hook with marshmallows tied above it. This strange creation interested me more than any one thing on the marshmallows and all and takes off for deeper water. FEW BOATS ARE available at Eagle Lake, but the operators there plan to add to the fleet as soon as possible. It is easy, however, to trailer a boat to the lake. It can be launched at the Eagle Lake Marina, or there are several places along the shore where light boats may be launched without getting into difficulty.

Most of the fishing is done from shore, which slopes gently and where anglers may build camp fires. Such fires feel good when the 12-to-2 wind starts, particularly if there is snow on the ground as there was when we were there. By 12 to 2, I mean noon to 2 p.m., but often the wind lasts longer than just 2 p.m. Later in the season, deep trolling from boats becomes extremely popular because old Salmo goes down to cooler Reavis.

water. Right now, it's cold enough on top, and he's hungry. Our boatman and other natives of the area have a trick method of using that squirrel-tail fly. They tie the monofilament line to a light plastic float, then use a six-foot leader below the float. In that way one may use regular casting equipment or a spinning outfit and get the fly far away from shore or the boat.

There is plenty of wide-open space around Eagle for camping, but there is need for more sanitary facilities. Self-contained campers are ideal and we saw a dozen such vehicles along the shore.

SPEAKING OF SANITARY facilities, Gov. Brown's temper outburst really got some action at Frenchman Reservoir in Plumas County after the first weekend of fishing when 3,600 anglers went there for one of the greatest trout openings in the state's history.

They caught fish—lots of fish—but they found no toilets, no garbage cans and no places to camp. Brown, when informed of the fact, said that $200,000 had been appropriated for such facilities. He called the situation one of "absolute neglect" and said, "I'm going to do something about it immediately even if I have to fire some-

Hugh Fisher, administrator of the State Resources Agency, discovered that there had been a mixup between the federal government, the state (which built the reservoir) and the county. Twenty chemical tollets and plenty of garbage cans were sent there immediately. This week they are busy cleaning up the entire area and construction of permanent sanitary facilities has

Strangely enough, hundreds of limits of rainbow trout, 12 to 14 inches and better, were taken from Frenchman on the opening weekend. And just as strangely, Union Valley, another new reservoir in the Sierra Nevada, produced only a few fish. The DFG had thought it would be one of the hottest spots in the state. The fish Inboards Go went into hiding.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS-Bill Doctor, 5200 Sandwood, Long Beach, is listed as the third prize winner in the sixth week of the San Diego Yellowtail Derby. His fish weighed 24-15.

With Ted Williams," and shows the former Red Sox slugger in action against the big silvery fish in Florida. The other picture concerns Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest and his family on a camping trip through Alaska's spectacular mountain country.

That picture is entitled "Come Camping in Alaska," and shows the entire Hillary family, Lady Hillary and their children, Peter, 7, Sarah, 5, and Lindy, 3, going from Haines Alaska, to Mt. McKinley National Park. Three Department of Fish and Game men have been JOFRE KEEPS !

MANILA (UPI) - Tough little Eder Jofre of Brazil scored a 12th-round technical knockout over Filipino challenger Johnny Jamito Saturday night to retain his world bantamweight championship.

The fight ended when Jamito was unable to respond to the bell starting the 12th round.

Jofre, a solid favorite in the scheduled 15-rounder before 22,000 fans, got off to a slow start, but steadily picked up steam, Jofre now is unbeaten in 47 professional fights, including seven title defenses.

She Sets the Style in Service to Others

...income is meager, rewards are great

Bette Stillwell is a pert lass who ignores the quirks of fame and fashion. She'll never have a change of hats. And her simple, understated suit will always be the same.

But she couldn't care less. She's one of a hardy breed who can't be bothered with feminine frivolities. Instead, she's devoted her life to Christian service. Her blue serge suit, a Salvation Army original, has been copied by thousands of other gentle warriors in 86 countries.

And her traditional bonnet, first designed to ward off brickbats, bottles and other missiles flung by unfriendly crowds, is a badge of courage and devo-

CAPTS. BETTE and Bob Stillwell, commanding officers of the local Salvation Army corps, donned their uniforms five years ago after completing officers training in San Francisco.

Although the parents of both had been Salvation Army officers, it was indeed a new way of life for the couple and their four youngsters.

Bob Stillwell, a former gridiron great at USC, had been football coach at Santa Monica High School. His teams had won two Southern California CIF scholarships. His stars included Ron Knox and Jack Douglas, later of Stanford.

But these victories did not hold sufficient rewards for Bette and Bob Stillwell. They gave up their comfortable way of life to win followers for Christian principles.

THE REWARDS have been more gratifying than we ever dreamed possible," says the attractive brunette lass. But the demands are great.

Like all Salvation officers, both are ordained ministers. They live in an Army-owned house (3745 Gaviota) with furnishings chosen by someone else.

Regardless of rank, together they can carn no more than $75 a week, out of which they tithe back to the church and support their family of four boys. (Officers can marry only within the service.) In Army tradition, their children will grow up working for the cause and, as in any army, one or more probably will follow the family calling (as Bette and Bob did).

THE ARMY still preaches old-time religion. All officers must be ordained ministers, abstain from liquor and tobacco; most of them play one or more musical instruments. They are enormously cheerful.

"Why should a Christian be gloomy?" asks Bette.

And who has time, with a schedule like hers?

During a typical day she may do business with everyone from the City Desk to the City Jail.

HOUSEWIFE, MOTHER Bette Stillwell's busy schedule at home is usually interrupted by telephone calls, any hour of day or night. Many are from people in trouble, since Stillwells' phone number is posted outside Salvation Army building. Their home is Army-owned and fornished; music-loving Stillwells have added piano.

Bonnet Party Is May 29

To benefit the Salvation Army's building fund, the Women's Auxiliary will hold its second annual Bonnet Tea on May 29, 12:30 p.m., at the Elk's Club, 4101 E. Willow St.

A preview showing of fall fashions by California couturiers will be presented by Wilma Hastings in the club's main dining room.

Special Hollywood guest will be Verna Felton, Hilda of TV's "December Bride." Hats will be by California milliner Buddy Hirsch, who will help commentate the show.

Tickets are available through the Citadel, 329 Locust Ave., and Mrs. Frank Salter, 3989 Lewis Ave., ticket chairman.

ORDAINED MINISTER Bette Stillwell often fills in for husband, Capt. Bob Stillwell, during Sunday services at Salvation Army Citadel. During Sunday school she may give special presentation during preliminaries, substitute at piano or for absent teacher. Often in attendance are busloads of children from low-income housing areas who would not otherwise have church home.

The fact that Chef of the Week, Capt. William F. Tanner Jr., did take a couple of gasps for a second wind, following graduation and be-fore becoming airborne, is Immaterial,

That he headed in the right direction is evidenced by the fact that he has two Distinguished Flying Medals and a Purple Heart to show for his decision,

Also, he now commands the largest of 18 U.S. Naval Air Stations in the United States, assigned to reserve training. Located in Los Alamitos, the base numbers 1,000 permanent members and 3,500 reservists.

Tanner was born in Chicago, but didn't tarry long. After a slight detour through Cleveland, his parents, he, and his three brothers arrived in San Pedro when he was only four, Grammar, junior and senior high schools all were mastered in San Pedro before he enrolled at USC. He graduated with a BS degree in business administration.

WHILE IN high school, he "captained" the football team and presided over the student body. Tanner played varsity baseball for three years, and then signed with the old St. Louis Browns. A shoulder injury termi-nated his batting prowess.

Upon graduation, Tanner, joined the Naval Air Corps and was sent to Pensacola. Fla., as an aviation cadet. His first honor came in the form of a gold star for In 1942 he was sent with a brothers in San Pedro. squadron to England.

BERT'S EYE VIEW.

'The Cadillac' Pleasing TV Experiment

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

A series of still photos, snapshots, if you will, make up one of the most engrossing 21 minutes of television I have ever seen,

The program, entitled "The Cadillac," airs 8 p.m. Wednesday on KNXT's (channel 2) "Repertoire Workshop."

Don't let the word "snapshots" minimize for you the value of this experimental program as a TV production.

Watching it is not like turning the pages of an amateur's photo album.

FOR INSTANCE, to illustrate one segment, five prints—snapshots—were joined together and a 360-degree pansean effect was used with as much success as a motion-picture scenery take.

In fact, each scene was posed as a director would set up a motion picture.

Watching this production, as I did last week, you are conscious that the pictures are still, but there is a decided feeling of mobility.

It is a motion-picture feeling of mobility that ties together with the continuity of the story.

THE STORY is about a Mexican potato picker and his family in the United States. He wins a Cadillac.

How this changes his status in the community in a twoday period is a touching and moralistic story.

The farmer is played by Alex Montoya and his TV son, Danny Bravo, serves as narrator.

The drama was shot on Dominguez Ranch, between -Long Beach and Compton.

It won this year's Cinema Editors Award for the bestedited short and was nominated for an Academy Award.

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK-(NEA)-Phil D'Antoni seems to be still in a daze from the experience. He gives every indication of a man who is all shook up.

You see, Phil has had some close contacts with Elizabeth Taylor recently. He's prob-ably the only man this side of Pontrhydyfen, Wales, who is able to talk informatively about what La Liz is really like,

Phil D'Antoni is a television producer. He and his partner, Norman Baer, had the bright idea that a television show starring Miss Tay-lor might go, Although their Joint enterprise, Television Productions of America, was brand new, they sat down and put in a telephone call to Elizabeth Taylor. That's something like trying to call Jack Benny collect.

THEY outlined their idea and sent a long follow-up cable with more details. And suddenly Phil found himself in London, face to face with the face many consider the world's loveliest.

"When she talks to you," he says, and his face takes

So you couldn't lure her to television with money."

NEW YORK (NEA)-Dean Jagger thinks that the same public which enjoys The Beverly Hillbillies will welcome a thoughtful, provocative drama like his Mr. Novak series, due next fall on NBC,

"Don't underestimate the public," says the veteran actor. "I know the type of people I'm alming for, People like my sister on the farm in Indiana where they raise 2,000 turkeys. MR. NOVAK deals with the life of a school principal and teacher, and there is a lot of Dean Jagger in Mr. Novak.

"When I was 17," he says, "I taught for one year in Troy Township, Whitley County, Ind. The school was a mile from my home and every day I would trot that one mile.

"When things got dull at school, I would gather the pupils around the stove and pop com. One day the superintendent came by but he didn't interrupt the com pypping. Years later, I met him and he told me he approved of what I had done. We might put that incident on Mr. Novak."

JAGGER SAYS Mr. Novak will consider provocative subects.

"I'd rather not list them now," he says, "but you know what the problems are that confront us. Things like segregation and honesty. These are things we'll discuss."

I'll have to check with a higher authority. . . .

Could you please tell me when or if the motion picture "High Noon" will come back on television?

It's my favorite and I watch it when I can.

Glen Matheny, Long Beach

I like it, too, even though Gary Cooper always wins the shoot-out and won't change no matter how many times you watch it, I'm sure it will be back. Most of the good oldies do come back and back and back.

I would be pleased if you could arrange a special for TV, I have a feeling that most of the people who do like specials would enjoy seeing another one of our funny Danny Kaye and the pretty Lucille Ball.

I hope you will see it my way.

Jacqueline Fletcher, Long

I see it your way, Jacque-line, but I doubt if CBS will arrange another special with the pair, Lucy is busy working on her show, which comes back in the full. Dunny is readying his own show, which starts next

The pause that refreshes: Taking a breather as well as taking in a sweeping view of the Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor basin, highway division engineers Bob Bateman and John Poppe pause during an inspection tour of the Vincent Thomas Bridge, Iron workers and engineers busy on the huge project were wearing self - satis-fied smirks when the New Frontier hiking fad was at its zenith, for they were making the climb up and down the 330-foot-high tower several times daily, either on the undulating catwalk or afoot on the suspension bridge. (Photographer Roger Coar used the climb as a warm-up for an insurance physical later in the day.) More about the big bridge on Page 7.

SHOP MONDAY TILL 9:00 P.M.

Coffee grinder, "sadiron," heavy iron lettle and an assortment of kitchen "labor savers" are shown here.

By Helen L. Gillum

A LONG BEACH housewife recently complained that her three-year-old electric can-opener was already "oldfashioned," because it lacked the knife-sharpener found on many of the newer models!

She and many other persons might enjoy a visit into "kitchens of the past" by way of Rancho Los Cerritos, the former home of the pioneer Bixby family at 4600 Virginia Road, now Long Beach's Historical Museum, Here, on a display table in the dining room of the old adobe structure, is a comprehensive collection of iron kitchen gadgets, great grandma style. They tell a story of times when a housewife not only would have shuddered at the thought of preparing a meal from a tin can or two, but she and her family considered "home - canned" fruits and vegetables to be the rule of the day-along with home-cured meat and break baked in the big kitchen range. In fact, the young bride who started bousekeeping with "modern appliances" that ground coffee, peeled and sliced apples, and pitted cherries, probably counted herself lucky, Nor did she ever dream of flushing the parings down the drain through an electric disposal

ALTHOUGH most of the cast-iron objects on display here were not originally used by the Bixby family, they are, according to Bill Evans Jr., curator at the Rancho, representative of that era of the 1860s and '70s, when the Rancho was occupied by the Bixbys. There are three apple peclers equipped with small, razor-sharp knives and sharp prongs for impaling the apples. Two cherry pitters, an apple slicer, and gear-driven beater work almost as smoothly as when they were made 100 years ago. A coffee mill, sausage grinder and an old "sadiron"—the kind that was heated on the wood-burning cookstove - might bring reminiscent groams from Grandmother, and amused chuckles from Mrs. Modern

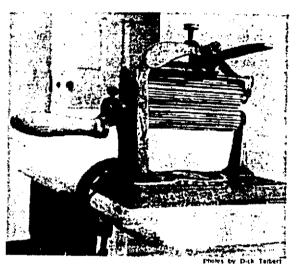

One dandy little contrap-tion — "The Original Knox Fluter," patented Nov. 20, 1866, is enough to make a homemaker today throw up her hands in horror. This elegant thingamabob, designed for pressing ruffles and frills, has a six-inch ribbed roller, and the base of the machine was clamped to the table to insure stability as the operator wielded a hefty crank.

A smaller "Geneva Handy
Fluter" has a crescentshaped ridged bottom that rolls over a grooved base to flute the material into ruffles. This may have been used on baby clothes or, perhaps, as a "practice iron" for little sister.

TWO HEAVY, cast-iron muffin "tins" are known to have come from the Bixby family. Two heavy black griddles may not be so oldfashioned as they seem since many such griddles, handed down through families, are still used today because of the excellent pancakes they

bake. But the cumbersome iron teakettle, two-gallon capacity, 10 inches in diameter and 8 inches high, is best left sitting on its trivetl

In addition to the iron gadgetry, Rancho Los Cerritos features many other interesting old-time furnishings. It is open from I to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays. Evans, or a friendly docent (voluntary guide), will take visitors, free of charge, back across the years to when men were men, and strong-armed housewives powered the kitchen appliances with a song on their lips-and perhaps a liniment bottle within easy reach on a nearby shelf!

Designed to press ruffles and frills, this "Original Knox Fluter" survives an early era of home devices. this "Original

By Betty Hardesty and rock stand seven feet high.

TRUILDING dream castle after dream castle is a way of life for Louis Lagler of 925 Locust Ave. His castles are his own personal designs which often change with his fancy as they are constructed of plaster of Paris, brick, wood and even bone.

The castle of which Lagler is most proud awaits admirers at his hobby-shop, 763 Loma Vista Dr. Its shining gold paint sets off the medieval beauty of its towers and spires, carved windows and turrets. Standing on a 2½ foot table, the four-foot castle

the hill to the main entrance flanked by corner towers, One taller tower adds accent to the massive structure of plaster of Paris. Molded over shaped tin, the towers may be dismantled into three sections held in place by wooden pegs. Langler found this method convenient for making small parts such as donner windows as well as for moving the 400pound castle. It costs him $20 each time he takes it anywhere, he says.

The surprising part of the method is that each decoration, window and stone has been carved by hand from a smooth mold of the desired form and size.

Vincent Thomas bridge, Southland's greatest . . .

'The Angel's Gate'

By Lou Jobst

SAN FRANCISCO'S world-famed bay bridges will soon have a Southern California rival, a modern green giant straddling the main entrance channel of booming Los Angeles Harbor,

Named the Vincent Thomas Bridge for the waterfront lawmaker who made it a reality and built at a cost of $24 million, the Southland span will connect the heart of the nation's third largest port complex, Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbors, with any point in the megalopolis.

The bridge will be dedicated Saturday, Sept. 28, during the annual Los Angeles Harbor Fisherman's Fiesta.

The four-lane roadway will rise 185 feet above the water surface from San Pedro, dropping at a 6 per cent grade to Terminal Island.

Although smaller than her sisters in the north, the monumental Oakland Bay Bridge and the majestic Golden Gate, the 6,060 foot Thomas Bridge is more modern in many ways and will write a number of new pages in the tecord books

ALREADY nicknamed the "Green Gate' for the iridescent green coat of paint it will wear when completed, the Thomas Bridge will be the greatest bridge in Southern California history and the first in the world built entirely on piling, an engineering feat many experts called "impossible."

It is also the first suspension span ever to be erected in the Southland and the first bridge ever built anywhere entirely without rivets.

The Thomas Bridge has gone up faster, nearly four months ahead of the anticipated building schedule, and with a better safety record than elther the Golden Gate or Oakland bridees.

Eleven men died alone during the construction of the Golden Gate and another 19 miraculously survived plunges from the 200-foot-high struc-

One man has been killed on the Thomas Bridge project.

J. M. CURRAN of Long Beach, senior bridge engineer on the project and veteran of the building of the Oukland span, credits experience learned on the Northern California jobs as one of the factors in making the Southland project "to this point, such a successful undertaking.

Curran says he expects the bridge will be opened to traffic in October. It was originally scheduled for com-pletion in January or February, 1964.

The engineer also credits the fact the bridge was pre-assembled at the steel plants and then trucked to the harbor and put into place by following the blueprints as partly responsible for the speedy erection.

The logistics of the enterprise, begun in late 1961, are overwhelming. To build the massive footings 228 prestressed concrete piles were sunk into the earth, using 100,000 lineal feet of steel piling and 46,000 cubic yards of concrete.

THE MAIN anchor footings, located both on the mainland and Terminal Island, reach nearly 50 feet under-

To build the steel frame and the 365-foot-high twin towers, 6.2 million pounds of reinforcing steel and 22 million pounds of structural steel, all pre-welded, were hauled in, lifted up and bolted into place.

Each tower contains seven sections, varying in length from 20 to 60 feet, and weighing in the neighborhood of

Presently the roadway framework, 80 sections of 80 tons each, are being put into place. This job will be completed by the end of May when the laying of the concrete roadway, a two-month project, will begin.

TO FORM the roadway slab nearly 9,000 cubic yards of cement will be

One of the last jobs will be to paint the bridge a deep green, a brush and spray gun job which will take at least

To provide more than adequate clearance for the biggest ships in the world and to negotiate the sudden lift-up and set-down needed to cross the relatively narrow channel from the mainland to the island, the bridge was engineered to the maximum grade of 6 per cent. This grade is steeper than either the Gate or San Francisco-Oakland span and gives the Thomas Bridge a unique silhouette.

Another "big-big" job was the spinning of the 14-inch diameter suspension cables. This 5,000-mile-long knitting job involved the intertwining of 4,028 galvanized wires in 19 strands of 212 wires each.

THE CABLES are built to hold the bridge steady in 90-mile-per-hour winds. The highest on local record are 50 m.p.h.

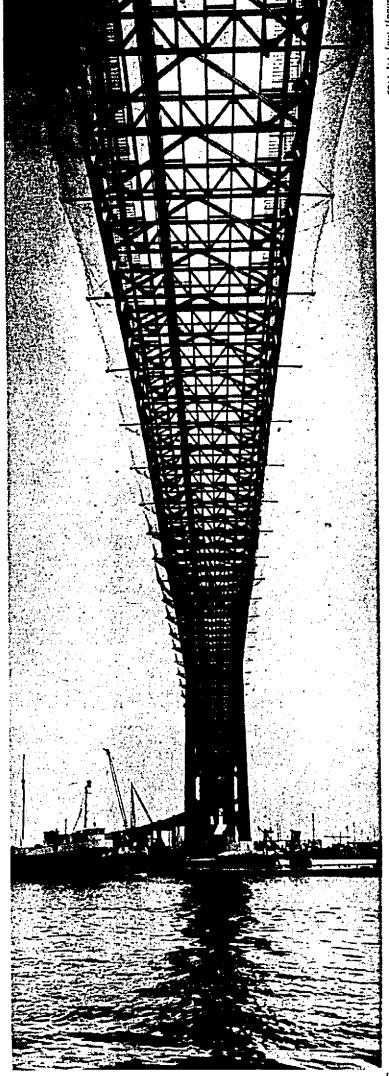

To supervise the work crew-which has ranged from a handful of workers to a full crew of 155 men, Curran has a staff of 35 state engineers, whose task it is to climb the bridge daily and inspect literally every gird-er, beam, lock aut and bolt put into place.

On the ground other specialists run alignment checks which will detect deviations down to a fraction of an inch.

Oddly enough the bridge towers do move, swaying outward in a "slow-motion" 360-degree are that follows the path of the sun across the skies. The bridge towers are constructed with this natural phenomenom in

THE BRIDGE will be directly connected to the Harbor Freeway estimates are that 2.5 million vehicles will use it during the first year, The tolls are expected to pay the cost of construction and annual maintenance.

Flung across the main channel of Los Angeles Harbor, the Vincent Thomas Bridge seems to hang in the sky in this view from San Pedro tower base.

By Hortense Hoffman

AUNT ARCADIA was stepping out of the governor's carriage just when a gust of wind and rain soaked her new white costume and the red, green and white rebozo which she wore around her head. Gov. Emanuel Micheltorena ordered his cholos (convict soldiers) to pull his carriage, the only one in California in 1843, back to her home so that she could make another toilette of white with a scarf of patriotic Mexican colors. Dona Maria Francisca Paula Arcadia Bandini de Stearns was at that time 17 and had been married three years to an influential merchant, Don Abel Stearns, who was in the carriage. There were also her sister, Ysidora, and U. S. Commodore Thomas Catesby Jones, whose mistake was the reason for the ball and a dinner at El Palacio two nights before in honor of the Mexican governor, so that the commodore could apologize for his diplomatic blunder. He had sailed into the harbor of the capital, Monterey, and taken it without a shot from acting governor. a scarf of patriotic Mexican colors. Dona Maria terey, and taken it without a shot from acting governor Alvarado, on Oct. 19, 1842. He gave it back when he was told there was no war and the British had not seized California as rumored. Commodore John D. Sloat repeated his act on July 2, 1846, and California was the 31st state admitted to the Union Sept. 9, 1850.

DAILY ACTIVITY began early in the Bandini house in Old Town, San Diego, built 1827-30. Don Juan would raise his window and sing a morning hymn and the household would join the song of devotion around the patio. Even dances opened and closed with a prayer. Everyone was Don or Dona and spoke in Spanish or sometimes French or English, and said "Go with God" (adios) at parting.

One time, Don Antonio Coronel broke a cascarone filled with $100 of gold dust over Aunt Arcadia's long black hair at a carnival dance before Lent. Cascarones were blown-out eggs filled with cologne and sealed with wax, or colored paper filled with confetti, and broken over a friend's head while dancing. They would dance La Jota, a lively minuet; La Bamba, the girl keeping a glass of water on her head without spilling; El Jarabo, the girl dancing around a man's sombrero, and the waltz, said to have been introduced by Don Juan Bandini, washed semi-annually. Cedar and pine rafters had been hauled from San Bernardino by Indians, Long wings extended to Los Angeles Street, around a paved patio, with fountains, flowers and trees. Most people were content with homemade furniture but Aunt Arcadia had dragon-carved chairs, ebony chests and tables from China, and a 100-foot ball-

EL PALACIO was torn down in 1877 by Aunt Arcadia's second husband, Col. Robert Symington Baker, who erected the Baker Block on that site. They occupied an elegant third-floor apartment and would hold open house with the other families liv-ing there each New Year's Day.

Another favorite home owned by Aunt Arcadia and Don Abel Steams was Los Alamitos Rancho, now within the city limits of Seal Beach and Long now within the city limits of Seal Beach and Long Beach, It was the beginning of a 200,000-acre empire by 1862. When Gov. Jose Figueroa died he left many debts which his brother settled with the $6,000 Don Abel paid July 1812 for the six square leagues of land, a small house and sundry articles, 900 cattle, 240 horses and nearly 1,000 sheep. In 1854, the United States Land Commission confirmed his title. Insistent San Francisco lawyers claimed that Figueroa had left three legitimate sons in Mexico who were the rightful owners. Don Abel compromised with them for $10,000 after Don Juan Arcadia's father. Don Abel built their home, El Palacio, at Main and Arcadia Streets in Los Angeles, soon after they were married in 1840. For more than 30 years they were famous in their hospitality to many distinguished visitors. The walls of the U-shaped, one-story adobe were three feet thick and were white-

This was the only ranch lost when he had to default on was the only ranch lost when he had to detail the the 112 per cent interest. He might have been completely mined had not an old friend and partner in their ship "Arcadia," Alfred Robinson, interested San Francisco investors. The Robinson Trust began to advertise and subdivide Don Abel's fertile Southern California acres. In a new era of settlement and diversified agriculture, they sold more than 20,060 acres before Aug. 23, 1871.

THAT DAY, news of his unexpected death at the age of 73 flashed over the wires from San Francisco. His body was brought to Los Angeles for interment in October and many mourners long remembered Dona Arcadia's unearthly shrick when the ropes snapped on the 800 pound coffin, pitching it into his grave.

Abel Steams was born in Lunenberg, Mass, on Feb. 9, 1798, and went to sea at 12, a penniless orphan. He established a store in Los Angeles in 1829, being then a naturalized Mexican citizen. In 1835, William Day quarreled with him over a cask of wine turned vinegar and slashed Don Abel's mouth, shoulder and hand as Stearns tried to push him out of the store. The presence of Dr. William Keith saved him from bleeding to death but he became disfigured and had a speech impairment thereafter, so was called Cara de Cabalo, or Horseface.

Both of Aunt Arcadia's husbands were wealthy Yankees, builders and civic leaders. Col. Baker was of her own age, tall, spare, well-dressed, with a circlet of white whiskers. When he came to San Francisco from Rhode Island in 1830 he brought a building in hundridge from shared a calling year. building in knockdown form aboard a sailing ves-sel. He had paid $25,000 for it in the East and after it was re-erected it brought him a rental of $36,000 a year. When he first bought the land around Santa Monica he considered sheep ranching. Sen. John P. Jones from Nevada, Comstock millionaire, bought a three-fourth interest. They filed a map with the county recorder at Los Angeles on July 10, 1875. county recorder at Los Angeles on July 10, 1875, and planned a wharf, a railroad and the town of Santa Monica. When he married Aunt Arcadia on April 28, 1875, Col. Baker deeded her his entire interest in this property. In 1888, she and Scn. Jones gave 300 acres to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Sawtelle, Barracks and hospital for 1,000 men brought prosperity to Santa Monica.

After Col. Baker died in 1891, Aunt Arcadia lived in her home in Santa Monica at 1217 Ocean Ave. for the last 17 years of her life, Although she had no children she became a legend to descendants of her large family. Two of her fifth generation nicces, Carmelita Rodd, 177 Corona Ave., and Stella Sabot, 175 Corona, have heard about Aunt Arcadia all of their lives, Their mother was Amanda Keliher Burney, granddaughter of Aunt Arcadia's sister, Jo-sepha Bandini de Carrillo. After a stroke which paralyzed her for two weeks, in her 88th year, on Sept. 16. 1912. Aunt Arcadia died. She left the most valuable estate in Los Angeles County up to that time, $8,000,000. A greater inheritance is the story of Mexican and California influence in the life of a charming child wife, a society leader in a new so-ciety, and finally a frail dignified old matriarch per-sonifying the culture of a past generation.

Dancing and music were as integral with living as breathing with the early days Californies. Don Coronal strikes a dancing pose with two Spanish belies of the day while a third gives cut with music on the guitar.

Nature's Filing Cabinets

Mistaking far pools, perhaps covered by surface water, for places to drink, prehistoric animals plunged in and were trapped. Above, La Brea pits scene.

VIST OFF Los Angeles' fabulous Wilshire Boulevard nature has provided filing cabinets full of mastodon, bison, saber-toothe tiger and other fossils. The filing cabinets are the celebrated La Brea Tar Pits.

These pits of natural asphalt have yielded the world's most valuable collection of the skeletal remains of animal life of ancient times. The fossils dug from the tur have no parallel among records brought to light by paleontologists and geologists.

In the midst of space-age, 20th century America, it is not easy to visualize what took place on this Los Angeles site cons ago, but science has recreated the dramas of nature....

from the depths of the surrounding forest, makeshis way to the pools and plunges in, mistaking the pits for water holes. He struggles desperately to free himself but his feet can find no bottom. Hopelessly trapped, the sloth lets out a despairing cry.

ATTRACTED by the sound, saber-toothed tigers slink to the edge of the pool and watch the floundering sloth with hungry eyes. With a snarl, one tiger pounces on the trapped animal's back and drives its claws in deeply. Soon the sloth stops his futile struggle and a second and third tiger leap in for the kill.

From surrounding trees come great vultures, tearing into the dead flesh of the sloth and the living flesh of tigers and wolves. The birds' huge flapping wings dip into the pool and they, too, are

HUNDREDS of centuries later, in 1901, automobiles did not yet crowd the streets and unpaved roads of Los Angeles County, but parts of the area did bristle with odd looking drilling equipment. On many a farm and lot, oil was being found in small quantities. No one had yet tapped the great pools of petroleum that were to make the area such a prolific producer.

One day, a young man named William W. Orcutt rode out to old Rancho La Brea. He was a petroleum geologist, the first man to be so designated by Union Oil Company of California, and probably the first with such a job title in the entire oil industry. Orcutt was interested in the ranch's old tar seeps and the possibility that they might contain oil.

Probing the seeps, he found many pieces of bones stuck in the tar-soaked ground. Orcutt had some knowledge of paleontology and realized that they weren't just ordinary bones. A little digging and inspection convinced the young geologist that here in the tar pits might be bones of prehistoric animals.

THE EXISTENCE of bones in the pits had been known for years. In 1769, Gaspar de Portola wrote of "the extensive swamps of bitumen and animal bones."

In the 1870s, Maj. Hancock, owner of Rancho La Brea, commercialized the tar, digging and selling it for fuel and as a roofing and paving material. He shipped it as far away as San Francisco and received up to $20 a ton for it. Hancock's Chinese diggers uncovered so many bones they were faced with a disposal problem.

But when William Orcutt saw the bones, he

But when William Orcutt saw the bones, he assembled some and sent them to Dr. John C. Merriam at the University of California, Dr. Merriam took one look and rushed to Los Angeles for a first-hand inspection of the tar pits. He discovered that here was a treasure far greater than any scientist could have imagined existed. The fossil remains in all of the world's museums at that time were nothing compared with the rich deposits apparently huried here.

In 1906, Dr. Merriam began excavating and his hopes were realized. The Rancho La Brea bones were not only numerous, but they were in an excellent state of preservation and represented a wide variety of prehistoric animals.

ALTOGETHER, the fossils of more than 4,000 animals and 4,000 birds have been recovered from the pits. Many are on display in Hancock Hall in (Continued on Page 34)

The Men Who Pick the Ponies

By Jerome Hall

AMONG the major influences on American life are the men of the cloth, the men of the law and the men who pick the ponies for the newspapers.

There are times when the handicapper could use some divine guidance and there are times when he might feel he could use some police protection

But when he sees his longshot of the day gallop home for $48.60 payoff, the world belongs to the horse race handicapper—at least in the opinion of the bettors who backed his tip.

"It's the opinion of the people who back my bad picks that bothers me," says Roy Betz, possessor of the most improbable (but most appropriate) name in the business. Betz guides the bets of readers of The Long Beach Independent, Regularly one of the leading handicappers at the three major Southern California tracks, he's often a source of embarrassment for the Los Angeles newspapers.

WHEN BETZ finishes a meeting with more winners than their handicappers, the Los Angeles newspapers are forced to claim their man "finished higher than any other metropolitan handicapper." Since that narrows the race down to a two-entry field, it isn't much of a claim. Another who causes the

Ten days ago, the two began dueling for the Hollywood Park handicapping crown. Hollywood Park is the most heavily-attended race track in America and horse racing is our number one spectator sport, with some 37 million turning out in 1962 to try to unscramble the decimal points that make horse racing such a mystery.

A most misunderstood man is the professional handicapper.

SOME HAVE likened him to the brokerage counsellor, but the handicapper would blush at the comparison. Some have likened him to the common tout—and this too makes his face turn red, but for another reason.

His is an honorable profession. "I never encourage anyone to bet," says Mason. "I tell them 'Save your money and buy a farm." But to Mason and to all professionals, the handicapping is as much a sport as the competition between thoroughbred horses is —and that's known the world over as the sport of kings.

"I think people can bet $2 a race and have a barrel of fun," says Mason, a portly fellow who in the past 18 years has built up the reputation as the best in the business. Though Mason has won more "picking" championships than any other newspaper handicapper in Southern California (He was the leader at Del Mar and Po-

MASON GOES for the long-

"People don't need me to tell them who the favorite is," he says. "People want to know what 'price' horse has the best chance to win." So Mason spends his day building the background knowledge that will uncover the price horse.

He heads for the barns.

Mason is the only handicapper who makes the tour of the backstretch. Everyone from groom to owner and trainer knows him. He learns here what colts to watch for next season and he gets the trainer's version of why the favorite finished third.

"Racing is not just comparing stop watches," says Mason, "You can't handicap a race just by weighing the times of the entries, Class is more important than straight time, Give me the class horse will overcome trouble. He has gameness and ability to carry weight, He has heart.

"THE HORSE without class will give up when he gets into trouble. Some horses are just plain cowards," says Mason, "And some are just plain lazy."

By Mason's standards, some handicappers are just plain lazy, too, Ernie's day begins before dawn when he sets out from his Long Beach suburb home for the track. By 6:30 he's making the rounds of the stable area ("This is the middle of the day back

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on HAT-FIELD.—W. W., Stanton.

W. W.: HATFIELD has a 10th century source ascribed to a town called Hatfield, The source words were "haeth-feld," which in the 10th century meant "uncultivated field." Hatfield is near Doncaster in Yorkshire. Late 13th century records list William de Hatfield, a remote forefather. The Hatfield shield is covered with ermine, em-blazoned with three silver, 5-leafed rosettes on a black chevron.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain CUSTER.-Mrs, S. P., Compton.

S. P.: CUSTER is celebrated American history because of General George Custer who commanded American forces in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, 1876, against the Indians, General Custer was descended from a Hessian-German soldier named Kuster who was in the British Army in America in 1776. After the Revolutionary War, Kuster settled in this country. Kuster was an occupational origin surname meaning "Sexton or church caretaker." The Kuster coat-of-arms from Anhalt in central Germany has a gold stripe and 12 gold dia-monds on a blue shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on ARRAS.

--Mrs. L. B., Anaheim.

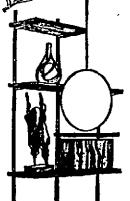

L. B.: ARRAS was first used as a family name by a forefather who left his home city of Arras, This was a famous tapestry weaving center dur-ing the 14th and 15th centuries, and was located in northeast France. Arras was originally the capital of the Gallic tribe called the Atrebatis by the Romans. This Latin name which was condensed to Arras, has an ob-scure meaning, but may decipher as "Battlers dressed in

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on WORDEN.

—R. W., Long Beach,

R. W.: WORDEN is a variation of the English surname Warden, from the Old Saxon "Wardon" meaning "guardian and watchman." There are also towns in the English counties of Kent, Bedford and Durham, called Warden. In these cases the name is from "Weard-dun" or "Watch-hill" a hill used to watch villagers of approaching enemies, Remote 13th century, ancestors include William de (of) Wardon of Oxfordshire. The Worden shield has three red leopard faces on a diagonal silver stripe across background composed of checkered pattern of blue and gold squares.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

A 'Doll' of a House That's Right for Two

By Stella George

■OME SWEET HOME to Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bartlett is a small two-bedroom house located at 5765 Lanai With their children grown, the little two adults find the little home is more than adequate, yet there is plenty of room for grandchildren or other visitors,

There are many distinctive features in the decorating theme. For example each chair in the house is covered with needlepoint made by some member of the Bartlett family. All of the paneling, the shutters, landscaping, rail fencing, and planters were do-it-yourself projects.

THE FRONT DOOR leads directly into a living room carpeted in a warm floral design with rose colored bues predominating. Each piece of furniture was carefully selected. A needlepoint rocker has a matching hassock and occasional chairs are uphol-stered with needlework. Small tables are marble-topped, as is the coffee table. The custom couch is done in old rose. The wall decoration behind the couch is a threetiered shelf which holds a choice collection of Hummel figurines. The far wall of the room is glass which overlooks the garden, lending the overall effect of a huge living picture and doubling the apparent size of the room. The wall around the glass is paneled, and soft rose curtains can be drawn when desired. Windows on the other side of the room are shuttered.

The long rectangular kitchen has a dining alcove at one end. Tile on the work areas is copper colored, matching the appliances. A plate rail holds family heirloom antique dishes. The dinette set is of maple.

IN ROTH the bedrooms there are mahogany four-poster beds with matching mahogany pieces. The crocheted bedspread in the master bedroom is a handsome piece which was done by Mrs. Bartlett.

The garden, both front and back, is neatly landscaped. The Bartletts used a garden hose to lay out the planter designs, and together they mixed the cement and laid the bricks. A new project which is now underway is the building of a patio off the garage. Grown children and grandchildren agree with friends of the Bartletts that this is, indeed, a "doll" of a house for two. One grandson even contributed to the interior decorating when he made colorful pillows which add greatly to the cheerful surroundings.

Shade for Sorrel

One vegetable that should be grown in shade is garden sorrel.

Delicious as a green vegetable; the foundation for a gournet soup; the acidity in the leaves increases when the plants are grown in hot sun. This is the reason for giving it a shaded location.

Charm of New England: Inviting farm style exterior covers the modern architectural ingenuity of this unusual, five-level split home with a total of nine rooms.

Bonus Space in a Five-Way Split

By David L. Bowen

T COMES in an attractively simple package, but this home has an interior structural design that will take a little extra study.

Before you try to figure out the particulars, here are a few basic generalities about resourceful plan B-60, created by architect Rudolph Matern for the House of the Week series:

1. It's a split level with five different levels (four is usually the maximum),

2. It has a total of nine rooms, not counting mudroom laundry, two large foyers, and 214 baths,

3. The area enclosed by the perimeter walls is only 1,162 square feet.

4, No section of the house more than 112 stories above ground.

specifics on Now some specifics on those five levels, one by one:

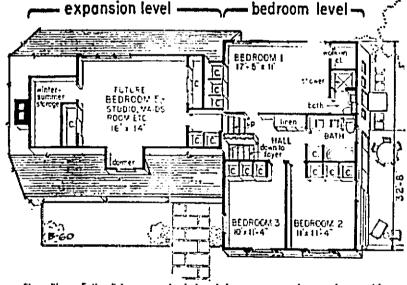

BASEMENT LEVEL: This includes only the area under living room and foyer, provides room for furnace and storage. Easily accessible from kitchen.

GRADE LEVEL: Routine daylight activities are all handled on this service level, which includes kitchen, dining room, family room, study (or fourth bedroom) bath and mudroom laundry.

its formality.

EXPANSION ATTIC LEVEL: Here is the bonus EXPANSION space of this unusual design, an 18x14-foot future fifth bedroom or studio room above the living room with windows to the front and back, This space, comparable to the second floor in a 11/2 story home, could easily be left unfinished during original construction,

The kitchen-family section plus living room contain 1,162 square feet of living area. Bedroom level has 743, with another 377 in the expansion attic, Width of house plus garage is 67 feet and depth is 31 feet.

Despite the engineering complexity, interior traffic flows smoothly throughout the house. A series of short stairs connecting foyers pro-vides a central hub for the whole house. The location of dining room gives it a sunken appearance from the ceiling slants shed-fashion down to the efficient U-shaped kitchen directly behind it.

Breakfast and snack space is conveniently located in large open area between kitchen and the 17-foot long family room. Both rooms have direct access to service entrance. mudroom laundry and bath at the rear. A sunken terrace for the family room is hidden from the street by a retaining wall projecting from the front of the house to the right.

In every detail, the exterior appearance is that of a charming New England farm house. Placing the garage at the left adds to the home's impressive length.

I've always wanted" is what most men say when they see a silent valet. They know how handy it is for a quick, neat start in the morning. But they also know that a good one can be expensive.

A practical, inexpensive solution to having one in your bedroom is to build the handsome, well-balanced "Silent Valet-Seat" shown in this week's Sketchbook series. A few evenings spent in following the step-by-step instructions of the plans and this efficient "servant" is ready to serve you.

AND THE valet is designed to serve well. Its stordy seat

is ideal for fast and easy dressing. Its backrest holds your day's attire. Directly under the seat cover is a shoe rest, which when flipped up is convenient and easily reached for a fine shine. The other storage unit can serve to hold your shoes or a supply of socks or other small clothing accessories,

The upper portion, or back rest, of the valet-seat has special holders for your trousers and tie. At the back, gracefully angling out, is a shaped hanger for your shirt and suiterat. The top is an accessory tray for your wallet, watch, coin change and other daily pocket items.

This is a project you'll take pride in making since it will become a piece of useful furniture in your bedroom, It can be finished to your own taste and decor of the room.

Nail Growth Rate Varies

By Ben Zinser

Soumdand Magazine Medical Science Write

TRATE OF FINGERNAIL growth diminishes with age, says Dr. William B. Bean, professor of medicine at University of Iowa.

Nail growth rate varies between men and women and from family to family but in Dr.

Bean's case there was a sharp decline in growth rate when he reached 49'
years of age,
he says.

Dr. Bean, reporting in Archives of Internal Medicine, notes that a reduced rate of nail growth has been observed in persons who moved from the temperate to the arctic zone.

Starvation also slows it down.

AN INTESTINAL condition that may mimic cancer can sometimes be relieved if the patient stops drinking raw milk, a British surgeon says.

The condition is known as diverticulitis — inflammation of little outpouchings arising from the bowel wall.

Twelve of 120 patients studied were thought at first to have cancer on the left side of the colon because of pain and appearance of mucus and blood.

Further study showed them to have diverticulitis. And symptoms were eliminated when the patients cut out or reduced intake of raw milk and cream.

The report is by D. C. Corry of United Oxford Hospitals in British Medical Journal.

EARLY TRIALS of a vaccine against trachoma, a virus-caused eye ailment, show the new agent to be 60 per cent effective.

Test subjects were 1,405 preschool children on the west coast of Taiwan. Trials were conducted under the joint sponsorship of the U.S. Navy and the Taiwan government.

Trachoma affects an estimated 400 million persons and is the world's leading cause of blindness.

DIABETIC should not use ordinary canned fruits even if the syrup is discarded and the fruit is washed with water, says a consultant to the Journal of the American Medical Association. The only types of fruit allowed in a diabetic diet are fresh fruit, water-packed fruit or fruit packed in its natural juice with no sugar added.

A SHORT-TERM diet that diabetics can safely follow in the event of a major disaster, such as nuclear warfare, is outlined in the AMA Journal:

Breakfast: Two or three slices of bread, butter or margarine, coffee and canned milk. Or in the place of bread: cereal and a can of milk.

Noon and evening meals: Meat or cheese sandwich or three slices of bread and butter alone. Or meat and potatoes with such vegetables as are available.

A COMBINATION incubator-respirator, first device of its kind, has been developed by doctors at New York's Presbyterian Hospital,

A thermostat taped to the infant's stomach regulates heating. A breathing mask contains a thermistor bead (sensitive temperature-measuring device) which energizes the breathing apparatus when the child inhales.

MONASE appears to be the safest of the antidepressant drugs, a doctor reports in the Journal of Neuropsychiatry, Sixty of 76 depressed patients given the drug experienced a good to excellent response. Fourteen others had a fair response.

The researcher, Dr. Theodore R. Robie, says the drug has enabled him to reduce electroshock therapy by 78 per cent.

The side effect of low blood pressure has been rare, he says, and there has been no evidence of liver damage.

Why Not an Hawaiian Luau?

Shrimp pastries in coconut pastry shells would be an interesting and delicious menu item for your own Hawaiian luau.

THERE'S nothing like an honest - to - goodness Hawaiian Luau for 400d eating and good fun, but not all of us can get to that enchanted island to enjoy such a feast. So-why not have a fuau (of a sort) right in your own back yard? Yours may not be as elaborate as the authentic luan, but it is easy to include many of the authentic foods even though they are used in a different way.

First, you may like to try a hiau luncheon. An interesting function would be Shrimp Pastries (there's package grated coconut in the pastry!) and pincapple salad with a sprinkling of macadamia nuts and a swirl of whipped topping. Toasted sesame seed crackers make a pleasant accompaniment for this course.

FOR DESSERT, a coconut layer cake is usually a "must" but for this small group perhaps you would prefer making your favorite cupcakes

, make them as round as possible . . . covering them with packaged muist toasted coconut. These are food"—and dee-licious!

As in Hawaii, do try to barbecue something, even if it's just those savory little cocktail frankfurters for dipping into a bottled barbecue sauce . , the guests will love making their swn over an hibachi. One of the simplest dishes to serve is a chicken curry . . . surround it with dishes of canned peanuts, flaked cocoant or the packaged moist toasted cocount, and serve with a big green salad and a spicy dress-

Mary Brandenburg tales her daily swim, come rain or shine or cold, in Alamitos Bay (above) or in the sea.

By Vera Williams

OR THE title of most enthusiastic "Polar Bear" on the Pacific Coast, a good nominee is Mary Branden-burg, 82, now well into her 35th year of swimming every day, winter and summer, spring and tall. Whether it rains, snows, sleets, hails or turns on its finest California weather matters not at all to Mary, She goes swimming just the same.

She prefers to swim be-tween 6 and 7 a.m. because then there usually is no wind. She swims in the ocean, a stone's throw from her house. 5361 E. Ocean Blvd, or in Alamitos Bay. She uses the Australian crawl exclusively, and she wears flowers, either fresh or artificial, in her hair.

Her longest swim one and one-eighth miles. The length of her swim in the ocean depends on the tides. Sometimes she swims across Alamitos Bay, occasionally she turns back at the ropes, 50 tect or so.

"ONE MORNING it was so foggy I couldn't tell where I was or what direction I was going," she says, "I kept bitting the piling under the E. Second Street bridge."

She has gone swimming in snow and bail, and when it was so cold she could pick up sheets of ice.

Mary has a Los-Angeles Polar Bear membership and button for a quarter-mile swim on New Year's Day 1961. In April 1962, she received a Red Cross badge and button for completing 50 miles of swimming (one-tourth or one-half mile daily) in President Kennedy's "Swim for Health" campaign.

HOW MUCH longer will she swim daily?

"Until either the ocean or I dry up!" says this energetic woman who was 82 on Christmas Day.

Mary, a widow for more than 40 years, began her daily swims on April 1, 1929. She is a vegetarian; she believes in positive thinking. She doesn't go to doctors, she doesn't take medicine, she doesn't take vitamins. She never has had a headache, she doesn't get colds.

SHE TAUGHT school for 35 years—19 of those years in the Long Beach system, divided between the Avalon schools and Long Beach City College. She has conched more than 1,000 persons for their citizenship papers. Be-cause she speaks six lan-guages, it is easy for her to teach foreign-born.

A class of 28 foreign-born meets in her home-gratis.

She has appeared with 126 persons to obtain their citizenship.

"So far as I know," she says, "not one of my pupils has failed to become an a quarter-mile American citizen — a good ew Year's Day American citizen." LOOK WHAT YOU CAN WIN IN

Indian Art Event Set

By Winifred Layton

OURTH annual Indian Festival of Arts at La Grande, Oregon, is expected to attract participants from all over the nation June 21-24.

GOING PLACES

TASMANIA is a curious, half-time little island set like a pendant earring teardropped off the southeast coast of Australia and offering such off-season attractions for Northern Hemisphere dwellers such as picnic drives on uncluttered roads to a quiet river bank or cove. Sheep graze in pastoral scenes on broad valley floors and lightly sloping hills where poplars, hawthorne and apples grow.

Tasmania's city of Hobart once was a boistering port. known to whalers out of New Bedford and Valparaiso as the Barbary Coast of the South Seas. But the brothels and taverns of Salamanca Place now are warehouses, and retired military men putter in the gardens of the pastel stone captains' houses on Arthur Circus,

Still Hobart retains a maritime charm. It is a bright, lively and busy city feasting on sharp southern light on view-fraught hillside settings. Here California-style homes perch on redwood stilts for sight of the harbor.

THE HARBOR that incurs deep into the mouth of the Derwent River is much like a fiord, regular and long, sur-rounded by sharply rising hills and dominated by the height of Mt. Wellington.

Tasmania has the same kind of appeal for Australians as Nantucket or Catalina has for Americans, and is one of the country's major tourist magnets. Remote of feeling and slow of pace, its lush moun-tain greenery contrasts sharply with the flat wastelands that mark most of Australia. Visitors come mainly to wander among its flowering hills, stark headlands and seascapes, secluded coves and quiet old stone villages, Englehawk Neck in the southeast on the Tasman Peninsula is a pleasant resort area with a cottage colony cutely named Doo-Town. But once dogs were chained across the narrow strip of land, effectively preventing prison escapes.

THE NARROW strip of land also has been a favorite play-ground of nature. There is a blow-hole where the pounding sea has cut a 200-foot flat arch through the stone. marking its path with layer upon layer of striated rock. From some of the crevices spiny-leaved box trees grow.

Tasmania's greatest geological curiosity also is near here. It is the Tesselated Pavement, a vast platform of ridged squares like an inlaid patio. It was formed by the sea from sand and mud deposited horizontally by the tides. When it hardened, it cracked in parallel lines at right angles, and looks for all the world like the work of some ancient stone mason rather than the caprice of nature.

Beyond these vistas of the sea, 1,500 miles to the south, lies Antarctica, In this wild setting it is easy to understand how Tasmania has become synonymous with the end of the world. That's just what it is.

The good things about Fielding's "Guide," which he compiles with the help of his traveling companion, Mrs. Fielding, are the thousands of suggestions for every eco-nomic level of traveler-especially for budgeteers. Another laudable feature is the ruthless coverage of clip joints, tourist traps, taxicabdriver and other rackets aimed at Europe's visitors, He tells how to get ready to go, going by plane, going by ship, and how to be an "European" in Europe. "Is it true that we can no longer send home gifts under $10 from overseus without paying duty?"

NO. U. S. Customs was going to cut this to gifts under $1. Sorry to say, I jumped the gun on this last jumped the gun on this last jumped the customs now has decided to postpone this cut until October anyway.

The current rule for travelers abroad: You can bring back (or have sent as unaccompanied baggage) $100 worth of things you buy without paying duty.

You can also send gifts of value under $10 every day, as many as you like, so long as you don't send more than one each day to the same person.

Now if you run over the $160—(those under-$10-gifts are not charged to your $100 exemption; just what you bring or have sent as unaccompanied baggage)—you may wonder what to pay on. What has the lowest duty.

This is NOT your responsibility, You declare everything—say $150 worth. U. S. Customs inspectors give you free entry on the $100 that pays the highest duty. They choose the $50 worth that pays the lowest duty. You pay that.

"Can you recommend guide books for a trip, part train, part rented car, in Europe this summer?"

THERE ARE SO MANY guides coming out I just haven't had time to read them all. I have found that our guide books are sold in all big cities of Europe. Since most of them are weighty, I buy what I want overseas. Any big book store.

Scandinavia Story

Land of fjords and the midnight sun—the image of Scandinavia created by travel agencies — is no myth, The fjords and glaciers combine to make the coastline one of the most scenic in the world. Here is a fairy-tale world of sea and rock and forest, of mountains capped with eternal snows. It is the land of Norway. Sweden and Denmark which contain less than I per cent of the world's people yet own more than 10 per cent of the world's shipping, almost 5 per cent of international trade.

The complete, absorbing story of these three northern bastions of the free world is told in "Scandinavia," the 15th volume in the Life World Library Series by Hammond Innes and the Editors of Life, (Time Inc. Book Division, 540 N, Michigan Ace., Chicago 11, Ill., $2.95.) The volume is liberally illustrated, with many of the pictures in full color.

The Michelin guides for France, Italy and Spain are really a "must" for anyone driving. Give you hotels, restaurants, specialties in very usable form.

Pan American World Airways "New Horizons" is excellent and easy to use.

Reminiscent of another ora is this scene on the Vail Ranch, a 90,000 acre spread southeast of Riverside.

but in the spring the cattle are driven up to the Santa Rosa, or "High Ranch."

Now is a good time for a jaunt to this area. Turn off Hwy, 395 and drive through the historic town of Murrieta. 37 miles southeast of Riverside. Backtrack the length of the dozing village until you come to a sign announcing the way to the Tenaja Guest Ranch. The sight of the winding dirt road leading up to the mesa is intriguing. The road is steep with many twists and turns, but traffic is practically nil.

AT THE TOP of the grade lies a Jush plateau, Cowboys may gaze inquiringly at the traveler, for few come this way. Cattle graze on the succulent grass, interspersed with flowers of every shape and hue. Large live oaks, the "encinos" of the Spaniards, Small lakes are spotted here and there, and creeks go purr-ing on to find the sea.

There are signs along the way directing the traveler to the Tenaja Guest Ranch. It is a pleasant place in which to spend idle days, old but well cared for.

The Tenaja Guard Station and public camp is an inviting place. In season, flowers wander over the meadows, penetemons, pink mallows, scarlet buglers, wall flowers, lupines, fremontia, Indian paint brush, and in low places yellow violets and buttercups. Acres of wild lilac bloom in the spring, their soft fragrance filling the air.

ALONG THE CREEK the cottonwoods are leafed out with chipmunk ears of green. The larger trees are gaily decorated with western tanagers, orioles and cardinals, jaunty in brilliant coats, California mountain quail scoot out of the way, their mingled voices sounding like the gurgle of a tiny mountain brook.

The campground provides water, wood stoves, tables and benches for the travelers' comfort. Chipmunks scold, and bluejays shrill. In the live oaks you may hear the tapping of a woodpecker, El carpintero, the carpenter, the Mexicans call him.

Tenaja is an Indian word caning "many pools of meaning "many pools of water." The creek tumbles in clear pools and swirls around smooth gray boulders before winding down through the wooded hills.

Under the sheltering oaks are "gossip rocks," where the Indian women once sat and discussed the world of their times, while grinding acorns.

If you are tired of the whirl of the complex civilization in which we live today, take this trip into the beauty and quiet of yesterday.

California's Bilateral Complex

By Jan Hemingway

Cries of Incompatibility are heard through the population explosion in California. But the compulsion has weven through our history from adolescence.

In infancy, we dwarfed Texas, stretching from the tip of the Baja California to Alaska and from the coast to the Rocky Mountains, During Latin America's struggle for independence, Spain gave up her claim north of the 42nd parallel, establishing the Oregon line, and the Mexican border was fixed by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. In their petition for statehood the delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1849 decided on the eastern limits. The pastoral South pleaded then for separation, It was thwarted, California's boundaries were formed but dldn't crystallize. They never had. Hot jealousies drew shimmering lines between North and South.

Jose Echeandia, that "tall, thin juiceless man" sent as governor in 1825, was the first of the Great Cleavers. Most of his library consisted of books on how to avoid illness and he started the climate cult in the Southland, making sunny San Diego his capital instead of windy Montercy. On meeting a certain senorita, he deserted his potions and powders long enough to read up on how to win a woman. Alas, she married a Juicier man, Eventually, his malingering endangered his authority, so he went to Monterey and, when his successor disembarked at San Diego, refused to return to surrender the keys to the arthives. Instead, the new gov-ernor met him in Monterey and restored it as capital, He was soon deposed. By then, Echeandia had read a book on how to divide and conquer half, so he ruled the South and nursed his health from San Diego while Agustin Zamorano presided over the North from Monterey.

GOV. FIGUEROA arrived from Mexico a year and a half later. He mended the breach and gave the immature province a sense of security. But his death was a traumatic experience and a behavior pattern was established. First, a northerner found the scepter too hot to handle. Then, a southerner waved it over Los Angeles and designated it capital, Next, a governor came from Mexico but made himself so unpopular that North and South united in ousting him, The Los Angeles contender tried again but abdicated hastily when Juan Bautista Alvarado and his three musketeers sent a cannonball crashing into the governor's mansion. Alvarado took control and declared (Continued on Page 30)

ponents and Carrillo abandoned his pretenses. The South submitted reluctantly. The chase over, Alvarado lost interest in affairs of state. Manuel Micheltorena was the last Mexican to wear the title. He spent his first year in the south and his second in the north but was unable to please either. When he sailed for home, Pio Pico be-came jefe politico with his capital in Los Angeles, and Jose Castro was jele militar with his headquarters at Monterey, along with the custom-house officials and the provincial treasurer. Pico com-manded legislation, but Castro and company were in control of troops and funds, Another revolt was shaping up when war broke out with the United States.

IN AMERICAN hands, California was still far from the seat of national government and directed by local political winds. Marshall's discovery brought gold seekers and a boom in trade to the North. Overnight, the sleepy pueblo of Yerba Buena became the cosmopolitan city of San Francisco, with ships bringing travelers and cargo from all over the world. Los Angeles was her country cousin, furnishing her with beef but not asked in to tea,

At the Constitutional Convention of 1819, the southern delegates had urged that the North request statehood only for itself while the South re-tained a territorial government, They were out-voted. The next year, they sent a petition to Congress asking to be organized separately as "Central California" but failed again, All through the '50s, the thinly populated "cow counties" were heavily taxed for the benefit of the North, Escape became an obsession. By the end of the decade, Sacramento finally approved a plan for detaching the area below the 36th parallel. The Civil War broke out before Congress acted on it, and California's hostilities were repressed,

Both North and South have shown symptoms of overcompensation ever since. While San Francisco works mightily at being "The City," the Southland adaps to a casual culture reminiscent of our more tranquil past, Newcomers seem to prefer our way. for we've grown until the census in Los Angeles County alone is exceeded by only eight states in the Union. Were we to vote for secession again, a Space-Age Congress would understand the psychological harm in further frustration.

Now that we find silver threads among the gold and our children number more than 17 million, we may try to reconcile our differences. Together, we have everything, including Disneyland and Feather River.

And the dominant figure on our state seal is Minerva, the goddess of wisdom.

Postpile of Stone

evidence of forces of nature shaping ancient world.

By Frank L. Reminaton

STRIKINGLY situated amid some of the most spectacular mountains of the High Sierra lies one of America's most unusual National Monuments-Devil's Postpile, The symmetrical basaltic columns of the Postpile, one of the finest examples of its kind to be found anywhere in the world, stand about 60 feet high and extend for nearly 900 feet in a variety of formations. Most of the columns are vertical, but others are slanting or curved, and some radiate amazingly from a common center.

Even without its remarkable Postpile, the establishment of a National Monument in this area could have been justified easily. The sparkling waters of the middle fork of the San Joaquin River tumble past the base of the Postpile to Rainbow Falls, where a sheer drop of 140 feet creates beautiful rainbows above a crystalline trout pool. The jagged Minarets form a backdrop of towering peaks that remain decorated with snow most of the year, and hidden beneath their shadows are some of the West's finest fishing lakes. Although it is still comparatively unknown, this scenic mountain region lies only 29 miles east of the world-renowned Yosemite Valley,

INITIALLY, at least, it is sometimes difficult for many persons to believe fully the written accounts of the tremendous natural forces which created this most unusual formation. Yet its violent history can be readily understood once the physical evidence at the site is closely examined. Authorities believe that Devil's Postpile had its origin more than 100,000 years ago, when a fissure opened in the earth's crust at Mammoth Pass and molten lava spewed forth to cascade downward into the valley. Pools of liquid rock, varying from 100 to 700 feet deep, formed so quickly that for a while the lava was molten throughout most of its depth.

Can Ocean Floor Be Colonized?

By Vera Williams

7ILL IT someday be possible to colonize the bottom of the sea, with men living in pressurized houses lowered to the ocean floor? And if so, will there be created a new form of man, free to roam below the surface as we do above?

Capt. J. Y. Cousteau, leading explorer of the world beneath the sea, who with Emile-Gagnon invented the aqua lung, proposes both questions and makes it plain that his answer is "Yes" in "THE LIVING SEA," written with James Dugan (Harper & Row, $6.50).

In a sense, "The Living Sea" is an extension of Cousteau's first book, "The Silent World" in which he told of the aqua lung, which freed divers from hoses, helmets and heavy weights, and his subsequent exploration of the sea.

But Cousteau was frus-trated by being limited to depths of several hundred feet. Now he has a fantastic diving saucer for exploring the continental shelf at depths of 1,000 feet.

There's enough adventure to satisfy anyone, illustrated with a map of the route of his oceanographic ship Calypso, plus 24 pages of color and 64 pages of black and white

"The Living Sea" is a reading MUST.

A GREAT ARCHITECT must respond aesthetically to his physical surroundings and then dedicate his skill and will to extending and improving the beauties of nature.

This, in essence, is the philosophy and technical pur-pose of Richard Neutra, master architect, as expounded in his chatty autobiography, "LIFE AND SHAPE" (Appleton - Century - Crofts, $7.95).

From his happy boyhood in Vienna, through his service in the Austro-Hungarian army in World War I and his migration to New York, life groomed Neutra for international renown in construction design,

Unlike many of his distinguished colleagues, Deutra loves California and, operating in Los Angeles, pioneered open-air-and-glass styling. The Lovell Health House and Van der Leeuw home in Los Angeles are monuments to his genius and warmth.

He tells how these and the Lincoln Memorial Museum at Gettysburg were created and you meet his contemporaries, including Louis Sullivan,

Frank Lloyd Wright, Walter Gropius, Mies van der Rohe and Le Corbusier.

What shapes a man, a man of the intellect of Neutra? "The extraordinary experi-ence, the sudden sight of an individual in action, or his work, may be one guiding impact. . . But small, continuous drops can erode even a rock . . . Congenital makeup and deficiencies are inextricably mixed into the phenomenon of becoming condi-tioned.... The final human personality is very naturally a fusion and outcome of all these circumstances."

A LOT OF US get exasperated because the new countries don't automatically fall into our arms and embrace us. A little understanding can save us much aggraring can save us much aggravation. More than a little understanding of what Mario Rossi calls "THE THIRD WORLD" is given us in his book of that name (Funk and Wagnalis, $4). He deals with the unaligned nations, their problems, and their needs.

"As the developing contin-ents proceed along the road to viability, they will move gradually away from the type of ties established by colo-nialism," he concludes. But this by no means need bring them toward the East. "A new relationship will then have to be negotiated among equals," he points out.

THE BEST WAY to understand Khrushchev's Russia is to get to know the Russia of the past.

"GOLDEN LEAVES" (Ward Richie Press, Los Angeles, $5) is a kind of autobiography, you might say — made up of letters written to his family and friends when he was training as a B-17 navi-

"It has been proven down through history," he writes, "that to fight is to kill or be killed, Perhaps I sound like a conscientious objector. But am not. I will fight, I will kill if I can, I will die if I must."

First palm trees planted in what is now the city of Long Beach were these, set out by Mrs. C. T. Healey.

By Maymie R. Krythe

SOUTHERN California's palm trees were the early day marvels of easterners who came west and many were the pioneers who promoted tree planting. Long Beach, founded in 1882, gives the honor of planting the original palm trees in this community to Mrs. Charles T. Healey, wife of Capt. Healey who sur-veyed Willmore City, forerunner of Long Beach.

Orlena Medora Swett was born in Maine, came to San Francisco by way of the Isth-mus of Panama with her family when she was a small child. She married Capt. Healey in the Bay City and came south to Rancho Los Cerritos when Jotham Bixby called upon her husband to survey a townsite on his ranch near the sea.

Capt, Healey built a home for his family in 1884 at 227 E. Ocean Blvd., and it was here that Mrs. Healey set out three palms, two of the fan variety and one date palm, the first in Long Beach.

THROUGH the years, Mrs. Healey took great pride in the trees and, after her husband's death, she decided to sell her property only to someone who would assure her that the palms would not be destroyed. Once in an interview she

"These palms are very precious to me. They are a sort of monument to my husband's memory, and as I have watched them grow, through these 40 years, I have come to regard them as a heritage to the City of Long Beach from the pioneer who surveyed the original townsitea heritage deserving of preservation.

In 1928 the Daughters of the American Revolution marked the first tree planted by Mrs. Healey, with a plaque, bearing this inscription:

"Planted in 1884 by Mrs. O. M. Healey, early resident, a tribute by her chapter, Gaviota D.A.R., for her unselfish devolton to the best interests of Long Beach,"

At the ceremonies, Mrs. O. J. Hanna related the events leading up to the founding of Long Beach, and told of the planting of this palm tree.

MRS. HEALEY took part in many local activities. Therefore, in addition to her pioneer tree-planting, she de-serves to be remembered, not only on Arbor Day, but always for her excellent work in helping build a young com-munity. In 1928, this outstanding woman paid tribute to her contemporaries:
"Often, as I look back upon the first struggling days of hardships here, the time seems almost like a dream. Tents, cabins, and other crude dwellings have given way to towering structures of steel and concrete; a forest of oil shafts rises from the old grazing lands; wandering, rough roads are now busy thoroughfares, and where sheep meadows stretched are crowded city streets, apartment houses, churches, of all creeds, and costly hotels.

"With a heart full of gratitude and treasured personal recollections, 1 am ever minded of the traits of fearlessness, cheerful optimism in the face of reverses and determined perseverance which characterized the pioneers who blazed the paths for this great City of Long Beach,"

Little Charmer

When you stop for bedding plants for summer bloom, don't overlook the new All-America zinnia Thumbelina. This little charmer is a true miniature, growing only six inches high. The flowers come in mixed colors only and are up to 1½ inches across.

Thumbelina starts to bloom early, when the plants are only three inches high, according to a C.A.N. nurseryman, and they keep blooming until frost cuts them short in traits of the late President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The artist has made three complete sets of all U.S. presidents and their wives; he has created three wax museums, and many of his dolls are shipped to private collectors and museums in America and Europe.

As a designer and creator of movie fashions and period dress in Hollywood, he developed an interest in antiques. In 1945, he retired from the studios to a mountain cabin in Washington to work out a formula for wax sculpture.

PORTRAIT dolls made with this perfected wax proved a great success—and the beginning of his life work,

Two floors of life-sized wax figures and settings recreate California's colorful past in Sorensen's House of Wax Historical Museum at Monterey. At Santa Cruz, his Hall of Memories was born.

A popular scene in this House of Wax is the old-fashioned one-room schoolhouse, complete with old ink well desks, a coal stove, a hand school bell, quill-point pens and slates. The school-ma'am and the children, dressed in high-button shoes and turn of the century dress, were modeled from real life. Tom Sawyer, with the realistic wax apple, is the image of Sorensen's nephew - now a six-footer!

Sorensen designed the new post office in Santa Claus, Ind.—a quaint little Hoosier town— where he has gone every summer for the past 10

Here, breath-taking wax figures made by the California artist for the Hall of Famous Americans, represent George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Edison, Babe Ruth, Will Rogers, and at least 50 others.

HE PAINTED all the murals and did most of the art work at Santa Claus. Temporarily deviating from wax work in 1960, he sculptured nine concrete, life-sized figures for a Nativity scene, which he painted in exact copies of the clothing worn in Biblical times.

Although too involved in his own country to comply with request from Tussaud's Studio to set up wax museums in Holland and Denmark, he has agreed to supply their

Last year, a branch of the International Doll Club was opened in England by Sorensen, who is one of many men doll collectors.

'Men's interest in dolls run to their construction and history," he said, "while women are more interested in their beauty."

THE SCULPTOR'S philosophy is that many artists are ruined by too much study, "They will never be able to go and be creative," he said.

Lewis has contributed his talent to the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park: while in his home-studio at 141 W. Brookdale Place, Fullerton, he restores wax character dolls such as Uncle Sam, the Peddler and the Gibson Girl,

He is now making plans for several branches of a children's museum with child-size wax storybook figures.

MOVIES:

When American Boy

If new movies coming from Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer for the spring and summer season are a criterion, girls from all over the world are falling in love with American guys: to wit, In the Arabian Nights fantasy, "Captain Sinbad," Germany's Heidi Bruehl in scene above falls under spell of Guy Williams.

Meets Foreign Girl

In "The Day and the Hour," French Simone Signoret finds man of the hour in handsome Stuart Whitman.

But the situation is reversed in the upcoming MGM "International Hotel," with Elizabeth Taylor as the magnet for an Englishman; yes, Richard Burton.

Many campgrounds are inviting but Postpile road makes care necessary in bringing a trailer into the locals.

another and created a variety of polygonal figures. And as the lava continued to cool and shrink downward, the columns were extended vertically until they had virtually penetrated the full depth of the lava mass. Since many of the columns are tipped or bent, it is believed that irregularities in the cooling surface may have caused these interesting variations.

ANOTHER spectacular force of nature was also involved in creating Devils Postpile as it is observed to-day. During the last of three glacial stages recorded in the Sierra Nevada, a slow-moving glacier about 1,000 feet thick quarried away most of the cracked basalt columns. The tops of the remaining columns were polished and scarred by the tremendous weight of the ice as it passed overhead. Pieces of stone-gouged grooves in the ends of the columns that are still visible today—and yet that glacier retreated more than 20,000 years ago. Towering trees now stand along the path once scoured clean by the glacier.

Embracing a total area of a little more than a square mile, Devils Postpile appears only as a dot—if at all—on most travel maps. But this geological oddity is surrounded by a magnificent wilderness area that is justly fa-mous for its scenic heauty and excellent fishing. Short and easily traveled trails lead to the major points of interest, and this is also the starting place for exciting fishing and sightseeing trips. Trout may be taken from the sparkling San Joaquin River, of course, with the best fishing usually obtained in those areas which are some dis-tance from the road. Many good fishing lakes and streams are within easy hiking distance, and trips on foot or horseback can be made to the remote areas where huge trout - and even the exotic Golden - may be found.

Several inviting campgrounds are pleasantly situated along the banks of the San Joaquin River, and a limited number of cabins are available at Reds Meadows Lodge. Until a few years ago, a dozen miles of torturous mountain road kept all but the most adventurous from visiting the Monument. Recent improvements have made this portion passable for the most modern motor cars, but the section must still be traveled with care. Nestled beneath tall trees and rugged mountains, Devils Postpile National Monument offers a variety of attractions that urge visitors to return again and again.

Let Children Care for Pets

By Eleanor Avery Price

SUMMER is looming up just ahead, and if you have a school-age child, you of course love him dearly but the thought of him being around at loose ends for three vacation months can be very earth shaking,

The solution? Give him definite, moderate things to do. There are dishes, dusting, pulling weeds, errands, the wash to take in or remove from the dryer. No. I'm not deviating from the subject of pets. I'm leading up to them. I'm going to suggest you also assign to your child most of the work in taking care of any pets.

I can just see some of you out there giving me cold stares and asking, "What sort of tricks and cajoleries are we to use to get a child to be responsible for the pets he begged to have and then appointed Mother as sole custodian?"

NO TRICKS, no cajoleries. Just start assigning simple tasks this very day. A child can give the pet fresh drinking water, learn to fix its food, groom it, do at least part of the cleaning up. Get him in the habit of doing these things. Don't be unpleasant about it, for you want your child to admire and respect you and to be happy around the house. But don't be wishy-washy. Insist he carry through until it becomes a habit of minding you. A youngster is miserable when useless and self-centered. He is far happier when his parent wields some authority and lifts him out of his lonely anarchy.

You might not believe it, but a dog, too, is unhippy when he serves no purpose. If there is a dog in your household and he is lazy, disobedient, annoying, destruc-tive, he also needs things to If your child is old enough, send him and the dog to dog obedience school. The dog will Jap up education and will shift gears into being a much more worthwhile dog. At the same time, your child will learn even more tolerance, patience, and ability,

Select your obedience school with care. It won't be expensive. In fact, all during summer at Mayfair Park on Clark Ave., Lakewood, Joe DeBeck will conduct his free

However, some critics of the span believe it may lose money. They point out that surveys have shown motorists can reach Terminal Island from virtually any location in the Southland via either the Terminal Island or Long Beach Freeways and will not have to drive more than six-tenths of a mile further.

Once potential toll payers learn this, they claim, they'll abandon the bridge route.

pointing out that the islandto-mainland ferry which will be put out of service after the be put out of service after the bridge opens is a paying en-terprise, carrying 70 million passengers and 11 million autos in nearly 22 years of operation,

THE CONTINUED development of Terminal Island, now only about 50 per cent developed, will greatly increase the flow of traffic.

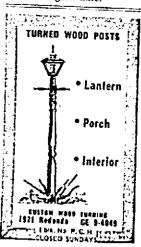

A single new facility such as the U. S. Customshouse with its fleet of 213 vehicles "would greatly increase the daily flow of traffic."

Controversy or no controversy, the bridge will become a familiar sight to seamen from all over the world who sail in and out of the West's largest single port.

Will they have a name for the bridge?

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, the San Pedro legislator who authored 16 pleces of legislation during an 11-year fight to make the bridge a reality, had such name be-fore it was named to honor him:

"The Angel's Gate."

ONE OF THE troubles gardeners have with older lawns is "thatch." This may be mat of dead grass that smothers the turf area soil and tends to prevent water from soaking into the ground. Gardeners who don't take off the grass clippings cause this thatch condition, too,

One of the ways to improve such condition is to sculp the grass lawn, matted devil grass or St. Augustine grass. Scalping means to adjust the power lawn mower to cut the lawn down to the soil surface area, practically cutting off all the lawn!

Another method is to aerate the soil by using a spiker. The small holes it makes are then filled with sand, compost soil, or a mixture of manure and soil,

Whether the lawn is scalped or spiked, heavy clay or adobe-like soil may be improved right then by applying gypsum, or one of the soil conditioners that provide percent trace minerals, which furnish needed minor elements yet at the same time

ONE APPLICATION of the material is not enough. There should be one or two later applications at intervals after the lawn has grown out,

By Walter Finch

POSES GENERALLY are not considered bedding plants but that's a throwback to the days when roses could only be planted early, bare root. Now that roses are in containers to brighten up the property they properly can be considered bedding plants whether set out in a bed, or distributed about the property in various types of containers.

Modern roses are ever-blooming and about as col-Modern roses are ever-brooming and about as con-orful as plants can get, especially the flame-colored or bright orange and pink shades so outstanding in the last couple of years. Tree roses are examples of "accent" plants to make the property more liveable and colorful.

A IIIG PUSH for bright summer color desired by all families, comes from annual plants, the zinnias, ageratum, heliotrope, petunias, geraniums, lantana, candytuft, cosmos and a host of other plants. The colors of the blooms run from pure, dazzling white, to breath-taking scarlets, or yellows, blues, just about any color the home owner may wish. A "must" is the planting of some annuals on every property. They are inexpensive, easy to maintain and they add a summer richness of-living look.

sweet alyssum, and hundreds of others, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

While we've never tried it we wonder if combinations like roses and gypsophilia might not be especially attractive combined. A great deal of pleasure can be obtained from color combinations you select yourself, perhaps to harmonize with your house colors or the furniture or umbrellas in your outdoor living room. Annual plants are available from most nurseries,

That's closing time for entries for the following day's races. For the next two hours he cashes in on 18 years of experience chronicling horseflesh: he makes his handicap.

He has about 90 minutes to dissect nine races, There is no time to dig through records. The names of 120 or so horses are tossed at him from the approximately 1,200 on the grounds.

Then he sits down to a teletype machine and transmits all this information to the Press-Telegram so it will be on doorsteps before dinner.

THEN MASON has a couple hours to work on his bookkeeping. By the time the bugler calls the first race, he has seven hours of work behind him,

So it's a 12-hour day, 363 days a year—"I get a couple of days off just before Christmas to do my shopping"—because Sundays and Mondays while the horses rest, the handicappers catch up on their speed charts.

It is the speed charts that form the backbone of handicapping. Every handicapper has his own set of records and his own system of keeping tab on hundreds of thoroughbreds, quarter horses and harness horses.

A newspaper office is certain to have two things—teletype machines and visitors who claim they can do a better job than the paper's handicappers.

They all have foolproof systems. They carry bulky sheaves of records and if they can find someone who will invest the time, they'll explain how it's done. And when they've once again been assured that the newspaper's own handicappers are doing a most satisfactory job, they will disappear for a few minutes, to be seen hitchhiking to the track.

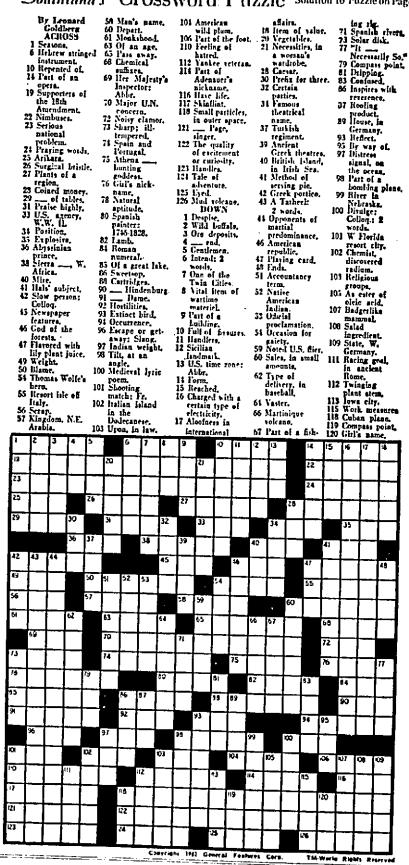

And the newspaper handicapper gets letters. Many include tips. Usually they begin ... "You are the best handicapper I have ever seen except me. .." and go on to explain the letter-writer's system.

BETZ RECENTLY got a tip he will cherish always. The fellow advised Betz to purchase a Los Angeles paper and bet the L. A. handicapper's top horse to finish third in the first five races each day. Then put all the winnings on the L. A. handicapper's choice to win the feature. "Put it on the nose, because he always picks the favorite in the feature."

Many of the people who write to Betz are solid, well-grounded horse players, however. "There are many excellent handicappers who do it just for fun and entertainment, like working puzzles," says Betz, a Long Beach product who has been The Independent's chief handicapper for 13 years.

Last year Betz compiled a startling record, For 105 consecutive thoroughbred racing days he had at least one winner. "The blank" is the most embarrassing thing that can happen to the professional picker. But Betz wasn't

BILL SNODGRASS

Caricature by Bob April

ONCE UPON a time (about 16 years ago) there was a good-looking restaurant at 3918 Long Beach Blvd. called Ken's Dinner Bell.

It was a popular place, with excellent food, but owner Ken McConnell felt that his customers deserved something nicer. So he tore it down and put up a beautiful new building.

A few years passed. Ken, a man with lots of imagination and creative judgment, decided his patrons deserved something even more beautiful. So a couple of months ago, he tore up the interior completely, redesigned it in a gorgeous modern Spanish motif and added an elegant cocktail lounge called the Kart Room.

He also hired a new manager, a very able man named Bill Snodgrass who has been in the restaurant business in Long Beach since 1946. As a result of these changes, Ken's Restaurant is now one of the finest in town, open daily and Sunday from 7 a.m. on, serving a diversified menu.

EVERY SUNDAY, starting at 2 p.m., Ken's restaurant serves three outstanding dinners. These are: roast leg of lamb with mint jelly ($2.65); baked Virginia ham with fruit sauce ($2.65) and Rock Cornish hen ($2.85). Accompanying each entree are chilled rel-lishes, superb tossed green salad, baked potato or French fries, vegetable, sourdough bread, beverage and dessert. Also featured are such daily specials as a delectable broiled 12 - ounce spencer steak ($3.25); a 14-ounce top sirloin ($3.65); five tremendous fried shrimp with red sauce ($2.85) and two superb broiled Australian lobster tails ($3.65). Ken's also feamouth-watering other specials which are changed daily. The Kart Room, which serves unusual hors d'oeuvres, is closed Sundays.

Q. Is it true that Federico Fellini will divorce his wife to marry Anita Ekberg?-Lois Haldemann. Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. Why aren't the American people told the truth about President Kennedy's illness? Isn't it a fact that his aching back has practically crippled him? -P. L., Coronado, Calif.

A. He is not crippled. Extraordinary precautions are constantly taken to protect his weak back. Frequently, for example, he wears a small corset or girdle. When he travels, a special horsehair mattress is sent along so that he can have a night of comfortable sleep. He also has a specially built leather seat which lends support to his lower spine. The truth is that the President must baby his back, keep his muscles strong and supple, which is why he tries to get in a few minutes of swimming each day in the White House pool, which is heated to about 90 degrees. Two years ago in Ottawa, when he bent down to shovel some dirt, he hurt his back, had to go around on crutches, submit to the moist pack treatment.

Q. Who is the richest woman in Great Britain after the Queen? -Leona Richardson, Fairfield. Conn.

A. Probably the Countess of Scafield, who owns 800 square miles of Scotland, including 10 towns, 3 casiles.

Q. Recently I saw the movie, Nine Hours to Rama, about the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi. In the movie Gandhi blesses Naturam Godse, the man who shot him. Is this true or fictional?-Al Weisler, Chicago, Ill.

A. It is fictional. When Gandhi was shot, he died almost instantly. He muttered only two words, "He, Ram!" (Oh, God!) The film is a distortion of history.

Q. What's happened to writer Dorothy Parker, and how old is she? -Nord Brecklin, Miami, Fla

A. Dorothy Parker, 69, teaches literature at Los Angeles State College.

Q. Why has former Vice-President Richard Nixon signed to write a series of articles for The Saturday Evening Post?-G. Y., Whittier, Calif. A. One reason: money.

A. Annabella resides in Paris, Linda Christian is playing the field in Holly-

Q. What I cannot understand is how someone like singer Dorothy Dandridge, who carns more than $100,000 a year, can now be bankrupt. Will you please explain?-Kenneth Yorkes, Toronto.

A. Miss Dandridge has spent more than she earned.

O. Jane Powell and her husband Pat Nerney have separated, which is par for Hollywood marriages. How many children are involved?-L. T., Phoenix, Ariz.

Startling view of Mascow on fire created for TV by smake bombs and smudge pats outside Kremlin.

Moscow burns again

M oscow went up in Flames for three hours in the middle of the night—or so thousands of Russians thought recently.

The fire, which started at 3 A.M., was set on purpose—and by Russians—with the full permission of a dozen Soviet committees, right outside the Kremlin wall. The pyrotechnists were simulating the view that confronted Napokon when he entered Moscow on September 14, 1812, during the French invasion of Russia.

The scene is part of the history of the Kremlin which NBC filmed in Moscow. The hour-long spectacular will be seen from coast to coast this Tuesday, May 21, at 9:30 P.M. on both East and West coasts and at 8:30 P.M. in Central states, local time.

This particular aspect of Russian history was most difficult to film. It required months of negotiations with Soviet officials, technical preparation and clearance before anybody could light a match. Lucy Jarvis, co-producer of the show, explained that on the day it was shot, NBC warned everybody about the fire.

We told the fire chief, the police chief and everybody we could that we were going to fire Moscow. Nevertheless, when we started the fires and smudge pots and turned on the colored lights, everybody who should have been sleeping was up calling the fire departments and the police. Fire trucks screamed into the Kremlin area and we had

MASHINGTON, D.C.

Not since the Breakup of Murder, Inc., have gangland killings been so rampant in our big cities. Federal agents, teamed up in Attorney General Robert Kennedy's war on organized crime, have uncovered evidence that will soon burst into the head-lines and appall the nation.

It is a rare month that some notorious underworld figure doesn't turn up mysteriously murdered in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh or Los Angeles.

These unsolved slayings are almost entirely the work of underworld executioners, men so skilled in their grisly profession they rarely ever make a police libitor.

To the proliferation of corpses must be added an even greater number of underworld "disappearances." Typical is the case of New York's Anthony Strollo, identified in federal files as "one of the most powerful racketeers in the U.S.," who vanished a year ago. Agents have little reason to doubt the underworld whispers that he was killed and dumped into the Hackensack River in New Jersey.

In gang slayings, arrests are rare; even rarer are convictions. Yet the amazing fact is that most of the murderers are known; a federal agent confided to PARADE that he knows one man, still walking free, who has been responsible for 32 "hits" (the underworld euphemism for killings). The agent has heard of others, longer in the trade of death, who have notched up as many as 50 murders. "These men kill," he says, "as casually as you would swat a fly."

They are not casual, however, in their methods. They may study a victim for weeks before they "hit" him with gun, knife or homb. Though some are more skilled than others, they seldom leave any clues at the scenes of their gruesome work.

Faces on File

PARADE has leafed through the confidential mug files of men who literally have been getting away with murder. For lack of evidence that would convict them in court, they can be classified only as "suspects." Therefore their full names cannot be given.

But a few nicknames and brief descriptions will serve to draw a composite of the men who lice by murder. It is an extraordinary fact that most are over middle age, some in their 60's. In the main, they are quiet-mannered, soft-spoken, well-dressed. Some are alumni of Murder, Inc., who escaped prosecution and eventually resumed their chosen profession.

Typical are "Dandy Jack," at 64 a dean of death dealers, who left Murder, Inc., in Brooklyn to become a labor racketeer around Hazleton, Pa.; "Blah Blah," 53, stocky and balding, a much-feared New York strong-arm man; "Willie Potatoes," 50, a Chicago free-lance killer, with a reputation as a torturer; "Cockeyed Phil," 55, pint-sized, sallow-faced, with a crossed left eye, who is known in the New York underworld for his violence.

The younger killers, in the new style of gangland, favor Ivy League style and deportment. Among them are the brothers "Cirino," natty, coldly suave, and "Benny the Cringe," his face marked with acne, who are partners in murder for the New York mob; "Joe the Blond," 34, slim, neat, ruggedly handsome, with cold blue eyes, known as a ruthless enforcer in the Flatbush area of Brooklyn.

Mobsters' biggest foe (left) is Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who has swarn vengeance an organized crime. His men are now ready to move against gangland's executioners.

smash a new murder ring

Vic.—"A rapidly rising young hoodlum who has gained a reputation as a triggerman for the underworld in New York City. Though it is known that he has been involved in gangland killings, he has avoided prosecution largely through the standard expedient of removing witnesess by one method or another."

Tony—"Noted more for brawn than brains and is called on to carry out strong-arm assignments in Cleveland area."

Swimmy—"Known strong-arm man and enforcer for the Mafia in the Pittston area."

Nuncio.—"Acts as muscle for the Mafia in the Los Angeles area. In 1950, was arrested for narcotics violation but was not prosecuted due to the murder of chief government witness."

Lenny—"A professional killer. Is believed to have been the finger man in the assassination of Mike deJohn at San Francisco in 1948."

Blackie.—"Known as the enforcer for the Smaldone Brothers. Has a tough reputation among the Italian element in Colorado."

Today's gang killings are not so raw as they were when Al Capone's reign of terror in Chicago was climaxed by the notorious St. Valentine's Day Massacre in 1929. The age of the "pineapple" tossed into a speak-easy, of the speeding black car and blasting tommy gun is over. The underworld has learned to shun the headlines; a professional killing today is accomplished quietly and expertly.

Chicago, for example, has a murder council of four leading mobsters who are responsible for pronouncing death sentences. They have a staff of 13 executioners, all well known to the Chicago police. When an underworld character gets out of line—welching, cheating, squealing, having ambitions beyond his station—the council meets like a Supreme Court to decide his fate.

Once the verdict to "hit him" has been handed down, only in exceptional cases have there been reprieves. It is a Mafia tradition that a man marked for death should receive a gift of white roses as a warning of his fate. These may be sent to him, or he may receive the gift symbolically in the form of a whispered message mentioning white roses.

One man who got a white rose warning went to his friends and pleaded with them in tears, and on his knees, that he had been wrongfully accused. The friends succeeded at the last minute in persuading the council to reverse its decision.

The white rose gesture, though it may seem flamboyant, serves a highly practical purpose. It usually isolates a man from any help he may hope to get. Eyes go blank, ears deaf, faces stony, hideouts closed. He becomes a man alone, scurrying down one dark alley after another with killers stalking him.

Sometimes the killers with grisly goodwill may invite the victim for a night on the town. If he is lucky, he will get a quick ride to some remote spot and a clean, swift bullet or knife thrust. If he is to be made an example, he may be slowly tortured to death. The word of his fate will get around. Men have been dumped into tubs of cement, given drinks and eigarettes while it hardened, then dropped into a river or lake still alive.

Contrary to general belief, the cost of underworld murder does not come high. Sometimes it is done free, as a facor for a friend, as a gesture by a young man eager to get ahead in the rackets, or by a man on the run to pay for his hideout. The fee most often heard is $100. But the execution of an important hoodlum, one who has his own bodyguards, might cost as high as $10,000.

But when the time comes, he will be "hit." Nothing will stand in the way of the sentence, not even the lives of innocent people.

Take the case of Charles Cavalaro, a Youngstown, Ohio, racketeer, who was known as "Cadillac Charlie" because of his taste for expensive cars. He was blown to eternity outside his home when he switched on the ignition of his automobile. Along with him died his son Tommy, 11. An older son, Chuckie, 12, had his left hip torn off and was crippled for life. Ironically, Cavalaro did not die in the car that gave him his nickname. He was blown up in a 1956 Ford. The murder remains a mystery. Even Mrs. Cavalaro, in her grief, would not talk.

Summit Conference

The underworld bosses are worried, almost as much as the police chiefs, by the new rise in gang murders. It signifies a collapse in their authority, dating back to the 1957 "summit conference" at Apalachin, N. Y., when the nation's top mobsters got together to plan policy. They rolled up in big luxury cars, flashed huge rolls of greenbacks, and otherwise made themselves conspicuous in this out-of-the-way spot. Later they were rounded up pretty much by one lone state trooper. Some tried to flee through the woods but were picked up, their expensively tailored suits snagged by brambles and burrs.

This display of panic and folly made a bad impression on the rank-and-file gang members. One small-time mobster told a federal agent: "If we had done that. . . ." Then, expressively, he drew his fingers across his throat. The young racketeer made it clear that he had less confidence in a high command he no longer respected.

To add to the breakdown in underworld discipline, Bob Kennedy's racketbusters have kept the top gangsters under such close surveillance that they haven't been able to hold any more Apalachin-style meetings. They have gathered a few times at Hot Springs, Miami, and, most recently, Acapulco, Mexico. But they were so nervous about the federal watchdogs that the best they could manage was a few fleeting exchanges on the golf course or on a veranda over drinks.

Result: Underscorld disputes are no longer being settled around a conference table. Ambitious young men, coming up in the rackets, are grabbing new territory. In this clash of ambitions, the enforcers or "hit men," the specialists in assassination, are getting more "contracts" to kill.

The Justice Department's organized crime section, headed by young, clean-cut Bill Hundley, has been putting togther the story of muscle and murder from the reports of 24 federal enforcement agencies. It adds up to a picture of underworld savagery that makes the wildest TV blood chiller seem fare for tiny tots; the truth is more terrifying than any fiction.

Some killers-for-hire have been jailed on other charges. A few have been persuaded to defy the Mafia code of omerta—silence or death—and talk to Hundley's men. In exchange for their information, they have been guaranteed protection. Two or three have been given whole new identities, so they may escape the implacable vengeance of the gangs. Planted informants are also passing out information from inside the murder rings.

Hundley is preparing his case against the murder profession. His biggest problem: Finding witnesses who will dare to testify in court. Yet a crackdown is coming; it is only a matter of time.

ernade has also talked to police chiefs in major crime areas across the country. Their answer is always the same. They need more money, more honest men. With its billions from crime, the underworld is often better financed and equipped than local police forces. It can afford smart lawyers, and to buy the latest weapons. It even has its own electronics experts.

Murder, Inc., was bad enough. But Murder 1963 is big husiness indeed.

THE BIG SLEEVE

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

THE ROMANTIC VISION of lovely girls in summer frocks will be enhanced this season with the return of the sleeved dress.

There's nothing that makes a woman feel more feminine than a loosely draped sleeve softly caressing her arm. This year women can count on fashion to make them feel more romantic.

Summer styles will feature a wide range of sleeves from the cuffed shirtwaist type to the ballooning puff. Fashions shown are a happy change from the stark sleeveless look we have had in the past few seasons.

Designer Anne Klein, the favorite of young sophisticates, these a variation on the long sleeve. She finishes it at the wrist with a ruffle to match the one draped around the neckline of a daring white crepe skimmer. John Weitz, on the other hand, designs a full draped sleeve that flutters in the breeze. While New York designers are making pretty, soft additions to the summer wardrobe, Paris creators are extending shoulders and widening tops of sleeves. It's all a pretty plot.

For further information on these fashions, write to Virginia Pope, Fashion Editor, Parade, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Please name this newspaper and be sure to enclose a self-addressed employa-

Puffed sleeves on a simple red and white striped dress give the wearer a charming youthful appearance. Puffs halloon out from a deep cuff just below the elbow. Made in a silk and cotton blend, the dress features a waistline raised at the front and accented by a tailored bow belt in red. Red buttons decorate hadice, cuffs. By N S Petites, $40.

Ruffles at the wrist give this slinky crepe sleeve the witchery it deserves. The dress, a willowy number in snowy white crepe, is designed so the lines follow the curves of the body in the new skimmer manner. Anne Klein, the creator, who concentrates on young fashions, adds a cascade of ruffles descending from throat to waistline. The result is a new slender sheath that's full of glamour and enchantment. Jr. Sophisticates. About $50.

Here are new ideas for your home, family and boat

Movies in your pocket: You can carry a new 8-mm camera in purse or pocket —and take movies without worrying about focusing, adjusting lens opening or winding the motor. About the size of a paperback book, the battery-operated camera has universal focus, an electric-eye control to adjust lens opening autotomatically without need for a light meter, an electric motor to eliminate manual rewinding. Reflex viewing (dimentally through lens) shows you a subject exactly as the lens will photograph it. Details: Revere Camera, Dept. PP, 2501 Hudson Road, St. Paul 19, Minn.

Spray your oven clean: A new acrosol preparation produces a white foam that allows you to clean an oven in 10 minutes — and without need for rubber gloves. It's said to be almost as bland as water so it can't burn skin, injure fabrics, metals or floor coverings. 16 oz.: $1,50. Oven-loy. Dent. PP. 14934

Compact camper: Here's a camper (below) that measures 6 feet 8 inches in length and only 5 feet in width when closed—yet opens to 10-foot width to provide sleeping space for a family of 4 or 5. Outboard Jet: Now comes an outboard motor that propels your boat without a propeller—by means of a jet stream shot out behind. You can turn full speed in the boat's own length by swinging the tiller without need for using rudder or baffle—and back up by reversing the jet spout 180 degrees. The unit does not protrude below the hull, will not snag or hit underwater obstructions. It also reduces draft so the boat can travel in very shallow water. 5½ hp; 57 lb. Details: Outboard Jet, Dept. PP, 226 N. Pine, Indianapolis 2, Ind.

Snap-fold rain cape: A new lightweight, transparent plastic cape for both men and women fits in a carrying pouch small enough to go in handbag, briefcase, coat pocket, fishing tackle box or car glove compartment. It opens to 5' x 5' and snaps right back into permanent folds when you give it a gentle pull after you've finished wearing it. $1. Instant-Fold Products, Dept. PP, I Park Are., New York 16, N. Y.

SOMETHING NEW IN SOUTH AMERICA

Here comes the U.S.

by ED KIESTER

SANTIAGO, CHILE.

ATEST EXPORT of the U.S. to this Latin-American republic are nine men with business suits, pleasant manners and sharp, unyielding minds.

They are tax collectors. These boys from the United States Internal Revenue Service have been operating here for the last two years. Their mission: to teach their Chilean counterparts the secret of how to part a taxpayer from his money. And so far, to the despair of shocked and reductant Chileans, they have been wildly successful.

Since the Americans came, tax collections here have increased between $30 and $50 million a year. They are expected to jump twice that next year. But increased revenue is only part of the story. The Americans have helped close loopholes, modernize procedures and crack down on chiselers. And, to the wonder of all Chile, they have taken 2 persons to court, have 2 others awaiting trial and are investigating an additional 50.

The Good Old Days

All this is a far cry from the way things used to be here. In the entire country—in fact, in all Latin America—no one, but no one, had ever been tried for tax fraud. In whole regions of Chile, not a single person ever had filed an income tax return.

In a classic case, a man purchased a valuable business property in Santiago, the capital, for $300,000 in cash. The transaction brought him to the attention of authorities, who found he never had paid taxes. Asked about it, the man protested, "Why, I've never earned enough money to pay taxes."

Furthermore, those who dodged the tax collectors usually managed to avoid paying a penalty. The law assessed penalties, fines and interest for overdue taxes—but every two years Chile's congress passed a law "forgiving" them.

To us, revolutionizing this taxless paradise may not sound very neighborly, but it is actually (according to the

> were being properly enforced. The income tax schedule is not really so much below ours. But collections have not been made, good administration has not been followed. It may be that sound administration is as important as new law "

> When Nowak first came here in 1961-at the personal request of Eduardo Hirzua Merino, the Chilean director of internal revenue, whom he had once shepherded around the Manhattan IRS office-administration of the tax laws was anything but good.

> Taxes were being withheld from the wases. of factory workers; other Chileans were filing regular returns, but few of the returns were being audited. Collectors, inspectors and clerks were untrained.

> Underpaid agents held second jobs - sometimes for the very persons whose taxes they were supposed to check during the day. Most complicated of all, no one had ever written down all the Chilean tax rules, procedures and regulations in one place. Most agents carried them around in their heads.

Nowak started off with a drastic program. Aided by a revolving staff of American specialists plus 85 full-time Chilean Instructors, he set up a training program, wangled a 50 per cent pay boost, had the offices redecorated and refurbished, put a crash crew to work drawing up a Chilean tax code.

More important, he showed the average Chilean taxpayer that the agents meant buriness. He hand-picked 50 men forzn intelligence division, trained them in such things as how to eavesdrop, shadow a suspect, use a hidden mike. Then-after passing the word that informers would be rewarded-he turned them loose on tax frauds.

Bathing Suit Fraud

Result: the colden age of Chilean taxdodging came to an abrupt halt. The fraud team suddenly pounced on the office of a bathing suit manufacturer and confiscated its records. Then they charged that the firm had falsified invoices, made up phony purchase orders and doctored accounts to make their profits look small. They also made certain that the case-first of its kind on the continent-got wide publicity when it went ta court.

The chief of the division, Jorge Varela, then let the word out that his office was investigating 40 or 50 more cases. He also said auditing would be increased fivefold-and that, in the U.S. tradition, the agents would concentrate on returns from the higher income brackets.

As a result of all this, there is today a new attitude about taxpaying in Chile-and it's one that most Americans would recognize. Reluctantly, many taxpayers are beginning to file returns for the first time-and honest ones at that. Among the 2,800 agents, there is a new zeal and a new esprit de corps. Nounk's job isn't over, but he is looking forward to going home.

"All we wanted to do was make them independent," he says-"set up a professional service and enable them to get the absolute most they were entitled to. That's what we're getting in Chile. Soon it'll be just as tough on tax cheats as the States."

tax men) being done for our benefit. Under President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program for Latin America, the U.S. agrees to give aid to those countries which show willingness to help themselves.

But Uncle Sam sees no reason to shell out U.S. taxpayers' money when Latin-America's home-grown taxpayers go scot-free. Accordingly, to qualify for funds, a nation must first institute tax reforms. Chile is the first to do so.

Actually, Uncle Sam would like to see the Chileans go even further. Eighty per cent of tax money here comes from sales taxes and import duties-levies which fall hardest on people least able to pay. The U.S. would like to see income tax rates changed to squeeze more out of upper-bracket incomes. Chile's congress is now debating such a step. Meanwhile, the problem is to collect the maximum under existing laws.

Says Norman D. Nowak, the thickset, energetic New Yorker who heads the nine-man advisory group in Santiago: "The present system would not seem so inequitable if it

My Son. the Folk Singer and My Son, the Celebrity, Originally Sherman was a writer who studied his craft at the University of Illinois fournalism school. His ability with words and gags got him iobs writing skits for Jackle Gleason, loe E. Lewis and other comics. In 1951 he helped dream up a TV quiz show. I've Got a Secret, and was hired as its producer at $150 a week. To calm his aggravation and frustration at being underpaid. he began to entertain at parties, singing parodies of popular songs. At several such gatherings he was heard by Harpo Marx, Jack Benny and George Burns, all of whom thought him thotously funny. Whereupon Allan cut a record of his paralles, and presto-he became a show business sensation overnight.

Definition of a night club: A large ash tray with a battender.

Speaking of night clubs, I dropped a collar button one night and before I could recover it, a waiter threw a tablecloth over it and seated five people!

A friend of mine went to a party given for charity. Exceptody was told to bring something they didn't have any use for—68 women brought their husbands!

Philosophy for the day: Laugh and the world laughs with you, Cry—and you're watching an old Bette Davis picture on TV.

I'm never going to another race track as long as I live! Yesterday I bet on a horse that came in so late it won the next race. So then I placed $2 on a horse named Lassie, but she never came home. Finally I had a streak of luck—for three races in a row I didn't get to the window in time to make a bet!

Our weatherman at home hadn't been right in months, so he decided to quit his job and move to mother town. He said the climate didn't agree with him.

If George Washington was such an honest man, why do they close the banks on his hirthday?

Economy tip for drivers: If you want to travel 100 miles on a gallon of gas, just set a match to it!

But if you want a really careful driver, you take my wife. She always looks both ways before going through a red light! And I wouldn't say that she has been in many accidents, but I call our car "The Bullet," because it's all shot.

My brother-in-law is a hypochondriac. He said he felt so weak one day that he couldn't fight his way out of a paper hag. I told him not to worry—after all, how many people get caught in a paper hag?

I told my boy I hoped he would get out of the 8th grade this year—but he says he's being held over again by popular demand.

My three little nepheus were sitting on the curb, each with a picture in his hand. So I asked the first little boy, who was holding a picture of John Glenn, what he would like to be. "An astronaut," was the reply. Then I asked the second boy, who was holding a picture of Roy Rogers, what he wanted to be, and he answered: "A cowboy." The third little boy was holding a picture of Jane Russell, and this puzzled me. I said, "And what would you like to be?" He looked at me solemnly and said, "Your age."

I knew a girl once who reminded me of Venus de Milo-very beautiful, but not all there.

Marriage is a 60-40 proposition—which means that if a man makes $40 a week, his wife spends $60.

Men who kiss and tell are not half so had as those who kiss and exaggerate.

They were an ideal couple. She was 21 going on 22, and he was 64 going on Social Security.
